Supermarket Manager Hopes Vicar's Prayers Have Eliminated Ghost

Long Willamettean, England-born Derek Bird opened up shop at Britain's first supermarket in Medford, has stopped shifting his groceries and disappeared.

"I feel a happier man," said Bird, manager of the local supermarket. "I think the vicar has well and truly laid the ghost."

The "ghost" started its tricks on Monday last week and has appeared, says Bird, in the form of a white flash. It is said to have moved packets, tins and a customer's order book and smashed the clock on the store wall when challenged about it to do so.

Assistant Manager Adrien Bramley, 16, fainted for the sixth time in eight days Monday with his 20th supernatural experience.

Removal of the window sill of some bicarbonate of soda placed on a shelf a few moments earlier by Bird. She and chief assistant Mrs. Joyce Stania refused to go back to work until "the thing" was destroyed.

Bird thought it was about time the Rev. Cecil Roberts, vicar of the village, was informed. So he closed the supermarket and went off to the vicar's house on Monday night in the shop's storeroom, saying prayers for 15 minutes in the presence of Bird and Mrs. Stania. They hope it got rid of "the thing," which some locals hold was the ghost of a woman who died 200 years ago.

Everything in place. Bird said today was the first time in nine days that he had gone into the supermarket and found everything in the right place. Mrs. Stania, too, said she felt a happier man. Miss Bramley was having a few days off to believe.

The vicar said he believed faulty electrical wiring accounted for the lights flashing on and off without apparent human intervention. But the other incidents could only be supernatural, he said.

Humble Lease Application OK'd

Salem — The Oregon Land Board has approved the lease removal of the Humble Oil & Refining Company's application for an oil lease on 302 acres located within the Humble Oil & Refining Company's Willamette river in Marion and Polk counties.

The 10-year lease calls for annual rental of 30 cents per acre, with drilling required within three years.

Upon discovery and production, the lease calls for a 12 1/2 per cent royalty on oil in commercial quantities and 8 1/2 per cent long ton for sulphur produced.

The agreement requires the Humble Oil & Refining Co. to drill to a depth of at least 2,300 feet unless excused under the lease terms.

Surprise! Female Hops Are Better for 'That Little' Plant

It might be surprising for you to learn that it is the hops from the female plant that are produced in cones like corn, dried and used in making beverages and medicines. You wouldn't think hops had anything to do with such a thing, but female hops are better for giving a panicked "Hop" to the much-publicized beverage.

When the hop plant is in full fruit, just about anyone can walk up to a hop vine and tell at a glance whether it is a male or female plant. Those hops that spend their infancy and early life on a female plant have a noticeable difference. But little hop plants fruit is called raceme. The male hop plant produces its fruit as a panicle raceme. A raceme is a form of flower head in which small flowers are borne on short stalks radiating from a common axis, similar to the blossoms of the lily of the valley. "Hop" is most important.

For the future of the hop industry, it's probably more important how they grow than what they do in a beverage or medicine. Hops have come to be big business. We hear a great deal more about this product than how it behaves, or what some of its rather unusual characteristics are. It would be quite impossible to listen to radio or television news for a short period of time, without hearing many times that "it's the hops that make it better." But little of this is said about hops, or why they are what they are.

For anything as important as hops it's funny we hear so little about the habits and behavior of this crop, twin, but hop vine. It is really robust

FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychologist, a clergyman, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family council meeting. The council deals with problems, major and minor, of parents, children, and young adults and social workers. The council is a non-profit organization (Incorporated in General Fraternity Corp.)

Mr. H. A. — I'm shocked at the casual way their son talks about sex.

Fred A. — At least he'll never consider sex a "dirty" topic as I did.

Mr. H. A. — My wife and I are here on a visit to our son and his family. We live in Utah, but Fred keeps in touch with us regularly and we see each other once a year, taking turns on the travel.

This time I've spent a few afternoons and evenings with Greg, my 10-year-old grandson. And I was way out over my depth when our talk got around to health. Imagine a kid that age telling me syphilis is still a problem and boys must be careful. What happened to the birds and bees? I know Fred's wife is French and maybe more casual about the facts of life than most American women. But someone had better put the brakes on Greg's talk before he starts on women. But someone had better put the brakes on Greg's talk before he starts on women. But someone had better put the brakes on Greg's talk before he starts on women.

Fred A. — Thanks to my wife's natural and relaxed attitude about sex, we can talk about it at home. Greg's mother, Mrs. H. A., has something in the paper or on TV that raises the topic. We don't have to discuss each other with that knowing look which says, "Be careful. Change the subject."

I was brought up feeling that whenever the conversation stopped abruptly it was because of sex. And that it was bad for a child. Naturally, I spent many hours in the library and in other kind of places filling in the blanks for myself. Filling them all wrong, I might add.

The Council: All depends upon young Greg's "Trakers." When it comes to spouting his sophisticated sex knowledge, and those brakes must be supplied just as assiduously as is the information. Let the letter be treated on its own merits, value, or as an attention-getter. Obviously Greg picked the wrong kid — Grandpa — for a discussion of venereal disease. So Brake No. 1, which Fred and his wife must use, is Tatie. Greg will learn that sex has a place, a time and a with-whom. Tatie will decide them.

Fred is aware of other brakes which belong side by side with sex education. He mentions the moral one. Mr. A., despite his usual respect for his grandson's precocious talk, may be reassured to learn that his own son has not yet had a response to the respectful attitude toward the pre-emptive process. Even if he didn't get the facts at home, Fred got the main "message" — that the sex act is not to be done with a girl. Our caution, however, we'd like to offer Fred. In your determination to do the opposite of what was done to you by way of early sex-education, are you leading Greg with more than he's really ready for? Thus another brake would be appropriate. While some topics may enlighten the child, others would alarm and worry him at his stage of life.

Also, a too-matter-of-fact exposition about so elemental and emotional a subject can destroy the aura of poetry that should surround it. So we suggest that Fred continue to include sex subjects in his talks with Greg, along with football and homework and now removal, but that he know where to stop so as not to overburden the boy.

As for Mr. A., he is to be thanked for raising the question of taste. While it's all right for Greg to know what he knows, he must be careful not to show what he knows to the "wrong" person. But it's good to learn that some parents aren't leaving this instructional job to the movies, comic books and whispering playmates.

State Income Tax Forms To Be Mailed

Salem — Mailing of state income tax return cards will begin after Christmas, the Oregon State Tax commission said Tuesday.

A new form, for information, has been prepared for persons wishing to include store issues in their returns, the commission said.

One card, a worksheet and a simplified set of instructions will be mailed to every city and rural address in the state, the commission said.
