

Kennedy Puts Signature To Foreign Aid Measure; $1 Billion Short of Request

Washington - President Kennedy Tuesday signed the $3.9 billion foreign aid bill, which was $1 billion short of what he wanted. It also was $586 million less than last year. The aid bill was one of 44 that Kennedy signed Tuesday. Among them were the public works bill, the federal highway act for 1962, a conflict-of-interest measure, and a bill authorizing a mass vaccination program. Eleven other bills sent to him by the recently adjourned Congress still await his signature. The aid bill carries a mandatory cut-off in U.S. aid to any country selling, furnishing or shipping arms or strategic materials to Cuba. Countries limiting their trade with Cuba to food, medicine and other nonwar materials could continue receiving U.S. aid, if the President decided it would be in the American interest. It contained a flat ban on any U.S. military or strategic aid to Communist countries such as Poland and Yugoslavia, but allows economic aid.
