

10 A Court Disposes Of Two Congress Contempt Cases

Washington—UPI—The Supreme Court disposed of two contempt of Congress appeals Tuesday, upholding the conviction of an Ohio teamster union leader in one and affirming a not guilty finding for a New York Port official in the other.

Immediately after making a handful of rulings, the court began hearing renewed arguments in the prolonged dispute between Arizona and California over Colorado river water.

The Ohio teamster leader who appealed his contempt conviction to the high court was William Presser. By a 4-4 vote, the court today affirmed a lower court finding that Presser had obstructed a 1958 Senate committee inquiry by destroying or concealing records showing gifts of $100 champagne buckets to eight individuals.

Not Legal Precedent

A tie vote upholds lower court decisions but does not set legal precedents in such cases. New Justice Arthur J. Goldberg did not participate in today's ruling.

The other contempt case involved Austin J. Tobin, executive director of the New York Port Authority, who refused to turn over certain records to a House investigating subcommittee.

Tobin was found guilty by a federal judge here but the appeals court held that the House group lacked authority to demand the records of Tobin. The Supreme Court today let stand the appeals court ruling, thereby rejecting a Justice Department request that the conviction be reinstated.

In another action, the court refused to reconsider its decision of June 25 which struck down a California law which made it a crime to be a narcotics addict.
