Aerospace, Glamor Stocks Rally But Market Still Off

New York — (UPI) — Stocks eased again at the close today. The strongest rallying attempts were made by aerospace and glamor stocks.
Brokers ascribed the selling pressure to the economy's disappointing September performance, exemplified by unchanged industrial production and personal income.
Alcoa weakened around a point and some other metals followed reflecting the threat of a large government stockpile sale of aluminum on the open market. Drugs were soft.

Business Upturn Stop Indicated

Washington—UPI—The Federal Reserve Board indicated Tuesday that the business upturn stopped in September.
"Some measures of business activity changed little last month," the board said in its national summary of business conditions.
Industrial activity held steady at the high rate reached in the previous two months. The board's index of factory, mine and utility output had been rising fairly steadily since January.
For September the index stood at 119, which meant industrial activity last month was 19 per cent above the 1957 average, which is 100 on the index.

Congressman Sees Political Cause for Delay

Washington—UPI—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has withheld from Congress since July the results of a critical study of the controversial 2,000-mile-an-hour RS70 warplane, according to Rep. Leslie C. Arends, (R-Ill.).
Arends, the top-ranking Republican on the House Armed Services Committee, which unanimously voted early this year to "direct" McNamara to speed development of the plane, but then settled for a compromise calling for a new study.

Arends says McNamara now apparently intends to "study" the plane to death.
Caustic Statement
The congressman issued a caustic statement through his office here Tuesday noting that "the distinguished secretary of defense has gained a reputation for making 'fast and firm decisions'."

"The delaying tactics with respect to the RS70 have badly tarnished that reputation," Arends said. Maybe, he said, McNamara made too fast a decision in the first place and now intends to stand firm against speeding up the plane regardless of military and congressional opinion.
"There is no reason, except possibly political, why the secretary of defense could not have advised Congress in July as to the findings and recommendations" of the Air Force after the new study of the plane was made, Arends contended. He said now that Congress has adjourned "nothing can be done" about the RS70 program.

Funds Requested
President Kennedy asked Congress last winter for $171 million to continue a program calling for three of the planes, then called B70 and envisioned as bombers. Total cost of the program over a period of years will be $1.3 billion.
After listening to McNamara's and the Air Force's testimony on the plane's potentialities, the House Armed Services Committee sided 100 per cent with the Air Force and voted to order McNamara to expand and hasten the development program.
The committee aim was to build six experimental planes, and more importantly to get set for full production of the plane in a supersonic reconnaissance—strike version.

Vote Forestalled
Kennedy intervened with the powerful committee chairman, Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) and forestalled a House vote on "ordering" McNamara to expand the RS70 program. The Pentagon promised a new study of the complicated electronics equipment the plane would need, which McNamara claimed was too advanced for American technology at present and which the Air Force claimed could be made.
Congress, meanwhile, appropriated $191.6 million more than Kennedy asked for the plane.

PREACHER OVERPAID
Georgetown, Tex. — (UPI) — The Rev. Lively Brown said last week the community's dry weather might be the result of church members not "paying the preacher," and urged them to drop more in the collection plate. The next Tuesday it rained. It also rained Wednesday and Thursday. On Friday lightning struck the church steeple.

Mayor Snider Is Named Director
Medford Mayor John Snider has been elected director of the Oregon Historical Society, President Chandler Brown, Salem, announced recently.
Mayor Snider will serve a four-year term on the board for the state society which has 2,500 members.
"Mayor Snider was honored for his crucial leadership during the 1959 state centennial commemoration and his continued interest and support of regional history and related opportunities," Chandler said.
Snider's election was announced during the 65th annual dinner meeting of the society Friday. Due to the storm the mayor did not attend. Approximately 25 people did attend, however, and ate in the dark, the mayor said.

Librarian Attends Workshop In Area
Ashland — Eleanor Everett, librarian of children's literature at Southern Oregon college, attended workshops on building and maintaining a library collection, sponsored by the Oregon State Library, Oregon state department of education, and the Oregon Library association in Roseburg recently.
Earl Sykes, Douglas county library trustee, spoke on "What is a Library," and "What is a Library Collection," was discussed by Wilma Gore, Myrtle Creek High school and public librarian.
A symposium on book selection, and group discussions and reports also were on the agenda, Mrs. Everett said.

