

Oregon Tax Court Adopts Circuit Plan

Salem — A circuit schedule for the Oregon tax court for the 1963-65 biennium has been announced by Oregon Tax Court Judge Peter Gunnar.

At present cases are scheduled in various counties as they come to issue.

Judge Gunnar said the circuit schedule is designed to save money on travel expenses, be less of an inconvenience to the various circuit courts, and give tax practitioners the advantage of being able to plan their schedules more in advance.

Under the circuit scheduling, the tax court will be in

Architect Meetings Completed on Plans

Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) and his group returned to Oregon Monday afternoon.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) announced Monday that architect conferences with General Services Administration (GSA) on plans for the new Medford post office have been completed.

Morse was advised of the completion by Medford architect Robert Keeney, who, together with Walter Marcus, Medford, Robert Marcus, Eugene, and Robert Wilmsen, Eugene, has been conferring with GSA on the building plans.

Morse said Keeney and his associates will now proceed to the working stage of preparing drawings which will be used in advertising construction bids.

GSA must approve the drawings, however, before they can be advertised for bids, Morse said. Keeney and

The Knee of Necessity

Shape of Legislative Ship Coming More and More To Resemble Yacht

By DICK WEST
Washington — (UPI) — Just before the opening of a new congressional session, I customarily make a tour of the legislative premises to see if everything is ship-shape. The shape of the ship is coming more and more to resemble a yacht.

West

If our lawmakers won't exactly be sitting in the lap of luxury, they certainly have moved a long way above the knee of necessity.

Each year I find that the interior of the Capitol has undergone further refinement for the comfort and convenience of those who must bear the burdens of statecraft.

Eventually, I suppose, they will install an automatic statecraft burden bearer. Meantime, here are some of the improvements I noted on this year's tour:

—All cars on the Senate's branch line subway have now been equipped with rubber wheels. This will enable the Senators to glide along in swanlike serenity.

The original steel wheels, being somewhat rough and noisy, were deemed unsuitable for vehicles that the Senate chaplain had christened "swift chariots of democracy." They made the cars more like "bumpy buggies of bureaucracy."

—The expensive marble floor in a corridor of the new east front has been covered with a carpet so thick and soft that walking on it makes me feel like I'm on a pogo stick.

This presumably is for the benefit of congressmen who have tender feet. The next step, I assume, will be to cover the carpet with plastic.

—The signal lights in all of the Capitol elevators have been changed. They previously marked the floors by letters (F, P and G). Now the floor are numbered (1, 2 and 3). The elevators, however, still go up and down.

—The bell system used to summon members of Congress for quorum calls and such has been augmented by panels of starry lights. For each bell that rings, a star shines. This presumably is for the benefit of congressmen who are hard of hearing.

The panels have so many stars they resemble the shoulder board of an admiral in the Panamanian navy. For example, when a congressman sees five stars in the east, he knows the House has recessed.

—The airline ticket counter, operated by a couple of good looking girls, has been moved from the main corridor on the first floor to a less conspicuous spot off the east front lobby.

This presumably is for the benefit of congressmen who would rather look at statues than at pretty girls. But some of us who work around the Capitol do not regard it as an improvement at all.

We are challenged You are summoned

Every newspaper headline makes it clear that this is a testing time for Americans.

The Cuban crisis is one of a long and continuing series of challenges we face.

At a time of challenge, the American future depends upon the American people: what we think, what we do, how we rise as individuals to the task of meeting great challenge with great achievement.

We each have a part to play.

Yours is described in the timely new citizen action guide "Challenge to Americans" offered here which puts the crisis of the moment in the true perspective of the struggle which is likely to continue for years. The world situation is far more complex than the emergencies of daily headlines.

As President Kennedy says:

"We are challenged by the revolution of communism. The Communists seek power through conspiracy, terror, aggression and deceit. They exploit and corrupt legitimate revolutionary forces, scavenging on poverty, ignorance, despair.

"And also we are challenged by the revolution of hope in continents long captive to stagnation and despair.

"We are challenged by the revolution in science and technology bringing new boons and new dangers to humanity.

"We are challenged by the revolution in international relationships. Nation has begun to work with nation to solve mankind's common problems. New international bodies are exploring uncharted paths of world cooperation in the interests of world-wide peace, justice, and freedom."

In an age of revolution, we dare not forget that we are heirs to a continuing, liberating revolution. We dare not fail to press that revolution forward, to perfect democracy at home, to make it an example to the world. Only in earning our freedoms over again can we strengthen them. Only by extending our freedoms to all mankind can we preserve them.

This we can and must do as individuals. We must accept our responsibilities as we do our rights, the two are today inseparable. We must look upon national challenge—whether it is an immediate challenge in Cuba, Berlin, or Asia, or the continuing longer range challenge—as a personal opportunity to do something important for our country. We must seek to excel, to stand up, to stand out: in our private lives, our homes, our work, communities, schools, in all places, in all things!

A good way to begin is with a mature understanding of what we are up against and what you personally can do about it. You will find exactly that in the timely new booklet, "Challenge to Americans." Endorsed by Presidents Kennedy and Eisenhower, approved by the Department of State, it is an indispensable information and action guide for the purposeful citizen.

We need many such citizens. We need them now. We need you—your value as an individual, your power as the source of our national strength, your aid in deciding our common future.

Your copy of "Challenge to Americans" is free. You can be learning from it and you can be acting upon it in a matter of days. Write CHALLENGE, Box 1776, New York 17, New York.

"We must match great challenges with great achievements—with constant striving for excellence in all things. With a mature understanding of the magnitude, complexity, and probable long duration of the struggle we face. Let each of us resolve to do something extra for our country in this period of trial."

President John F. Kennedy

"The important thing is to do something, and not to excuse oneself with the thought that 'I can do so little it will make no difference.' It does make a difference. America is people—not things. If each of us does his own particular job a little better, and raises his personal standards a little higher, our country will gain in strength and in character."

Dwight D. Eisenhower
