Letter by Washington Presented To University

Charlottesville, Va. — (UPI) — A letter by George Washington written at the age of 20 to the father of a girl he sought to court has been given to the University of Virginia.

The letter, valued at $5,000, was presented to the university's library collection of historical documents by Clem D. Johnson of Roanoke.

Washington wrote the letter in 1752 to the father of Betsy Fauntleroy, 16, of Richmond county, announcing his intentions to court the girl as soon as he recovered from an attack of pleurisy.

Young Washington, who had been rejected once by the girl, said in the letter: "Sir: I should have been down long before this, but my business in Frederick detained me longer than I expected, and immediately on my return from thence, I was taken with a violent pleurisy (cq), which has reduced me very low; but purpose (cq), as soon as I recover my strength, to wait on Miss Betsy, in hopes of a revocation of the former

Dr. Robert Turner, Ashland, chairman of the Jackson county unit of the society, stated that these will be among the 177,000 Americans who will be saved from the disease during the coming year. This estimate is based on the current cure rate of one in every three cases.

Statisticians predict, however, that about 224 new cases of cancer will be diagnosed for the first time in the county. Of these, about 119 persons will die.

To ward off the threat of cancer, Dr. Turner said, residents should learn the danger signals of cancer, and be sure to have a complete yearly physical examination. The cure rate of one in three is a definite indication of progress in conquest of the disease, he added. Twenty-five years ago the rate was only one in seven.

CIVILIANS PRAISED Washington (UPI) — Navy Secretary Fred Korh Thursday praised 120 civilian employees of the U. S. naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, who remained at their jobs throughout the Cuban crisis. In a message of commendation, Korh said the workers demonstrated their devotion to duty.
