

Battery-Powered Christmas Gifts Need Attention

Chicago - 875 - About 5 million youngsters will play with several million battery-powered toys and hobby kits during the holidays. And, at the time or another, many of these toys will be stalled for lack of that prosaic household item - the flashlight battery. Even the most elaborate battery-powered toy is about as exciting as a rag doll when the batteries go dead and the supply of fresh ones is exhausted. Burgess Battery company offers these simple tips to help avoid such domestic tragedies:

When installing batteries in toys or hobby kits, make certain the cells are inserted with terminals in correct position and that metal contact points on the toy are clean and not bent out of line. Periodically encourage youngsters to give powered toys a "check-up": this gives the batteries a chance to recuperate, semi-recharge and gain back some of their power.

When a battery-powered toy or hobby kit is put away, remove the batteries and place them on the shelf beside it, otherwise the switch on the toy may leak current and accidentally drain the batteries. Under no circumstances should batteries be removed from an emergency lantern or flashlight and used in a toy.

For long-term storage of flashlight batteries, wrap several in heavy paper and place in the freezer of the family refrigerator. Only frozen flashlight batteries will stay fresh indefinitely. To thaw, simply remove from the freezer and let the package warm up to room temperature.

Munching Moviegoer Is Upheld in Court

Buffalo, N. Y. - Moviegoers now have official permission to munch those 18-inch submarine sandwiches (theater) with them while they watch motion pictures. City Judge Joseph P. Kuzma recently upheld that right when he dismissed a disorderly conduct charge against Louis Crenshaw, 36, who was arrested in the Paramount theater here after refusing to leave with his submarine sandwich.
