Chapter Holds Ritual of Jewels

Beta Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held a ritual of jewels recently at the home of Mrs. E. A. Littrell, 140 Greenway circle. Mrs. Littrell is director of the chapter. Mrs. R. A. Skinner, chapter sponsor, was present.

Guests

Illinois Valley-Cave Junction — Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Barrett of San Francisco have been visiting here with Mrs. Barrett's brother, Loyd E. Smith, and family. During their stay, Mr. Barrett, Mr. Smith and sons Rudy and Darrel Smith and Dan Durrie, went elk hunting in Eastern Oregon. Mr. Barrett is stationed in the Bay City with the Navy, and they spent most of his 30-day leave here.

The ceremony was presided over by the chapter president, Mrs. Larry Rose. New members are Mrs. Robert Damon, Mrs. Laurence Ware and Mrs. Floyd E. Hostetter.

A short business meeting preceded the ritual.

Plans were completed for a party held at Thurston's November 17.

Co-hostesses for the evening were Mrs. William Esselstyn and Mrs. Fred Wilson.

Girl Scout Conference Has Accent on Camping

Three representatives from the Rogue Valley Council of Girl Scouts attended a regional conference on camping at the Sweet Wing Inn at Seattle, Wash., on Monday, November 5 through Thursday, November 8. The conference provided an opportunity for concentration on one aspect of the Girl Scout program — camping.

Attending from Medford were Mrs. Ralph Barclay, Rogue Valley Council camping chairman, and Mr. and Mrs. Dean Eppinger. Mr. Eppinger is on the site, facilities and maintenance committee, and Mrs. Eppinger is a troop organizer and troop leader. Representatives from all of Northwest Region XI attended.

This was a 30 hour course given by Miss Madeline Murphy and Miss Marion Barrett from national headquarters in New York, and Miss Fredricka Gordon, from the Regional office, for professionals and camp chairmen. The emphasis was on a total camping program from day camp to troop camp to established camp. According to reports, Girl Scout camp facilities in the Rogue valley were rated among the tops for the region, which includes Idaho, Oregon, Washington, Montana and Alaska.

Six workshops were held, with each of the local representatives attending two. Mrs. Barclay attended "Administering the Camping Function," whose purpose was to increase understanding and skills needed to develop and administer an effective camping program. Another workshop she attended was on current trends and developments in camp administration, held to acquaint participants with new trends and practices that have proved helpful elsewhere.

Mr. Eppinger attended a workshop pertaining to a long range program of camp development and building, which analyzed the needs of campers, and council, how to plan to meet these needs, and many other related topics. His second workshop was on program experimentation, with a view to explore the limitless program possibilities available and to share what is new in camping programs, with emphasis on summer arts festivals, science exploration projects, backpacking, and many more ideas.

The purpose of the first workshop attended by Mrs. Eppinger, entitled "Effective Girl Planning," was to help participants learn more about developing girls' ideas and translating them into action. The emphasis was on practical and effective ways to give girls an active share in planning, carrying out, and evaluating their own program. It was brought out that all girls like to go camping, but the downfall of the program is that most leaders don't like to take them camping.

Girls Like Camping

It was brought out that girls like to go camping because they like to help others, to make new friends, to learn and use new skills, and to sing. They like campfires, crafts, out-of-door cooking, and primitive camping. It was emphasized that the girls like to go as often as possible. Part of this was learned during a panel discussion in which six Senior and Intermediate scouts of the Seattle area took part.

Mrs. Eppinger's second workshop was on financing the camping program, with a view to give those attending a working knowledge of financing and operating several council camp sites.

The three attending from the Rogue Valley will now put the information gained at the conference into action to help the local council plan a better over-all camping program, it is reported. They will be able to help an inexperienced leader take her girls camping for the first time; to use Senior Scouts in the camping program; will stress junior camping, day camping and troop camping.

