

RAGSDALE INTERCEPTS — Stanford quarterback Richard Ragdale (ex-Medford, Ore., high) goes high into the air to intercept a first quarter pass intended for UCLA's Mel Proffitt, left. The pass from Larry Zeno was one of many intercepted in a wild football game which also was loaded with fumbles at Los Angeles Coliseum. Ragdale snared two UCLA passes in the first half. Stanford won the game 17-7.—(UPI)

Stanford, U of P Score Grid Upsets

United Press International Shock waves emanated from the West Coast football empire today following a pair of crushing upsets that left the experts groping for tranquilizers. The first jolt was registered at Los Angeles Saturday afternoon where Stanford's Indians hung a 17-7 defeat on a UCLA team that had gone into the game a nine point favorite. Then the "feeble" Tigers of the University of the Pacific, who were not supposed to have any business being on the same field with Washington State, dazed the Cougars 13-12 in a night game. The one-point reversal knocked coach Jim Sutherland's club out of the undefeated ranks and came after Oregon State, 40-6, the previous week. So how do you figure. Even Washington, which meets Southern California next Saturday in a game that could decide the coast's Rose Bowl delegate, had to settle for a 21-21 tie with Oregon. In other key games, the undefeated USC Trojans handed Illinois its 15th straight loss, 28-16; California found a great new quarterback in Craig Morton but lost to Penn State, 23-21; Oregon State knocked West Virginia from the unbeaten ranks, 51-22 and New Mexico vanquished victory-starved San Jose State, 25-13. On the regional front, it was Arizona State over Texas Western, 35-7 while Arizona downed West Texas, 8-3, in football and not baseball. Stanford intercepted five UCLA passes in a game marked by a total of six lost fumbles. With his team clinging to a 10-7 lead in the fourth period, quarterback Steve Thurlow marched the Indians 89 yards for their clinching touchdown which John Payne scored on a one-yard shot. Frank Patitucci of the Tribe earlier rated 82 yards for a score after grabbing a Bruin bobble in mid-air and UCLA's Carl Jones went 81 yards to tally when the Indians committed a similar error.

GAINS FIRST DOWN—University of Oregon's Larry Hill (25) picks up five yards for a first down in first quarter grid action against University of Washington Huskies on Saturday at Seattle. Hill was stopped by Washington's Duane Lockman, Red Scheyer and Bill Douglas (11). The teams tied 21-21.—(UPI)

Red Raiders Point For Portland State

Klamath Falls — Southern Oregon college put on a tremendous defensive and offensive show here last Saturday afternoon in handing the Oregon Tech Owls a humiliating 50-0 setback. The win gave the Raiders a 2-0 conference record. Portland is currently leading the conference with a 3-0 record. Next Saturday afternoon beginning at 1:30 p.m., the Raiders will host Portland State college on Fuller Field. The two teams will meet in a head-on battle which will probably decide the conference winner. "Akins' Animals," as the defensive team of the Raiders is known, really put on an outstanding show against the Owls. The Raiders held the Oregon Tech team to a -46 yards on the ground and to 19 yards in the air. This gave the Owls only a -27 yards for total offense for the afternoon. Meanwhile, the Raider offensive machine was putting on quite a show, too. Southern Oregon, guided by veteran quarterback Doug Olsen, scored the first four times they go their hands on the ball. The Raiders were not to be denied in the scoring department, as they came up with seven touchdowns, six extra points, and a safety.

Oregon Tie Disappoints

Eugene —(UPI)— Oregon's disappointed Ducks began preparations today for their football meeting with Stanford at Portland this week end on the heels of a 21-21 tie with Washington at Seattle Saturday. "I'm always disappointed when we don't win," Oregon Coach Len Casanova said in reference to the tie with the Huskies. "We weren't after a tie. We were trying to win it." Turning to the Ducks' upcoming game with Stanford, Casanova said he does not think the Indians "have reached their potential and will be pretty rugged." Stanford earlier this season shocked the nation by upsetting Michigan State and last week end downed favored UCLA. The veteran Oregon coach said "I was pleased with our offense against Washington but I was not happy with our defense. I certainly didn't expect either team to score as much as it did."

Linfield, Willamette Share First
United Press International Defending champion Linfield and Willamette were deadlocked for first place today in the Northwest conference football race. The Wildcats edged Lewis and Clark 12-6 at McMinnville Saturday night to go into a tie for the conference lead with the Bearcats. Each has a 3-0 record. Linfield meets Willamette at Salem next Saturday. The Wildcats scored their touchdowns in the second half on passes of 13 and 4 yards from quarterback Bill Mickle to end Bernie Grant. The loss left the Pioneers with a 2-1 mark. Pacific shut out Whitman 33-0 at Forest Grove in other conference action and Willamette stopped British Columbia 34-6 at Salem in non-conference play.

OSU Pair Gain Praise

By JAMES F. COUR Portland — (UPI) — The fantastic passing combination of Terry Baker and Vern Burke had another believer today. The quarterback — end two-some sparked Oregon State to a 51-22 football victory over previously unbeaten and untied West Virginia here Saturday. "I've never seen a better combination in college football," Coach Gene Corum of the Mountaineers said. Baker threw for three touchdowns — two to Burke — as the Beavers ran out to a 37-6 halftime lead. The southpaw — throwing senior quarterback completed 11 of 19 passes for 177 yards and ran for 39 yards. Burke caught eight for 131 yards. "Baker is the best T-formation quarterback that I've ever seen in college," Corum said. "He's as great football player. Baker is good because he can do so many things well." The West Virginia coach explained "we tried to stop Burke by putting two men on him and two weren't enough. He's about impossible to stop." Oregon State Coach Tommy Prothro viewed the outcome with mixed emotions. "We were pretty tremendous for the first 30 minutes but it was sort of a comedy of errors after that. I don't think we were especially high for this game but we were precise."