Monaco Showered With Leaflets Inviting Workers To Meeting

Monte Carlo, Monaco — (UPI) — Pink leaflets gently showered Monaco today inviting workers to a meeting on the Franco-Monegasque tax war.
A Communist union leader indicated the "chorus" in this comic-opera battle wants to have its say as well as the "stars" — Princess Grace, Prince Rainier and French President Charles de Gaulle.
"Monaco is not just a pretty area with a garden, talent and beautiful princess," said Jules Soccac, head of the Union of Monaco Trade Unions. "The meeting is called so the workers will be informed of what the crisis means to them."
Soccac, a short fellow with a mustache but no necktie, will do all the informing at the meeting in the town's labor hall near the harbor filled with sleek yachts from many nations.
Soccac is a Communist party member.

But he said his meeting is not for or against communism, Prince Rainier, France, the Soviet Union or anything else. "We are for ourselves," he said. "We are interested in beefsteaks, housing and our lives."
He estimated pea-sized Monaco has a laboring class of 16,500. All were invited to the meeting.
This number includes approximately 3,000 actual residents of Monaco, 4,000 Italians and 9,500 French who travel across the border to work every day.

The union leader said the workers fear their employers would use the crisis as an excuse for refusing wage increases. Although the employers pay hardly any taxes to the state, the workers receive less here than in France, he complained.
"But I do not think the foreign businesses will close if they have to pay taxes," he said. "I am optimistic."

All was calm at the palace today. A high government official said Monaco still was waiting for France to resume negotiations.
So far, little Monaco's big neighbor has not unveiled any new harassing tactics in the tense "clash" over taxes.
Wednesday France will treat Monaco as a foreign country when it comes to buying postage stamps, doubling the price of mailing a letter between the two nations.

Canadian, U. S. Officials Resume Talks on Lumber

Ottawa — (UPI) — Canadian and U.S. officials Tuesday met for a second round of talks on President Kennedy's suggestion for voluntary import quotas on Canadian softwood lumber exports to the United States.
Three U.S. officials flew to the capital with representatives of West Coast lumber producers for the two-day meeting.
Heading the U.S. team are three assistant undersecretaries, Griffith Johnson of the State Department, John A. Carver from the Interior Department, and Jack Behrman from the Commerce Department.
The Canadian team is led by J. H. Warren, assistant deputy minister of trade and commerce.

Noncommittal Communique
A first meeting here in August produced only a noncommittal communique which said both countries would consult their home industries before meeting again.
There was no indication that Canada was prepared to budge an inch in its determination to keep its $250 million a year business in the U.S. intact.
Instead of concessions, indications were the United States could expect only Canadian agreement to continuing consultations about the softwood lumber problem.

Winnie Ruth Judd Remains At Large
Phoenix — (UPI) — Police continued to search today for escaped trunk murderer Winnie Ruth Judd, 57.
Officers said the discovery Tuesday of clothing worn by the former "tiger woman" had failed to provide any new lead to her whereabouts.
Mrs. Judd made her seventh escape from the Arizona State Mental Hospital 10 days ago. She was committed to the hospital in 1932 following a first degree murder conviction in the slaying of her roommates, Hedvig Samuelson and Ann LeRo.

TO OUR CUSTOMERS

We want you to know how much we appreciate your patience with us while we've been digging our way out of the biggest and most difficult electric service problem ever experienced in the West!

The total damage done by the hurricane-force winds that hit last Friday can never be assessed in dollars alone.

Anxieties for family safety, the anguish of watching a home battered and broken, the emptiness of the sky above a fallen landmark tree — all such things are beyond measure except in terms of deep human emotion.

Almost every one of the 200,000 customers we serve in the 300-mile strip from northern California to the Columbia River, was personally affected by this unprecedented storm. We particularly regret the discomfort, inconvenience and distress resulting from storm-caused electric service disruptions.

We are grateful for your patience and understanding of our problems, in the face of your own personal difficulties. We are also full of gratitude for the extraordinary efforts of our P.P. & L. team members, who have worked day and night to restore service as fast as humanly possible.

Our thanks, too, to the good-neighbor utility systems and electrical contractors in the western half of the country, who sent crews as much as 1,000 miles to give us a helping hand.

We hope that soon even the most heavily damaged and most remote areas will have all electric customers back in service, even though it will take weeks to complete all permanent repairs and replacements.

Thank you again for your forbearance in a time of great trouble.
