By ELEANOR WIESE

Now that King Football has made his seasonal abdication from the national sports throne, in the interim before King Baseball takes over TV viewers will be meeting some lesser sports kings.

Golf, bowling, roller skating and boxing will be seen regularly, while Sports Spectacular, Wide World of Sports and Sports International will present less familiar athletic events, from ballooning over the Alps, mountaineering and high diving, to surf board riding and barrel jumping.

However the emphasis seems to be on golf. "Wonderful World of Golf," which premieres today at 4 p.m. on KMED-TV, will match top American golfers against leading foreign professionals on some of the world's most demanding and beautiful courses.

Today America's Gene Littler and the former English champion Eric Brown play on the King's course at Glen Eagles, Scotland, a 6,644-yard, par 71 course. It has massive greens — the 18th alone covers a half acre — ominous sand bunkers, rolling, tumbling fairways and "an abundance of gorse, bracken and heather that creates difficult lies to punish wild shots."

On "Challenge Golf" today at noon on KBES-TV (a repeat of Saturday's show), Arnold Palmer and Gary Player continue in match play against challenging professionals.

The difference in this show is that Palmer himself provides the narration. His golf bag is wired for sound so that his comments and Player's are recorded — and later censored. It seems a champion uses the same epithets as a duffer might upon mauling a shot.

THE WEEK IN CALIFORNIA

Bay Area Murder Trials Draw Attention Throughout State

By United Press International

Two sensational San Francisco Bay area murder trials drew wide attention last week.

In San Jose, former Hungarian freedom fighter Dr. Geza de Kaplany, shaken by pictures of the acid-scarred body of his wife, switched his plea from innocent to innocent by reason of insanity. He was accused of bathing the body of his bride of five weeks, former model and showgirl Hajna de Kaplany, in acid last August in their San Jose apartment. She died five weeks later.

In San Francisco, the supply of available jurors grew slimmer in the murder trial of Ralph and Iva Kroeger, and so did the supply of jurors challenges permitted to defense and prosecution attorneys.

The Kroegers were accused of the double murder of Jay and Mildred Arneson, former owners of a Santa Rosa motel. The decomposed bodies of the Arnesons, who had been strangled, were found last August buried beneath the cement basement of the Kroegers' San Francisco home.

Elsewhere, there were these developments:

Legislature: As the California state legislature concluded the second week of its 1963 session a partisan battle was shaping up over Democratic plans to take the nonpartisan ship out of local elections.

Assemblyman Phillip Burton, D-San Francisco, said "We want to bring local government a measure of party responsibility." Burton said he planned to introduce a bill requiring party labels on candidates for county boards of supervisors.

Also introduced during the week were a far-reaching program to liberalize unemployment compensation benefits; a program to help the "disadvantaged" youngster by establishment of a "compensatory education" program, and an administration-backed bill to finance special veterans programs from interest money from veterans bonds. The state welfare study commission recommended a far-reaching program to grant liberalized benefits to 20,000 dis-

Art Workshop Set in Medford

Fifty teachers from Medford public schools will attend an art workshop Jan. 29, 30 and 31 at Medford High school, according to Dr. Leonard B. Mayfield, superintendent.

A free educational service provided by Binney and Smith, Inc., manufacturers of Crayola crayons and other school art supplies, the workshop will be conducted by Mrs. Nancy Watkins, who has taught extensively and holds a degree from Texas Women's university.

Teachers will spend 15 hours of their own time learning more about modern creative art education and some of its materials and tools. They will learn by doing and trying out the art techniques presented by Mrs. Watkins.

Techniques will include some of the uses of crayons, water colors, poster paints, finger paints, colored chalks, and modeling clay. Simple craft techniques also will be shown, giving teachers an opportunity to work with paper paste and other materials to gain three-dimensional effects. All of the art workshop activities will be experiences which the teachers can relate to their own classroom teaching.

School officials responsible for the workshop arrangements, in addition to Dr. Mayfield, include Elliott Becken, assistant superintendent.

Joint installation ceremonies for 1963 officers of the Medford Board of Realtors, Women's Council, and Multiple Listing Service were held at the Rogue Valley Country club with H. O. Martin acting as master of ceremonies and Miles Doran, program chairman.

The Realtors' slate of officers included Don Whalin, president; Don Herried, vice president; and Herb Leonnig, secretary-treasurer. The other members of the board of directors are Keith Bates, Ken Callison, N. A. Meade and Mary Fasel.

Installed as Women's Council officers were Ann Rice, president; Midge Conrad, vice president; and Myrna Adams, secretary-treasurer.

Several of the same names appeared in the list of new officers for the Multiple Listing Service, Inc. They are Ken Callison, chairman; Ellen Barker, vice chairman, and W. T. Martin reviewed some of the history of the Medford Board of Realtors, first organized in April, 1929, with C. S. Butterfield as president. The present board, he said, was incorporated June 5, 1951, by E. L. Bartholomew, Clark J. Walker and Douglas L. Pickell. Of the 13 past presidents serving since formal records were kept, one has moved away, two have died and 10 are still active in real estate, Martin noted.