Parents Attend Capping Rites

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hopkins, 113 North Ross lane, have returned after being in Portland where they attended the recent capping ceremonies at the University of Oregon School of Nursing when their daughter, Miss Shirley E. Hopkins, received her nursing cap.

The ceremony, when the nursing students also make the Florence Nightingale pledge, signifies the acceptance of the students by the school and the young women then enter the patient-care phase of their training.

Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins also attended the reception given for the students, relatives and friends following the ceremony.

Miss Hopkins is a Medford High school graduate and attended Southern Oregon college for a year. She entered nurses training in September.

Officers Named For Yreka Club

Yreka — New officers were elected for Yreka Methodist Wingeders Couples club at their meeting November 10.

Preceding a business meeting held at the church, a progressive dinner was attended by 60 members. The dinner began at the Halbert Smith home where hors d'oeuvres were served. The Smiths were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. James McAdams.

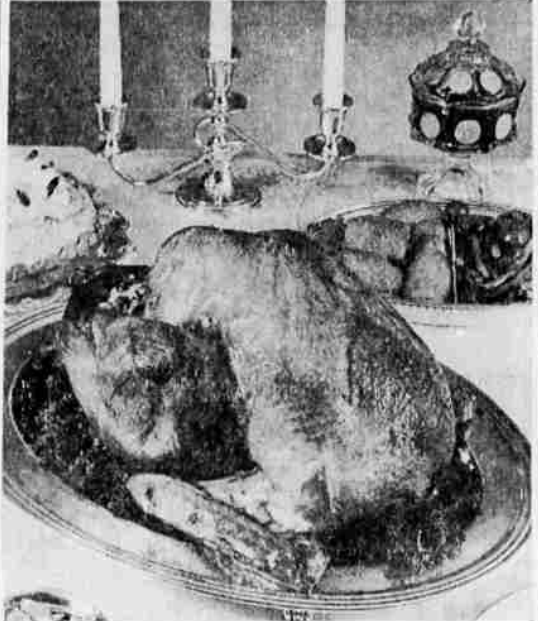

The salad course was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Elliott; sharing hosting duties with the Elliotts were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Weddle and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Eisea.

The group then gathered at the church for the entree. Serving on this committee were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Beckwith, Mr. and Mrs. Alec Stephenson, and Mr. and Mrs. Hartsel Gray.

The business meeting was conducted with Mr. and Mrs. Russell Beckwith elected to be the new pilots. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Johnson are copilots, Mr. and Mrs. Lester McConahie, flight engineers; Mr. and Mrs. George Wacker, navigators, and Mr. and Mrs. Halbert Smith, crew chiefs.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Preece was the next stop where dessert was served.

Assisting the Preecees were Dr. and Mrs. Ken Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. Wacker and Mr. and Mrs. LaRue Payne.

Every cook wants her Thanksgiving turkey to arrive on the table a beautiful golden brown, oozing with juice and tender to cut with a fork. Although many have a favorite method for roasting turkey, home economists suggest that perfect results can be obtained by roasting the fowl in a foil tent.

Roast Turkey With Foil Tent Method

Every cook wants her Thanksgiving turkey to arrive on the table a beautiful golden brown, oozing with juice and tender enough to cut with a fork.

Although you probably have a favorite method for roasting turkey, here's one which home economists guarantee will give you perfect results. It's called the "foil tent" method.

You simply tear off a large sheet of aluminum foil, preferably the 18-inch width, and fit it tent fashion over the bird just before it goes in the oven. With a super-strength foil tent over the turkey during the entire roasting period, you need not baste. If inspection shows the bird is getting too brown in spots you simply push the foil down over darkened areas.

Naturally, for even browning and cooking, the turkey should be trussed. When the bird is stuffed with approximately three-quarters cup of stuffing per pound of turkey, you close the abdominal opening with skewers and a cord. Insert skewers from side to side, spacing evenly. Lace with sturdy cord as you would high-button shoes. A skewer above and through the tail helps to hold the cord in place.