OSU Rooks Nudge UO Frosh 15-8 in Grid Fracas Here

Football conflict, unflinching over most of three periods Saturday night, took on cliff-hanger proportions in the final stanza as the Oregon State Rooks trimmed the University of Oregon Frosh 15 to 8 at the Medford stadium. The closing canto saw the Rooks of Corvallis strike back after the Ducklings of Eugene had taken a one-point lead and then hang on as the Frosh threatened in the final moments. OSU's first year men, who were led by the generaling of Marvin Crowston and the running of Craig Cording, whacked to the goal in the second quarter with Cording going over from one-yard line. Rocketed by a 47-yard Tom Finucane to Ray Palm pass play, UO surged 55 yards in the final chucker with Finucane sneaking over from the one-yard line. A two-point conversion pass, also Finucane to Palm, offset Larry Richard's extra point boot earlier for the Rooks. And, the Ducklings had an 8 to 7 edge with 6:52 left on the clock.

59-Yard Runback
That the slim margin might be short-lived was immediately apparent. Swift Jim Smith of the Rooks took Bud Harrington's kickoff on the OSU 13-yard line, boomed up the middle of the field then angled to the east sideline. By the time Palm forced him out of bounds, Smith had covered 59 yards to the UO 23. From there, with Cording, Crowston and Cliff Watkins packing, the Rooks fought to the goal in eight plays. Cording backed the last inches for his second TD of the night. This time for the bonus, the Rooks faked a Richards' kick and Crowston passed to Doug Parker for two points. The clock read 2:51 to play.

The Frosh were determined not to bow. Dennis Keller ran Richards' kickoff back 24 yards to the UO 31. Keller gained eight yards but the Frosh lost five yards for off-side and another five when Finucane was nailed behind the scrimmage line. Then, Finucane hit Palm with a pass for 15 yards and first down on the 44. Keller ripped off nine yards to the Rook 47 then broke loose for 29 to the 18 with 55 seconds left to play.

Four Incomplete
Four Finucane passes, two each to Palm and Harrington, were incomplete. The team from Corvallis worked hard for its first TD. Jim Smith ran a punt back into UO territory but the Rooks were penalized for clipping and put back on the OSU 34. Two plays got them to the 48 but they were put back to the 33 again for clipping. From there it was an 11-play push. It helped when a half the distance to the goal charge on UO for illegal use of hands made it first-down for them on the eight. The Frosh penetrated Rook land in the third quarter when Arlen Elms ran back a punt 22 yards to the 47 and Don Maust carried seven yards to the 40. A hands infraction set UO back, however, to its 43. That's when Finucane, a 44 Palm heeded for the lengthy aerial which put the ball on the OSU eight.

Bucks Trip Vancouver
Western Press International They've finally dismantled the lock the Vancouver Canucks had on the Western Hockey league race, with an ominous rumble from last year's NHL powerhouse, the Portland Buckaroos. The Canucks, a doormat in the league last season, had won six straight without a loss prior to Sunday night. During those six games goalie Gilles Villeneuve had watched only eight enemy pucks get between him and the net. The big bad Portland Buckaroos changed all that. Getting two-goal performances from Tom McCarthy and Tommy McVie, the Buckaroos introduced Vancouver to convincing defeat Sunday night 7-1. The Bucks went ahead with three goals in the first and second periods, allowed

Shirley Daigle Holds Records
Mrs. Shirley Daigle, Medford, rolled the highest game in Oregon State Women's Match Game championship history over the week end at Portland's Valley lanes. She ran up a 277 and also established a new record for back to back games with a 252 and 258. Mrs. Daigle reportedly finished eight in the runoff. The 277 was her best game ever. She rolled three strikes, spared, then struck until her last ball on which she got an eight count.

Tony Lema Golf Victor
By ALEX KAHN UPI Sports Writer
Cost Mesa, Calif. — (UPI) — The victory Tony Lema thought would never come his way materialized for the captured Marine Sunday when he edged a sudden death playoff from Bob Rosburg to win the $22,500 Orange Country Open. Lema and Rosburg tied for first at the end of 72 holes with scores of 267 and it took three holes for the San Leandro, Calif., golfer to win with a birdie putt on the par three hole from 11 feet. The loss was heartbreaking to Rosburg whose putt went into the cup and bounced out. The win gave Lema a total of 110.67 points and the lead on the fall tour for one of two starting spots in the Masters' tournament next year; it put him ninth on the Ryder Cup team standings and 18th on the official money list with earnings of $26,232. The Orange County win was worth $2,800 to Lema with Rosburg forced to settle for $900 less, the cost of missing the vital putt.

Mancuso's Wife Fatally Injured
Houston —(UPI)— Gus Mancuso, former catcher with the famed St. Louis Cardinal "Gas House Gang," and veteran baseball broadcaster, columnist and manager, remained in serious condition today from a two-car collision that killed his wife and injured four college students. Mancuso, 56, was removed from the critical list at Spring Branch Memorial Hospital late Sunday night. His wife Lorena died en route to the hospital.
