

N. Y. Publisher Sees Necessity To Reduce Staff

New York (AP)—New York Daily News Publisher F. M. Flynn said today that if the 12-day-old strike of printers continues, the newspaper "will have no alternative but to further reduce our present staff."

In a letter to the daily's 5,500 employees, Flynn also said the News might have to increase either the price of the paper to readers or "raise advertising rates . . . more than three times the amount they have ever been raised in the past at one time."

Bertram A. Powers, president of the Local 6 of the International Typographers Union, was not immediately available for comment.

The publisher said it is inevitable that such increases would drive some advertising to other media, "resulting in less work for newspaper employees."

"Another alternative might be to increase the price of the News to the reader," Flynn said. "Since these increases would have to be shared with news dealers and wholesalers, a Sunday paper priced at 25 cents or a daily paper selling at 8 cents would be needed to pay higher wage costs." And, he added, this probably would cause circulation to drop.

Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz said Tuesday that the strike might continue for the rest of the winter.

150 Million Board Feet of Timber Is Ready for Auction

Portland — As of Dec. 1, bureau of land management foresters in Oregon have readied for sale 150 million board feet of salvage timber from the Columbus Day windstorm, BLM Oregon and Washington Director Russell E. Getty announced today.

"Several million board feet of salvage timber have already been sold," Getty said. "The remainder of the 150 million board feet cruised and appraised so far will be put up for sale during December and January."

BLM timber cruisers have been working on a crash basis measuring and calculating the volume of timber that can be recovered from the tangled patches of blown down trees scattered over Pacific Northwest public lands after the Oct. 12 storm.

Lay Out Timber Sales
Other BLM foresters have been putting in long hours of overtime laying out timber sales, developing access road plans, and appraising timber values so the storm damaged trees can be placed quickly on the market.

The cruise and appraisal and sale preparation work will continue unabated for the next several months in an all-out attempt to have all the salvage timber sold or ready for sale by the end of 1963.

The 150 million board feet of timber presently sold or ready for sale includes 20 million board feet in the BLM

Coos Bay district, 45 million board feet in the BLM Eugene district, 6 million board feet in the BLM Medford district, 40 million board feet in the BLM Roseburg district, and 30 million board feet in the BLM Salem district.

Billion Board Feet
It is estimated that the Oct. 12 storm knocked down a billion board feet of timber on BLM managed lands in Oregon. This must all be taken out of the woods by the spring of 1964 in order to avoid an epidemic beetle infestation.

Getty said the emergency regulations waivers extended to BLM by Secretary Stewart Udall have expedited the timber salvage operation. They give BLM field officials authority to extend existing timber sale contracts, negotiate new salvage sales, adjust advertising periods and institute other emergency measures to complete the salvage operation on schedule.

Notification Is Received of Two Disaster Counties

Grants Pass — Notification was received by the Grants Pass office from Robert Pierce, state director of Farmers Home Administration, that Jackson and Josephine counties are designated a disaster area following the recent flood damage, according to Eugene M. Denney, area supervisor.

This designation was made on the basis of a preliminary report with a request for more specific damage details when the information is available.

Any established farm operator is eligible for an emergency loan if he has suffered substantial damage due to the disaster, if he is unable to obtain credit from other sources to continue his normal operations and if he has reasonable prospects for success. The loans must be adequately secured.

Loans are made for annual operating expense, replacement of machinery or livestock lost as a result of the storm, purchase of essential home furnishings damaged or destroyed, replacement or repair of buildings, bridges, fences, irrigation systems, leveling land and clearing of debris made necessary as a direct result of the storm.

Emergency loans cannot be made to refinance debts or to compensate applicants for their losses. Interest is 3 percent with repayment period depending on purpose for which a loan is made and available security, Denney said.

There may be some owners of small units or homesteads who do not have adequate farm income to qualify for emergency loans who need assistance for replacement or repair of homes or service buildings. These individuals may qualify for assistance under the regular Rural Housing loan program, he added.

Information and applications may be obtained by writing to the local Farmers Home Administration office, post office box 311, Grants Pass, or by calling GREENWOOD 6-3260, Grants Pass.

Peoria, Ill. — Jack Roloff, a truck driver hauling bulk milk tanks, was taken on a ride today by his cargo. When he suddenly stopped his truck, two big tanks slid into the cab and burst, washing him off the seat and out the door on a crest of hundreds of gallons of milk.
