

Dog's Safety Is Must in Toys

It's always disappointing to a dog owner to buy his pet a Christmas gift toy, only to find that Fido won't even look at it. Bob Bartos, manager of the Friskies Research Kennels, says that whether your pet is a pup or an old-time, it's best to know just what type of plaything he'll enjoy.

If you're buying the gift for your own dog, you probably know what he likes, but be careful that the toy will not be harmful. Steer clear of wooden objects or toys that are apt to splinter, and even though a toy may catch your eye or your fancy — remember that it's for Fido to enjoy.

Try to match the size of the dog to the size of the toy. The one exception to this rule can be a "tug-of-war" toy. Whether the dog is a toy poodle or a big beagle, a tug toy with which he can play tug-of-war with his master is generally a hit.

A chemical bone is a perennial favorite of pooches and is available in sizes for every breed, so buy the size that Fido can cope with. Latex toys also come in a wide assortment of sizes and amusing shapes, such as hands, all types of cute animals, vegetables, and balls.

If Fido is afraid of squeaky noises, choose one without a squeaker. For puppies who are teething, squeaky toys are safest, as puppies generally chew, and the small metal squeaker may get lodged in his throat. Usually, the teether is safest with a leather toy.

Whatever the toy of your choice for a Christmas present for Fido, Bob Bartos advises that the first thought should be for the dog's safety.

In rural areas of Germany a family might observe the old custom of keeping hearth fires burning through 12 nights from Christmas until Jan. 6, the Epiphany or Twelfthnight.
