NUCLEAR BLAST
Washington - (UPI) - The Atomic Energy Commission touched off another underground nuclear blast in Nevada Tuesday. The AEC said the test, yielding power equivalent to less than 20,000 tons of TNT, was its 57th announced test since the series was started in September 1961.

According to an advertisement, a woman says, "I was afraid of my own shadow until I read Elis Maxwell's Etiquette Book . . . Now I'm the most popular woman in town."

See there what you can do by just remembering to remove your elbow from your cup after stirring your coffee with it.
