'Quiet' Students Top 'Vocal' Ones

Berkeley, Calif. — (UPI) — A unique test of group behavior conducted recently on the Berkeley campus of the University of California revealed "quiet" students outperformed "vocal" students.

Four test groups from "very vocal" to "very quiet" were assigned to test and evaluate a pamphlet and make a report recommending ways to improve it.

The evaluations were evaluated and the work of the two "quiet" groups was ranked first. The "vocal" students, it appeared had been unable to work as a team and the "very vocal" group failed because no one read the entire report before it was submitted.

The results indicated that fast-speaking members needed a leader to hold them back until sound decisions were reached and help evaluate the integrated product.

Among the "quiet" groups a few began to assume active leadership roles. They had been more critical of their own efforts.
