Medical Progress Is Reviewed

By Dr. Fishbein, Former AMA Editor

The world's amazing progress in medicine during the last half century was reviewed for a Medford audience Saturday night when Dr. Morris Fishbein, noted medical editor and writer, spoke for the Rogue River Valley Knife and Fork club.

Dr. Fishbein, who was graduated from Rush Medical college in 1912, spoke under the title "Fifty Years of Medical Progress."

The speaker noted that when he was just out of medical school, most doctors were general practitioners. Now there are 53 special branches of medicine recognized by the American Medical Association. In those days, one great medical discovery might come in 10 years, he said, while in the last year, there were probably 10 great discoveries, he declared.

Dr. Fishbein noted that such diseases as smallpox and typhoid have been conquered. Due to good prenatal care and the fact that babies are born in hospitals rather than in homes the childbirth death rate is down to a fraction, he said, and that because of inoculations and vaccines, deaths from childhood diseases are "at an almost irreducible minimum."

Poliomyelitis Statistics

Speaking of poliomyelitis, Dr. Fishbein said that in 1926 there were 56,000 cases of paralytic polio in this country as compared to less than 500 cases this year.

"In time, polio will be as rare as typhoid and smallpox now are," he declared. He noted, however, that in countries where vaccination is not stressed, there are still occasional outbreaks of smallpox.

Tuberculosis, once among the top causes of death in this nation, is being conquered with drugs and new surgical techniques, Dr. Fishbein reported. He said that many TB sanitariums are either closed or have been converted into research institutes for other diseases or homes for the aged.

Rheumatic fever, once a major cause of death among young children, is now controlled with drugs. Pneumonia has also fallen from the list of dangerous illnesses and today only five out of 100 patients die from pneumonia, he speaker said.

Diabetes fatal

Fifty years ago diabetes was almost always fatal in young children, and now a person with this disease can expect to live out a normal life span, according to Dr. Fishbein. Pernicious anemia has been conquered with the use of liver and liver extracts.

Heart disease, one of the first causes of death in this country, will be eventually controlled, Dr. Fishbein believes. He pointed out, however, that a higher death rate from heart disease results partly from the fact that many of its victims would have died earlier of other diseases in years gone by. Heart disease will continue to be one of the main causes of death, he explained, since the heart is a muscle which is used continuously by the body and that it degenerates and wears out.

Surgery Advances

Turning to the subject of surgery, Dr. Fishbein spoke of the advances made in this field, such as the transplanting of whole organs and the successful removal of certain portions of the body, such as a lung or the stomach. He spoke of the great advances in heart surgery, and of the fitting of plastic valves into this organ. The new techniques in heart surgery are one of the "truly great advances in medicine," he declared.

Speaking of brain surgery, Dr. Fishbein said that Dr. Harvey Cushing had "founded a dynasty" of brain surgeons who have saved many persons from death. He noted, however, that "we still know too little about the brain and its functions," such as memory, etc.

Telling of a recent visit to Russia where he toured hospitals and conferred with scientists and physicians, Dr. Fishbein said that the Russians are experimenting with transplanting of the stomach, heart and nerves, and are using irradiation to solve certain problems in these techniques.

Russia's Blood Supply

He explained that in Russia the problem of an adequate supply of blood for medical purposes is solved by taking the blood from persons shortly after death and storing it for future use.

Space exploration is creating a whole new field of medical research, Dr. Fishbein said.

Asked about cancer, the speaker said that research has brought out much valuable information and that Russian scientists have a new drug which stops the growth of some types of cancer cells. He added that the United States government has a program under way to open several medical centers throughout the country in which women will be given tests and treatment for the common uterine cancer.

He said that through research with mice, it has been determined that some types of leukemia are virus-caused and that soon we may be able to control this virus.

"We soon may have a vaccine to prevent cancer," he added.

Dr. Fishbein also talked about diseases which are caused by auto-sensitization of the body, causing the body to destroy certain tissues. He also said that work is under way to isolate the rheumatoid arthritis factor which will lead eventually to control.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. Ray Castlerline.