If there is a bridge of skin at the abdominal opening, push the drumsticks underneath to hold securely. If not, fasten the legs to the body with cord. With one or two more skewers, you can attack the neck skin to the back.

Six perfectly-sized skewers are now packaged in 18-inch heavy duty aluminum foil, to assist you with the trussing job.

When you place the bird in the roaster, be sure to brush it with cooking fat or butter, then top it with the foil tent. Preheat the oven to 325 degrees. Cooking times are as follows: turkey 8-12 pounds, 4-5 hours; meat thermometer reading, 190 to 195 degrees; turkey, 12-15 pounds, 5-6 hours; meat thermometer reading, 190 to 195 degrees.

If you would like to have enough stuffing to accompany the meat platter on its third and fourth trips around the table, put the extra bread mixture in another sheet of super-strength aluminum foil. It bakes in the oven during the last 30 minutes of meal preparation.

Add Juice

Before closing the stuffing package with a tight double-fold, add several tablespoons of turkey juice which you can scoop from the bottom of the roaster. This gives the extra stuffing a turkey flavor.

Here are several other helpful hints to keep in mind for all holiday turkey feasts:

—When about two-thirds of the allotted cooking time has passed, cut the cord or band of skin holding the drumsticks to release legs. This permits heat to reach the inside thigh.

—Fowl is done when the fleshy part of the drumstick feels very soft when pressed between the fingers or when the drumstick will move readily up and down.

—Plan cooking schedule so fowl is out of the oven 15 to 30 minutes before time to serve. This gives the meat a chance to absorb juices. It will also make the bird easier to carve.

Remove Stuffing

—Before refrigerating leftovers, remove all stuffing from cavities. Wrap in aluminum foil for easy reheating.

—An uncooked stuffed bird or a roasted stuffed bird should never be frozen.

—To make perfect gravy, skim all of the fat layer from the drippings. For two cups of gravy, measure three tablespoons of fat into a saucepan. Add three tablespoons of flour and blend. Pour juices left in roast pan after removing fat into measuring cup; add sufficient water to make two cups.

—Return to roast pan. Cook over low heat, stirring until all the brown residue in the pan has been loosened. Add this liquid slowly to the flour mixture in the saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until slightly thickened and bubbly. Season with salt and pepper.

'Goodbye My Fancy' Play Scheduled by SOC Players

Ashland — "An ardent, adult play with laughter on the surface, and underneath a fierce almost frightening cry for common sense," was a N.Y. Journal American reviewer's description of "Goodbye My Fancy." This play has been selected as the Southern Oregon College Players' fall-quarter production, November 29 and 30 at 8:15 p.m. and December 1 at 2 p.m. in Church Hill auditorium. The announcement was made by Dr. Dorothy Stopp, professor of speech and drama and director.

This comedy by Fay Kanin played 446 performances on Broadway and was included in the Best Plays of 1948-49. Since its theme continues to be timely, it has been produced by many college and community theaters since the Broadway run.

Liberal Congresswoman

The heroine, Agatha Reed, a liberal congresswoman played by Joan Ricketts, Medford, has been invited to return to her college to receive an honorary degree. She welcomes the opportunity to return to her school and to renew her acquaintance with James Merrill, portrayed by Neil Green, Central Point, her history teacher who has since become college president.

She finds the week end far different from the one she had anticipated because the documentary anti-war film she has brought with her arouses questions which are not easily answered.

The week end is further complicated by the appearance of Matt Cole, Dave O'Donnell, Klamath Falls, whom she had known during the years that she had been a war correspondent. Both men are in love with the charming woman legislator and the audience does not know her decision until the final curtain.

Returns

Mrs. Lulu Ahart has returned to her home at 2335 North Pacific highway from a trip to Caruthersville, Mo., and Tiptonville, Tenn. where she visited relatives and friends whom she had not seen for many years.
