"Who really cares?" is a question pondered by an Applegate Valley woman who discovered an injured dog lying beside the highway a week ago today...

"This woman blanketed the dog, fed him as the day passed, gave him water, even aspirin tucked in his food, and cared for him until the dog control officer came for him in the late afternoon..."

"A report from the dog pound says the animal had an injured leg and shoulder, but is recovering. Those concerned with the incident are anxious to find the owner of the dog..."

Lions of Central Point Hear Talk on State Government

Central Point — The Central Point Lions club met earlier this month at the Pioneer cafe on Pine st., but because of the fog, the business meeting was of short duration.

Following dinner, members heard Robert Oslund, tax expert employed by the Georgia Pacific Corp. at Camp White, relate the numerous problems of financing state government.

Oslund listed the types of proposals that will be presented to the state legislature for funds needed.

Transportation is the big problem. According to Mr. Lewellyn, superintendent, children on the far ends of the bus runs would spend approximately 90 minutes riding morning and evening.

The question for which no one seemed to have an answer was: will the elementary school children have to ride the earlier and later high school bus or will extra buses be added to haul the grade school children to Tiller and Days Creek?

There will be a reorganization hearing before the rural board at the Days Creek school Jan. 24.

Mrs. John Wilson, president of the Tiller-Drew PTA, informed members that the revised by-laws had been returned with the Gold Seal and a letter of commendation on their excellency.

Mrs. Connie Brady, chairman of the founder's day program, reminded those present that the February meeting would be devoted to honoring the PTA founders.

in 1909, the Wrights in 1912. Mrs. Tex is a native, having spent her entire lifetime of 73 years here. The women recalled the days of the horsedrawn carriages and fire wagons. There were no paved streets. The main street was then Manzanita, and along it were mostly saloons. The first Faber's grocery store was located at the present site of Pauline's Dress shop and was a joint venture known as "Faber & McDonald". McDonald was the town banker.

Flour sold in those days for $1.50 a hundred pounds. The post office furnished living quarters for the postmaster, Guy Tex, and his family, as well as ample room for the local mail. Tex served as postmaster for the city 28 years. Law was maintained by the town marshal.

Mason noted that there is still an ordinance in the city charter that reads, "No one is allowed to ride a horse on the sidewalks." Central Point has undergone quite a change, with new supermarkets, post office, city hall, schools, paved streets, churches, countless homes and a modern fire department.

This year, Mason says he hopes to see the new First National bank erected across the street from the city hall. Another project is sewer, water and paving improvements. More classrooms are needed for the rapid increase in school enrollment. Greater progress is needed regarding the much needed city park and playground.

Summing up all the many items he would like to see accomplished, Mason remarked "In the final analysis, a town is only what the citizens make it, just an awful lot of time, work, planning. The full cooperation of the people is required."

Both men are in agreement that there is a possibility they will have something concrete to report to the members at the next regular meeting.

The pot-luck planned for January 28 has been postponed until February.

Relatives not presently connected with the creamery, but who were present as guests included Mr. and Mrs. Jim Deluca of Weed, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Belcastro of Weed, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Belcastro of San Francisco, Dr. and Mrs. James Lawson of Klamath Falls and Joe Deluca of Fullerton, Calif.

Proposed Cave Junction Post Office No 'Gift' From Morse, Aide Says

Cave Junction—The proposed $220,000 new post office for this city is not an "offer" or "gift" from Sen. Wayne Morse but rather a post office department proposal, a Morse aide has pointed out.

William Berg, Jr., administrative assistant to the senator, clarified the Cave Junction post office situation in a letter to the Washington, D.C. Evening Star.

His letter was a rebuttal to an earlier letter published by the newspaper from J. C. Abernathy, address not listed, which had implied that Sen. Morse was attempting to "give" the Cave Junction area a new post office.

Abernathy's letter in turn referred to an editorial in the Dec. 20 issue of the Illinois Valley News, which rejected the proposal of a new post office, voicing the opinion that the city did not need one, and that if federal money had to be spent in the area it would better be spent on an alternate project.

Berg's comment on the situation reported that Sen. Morse merely was advised on Dec. 14 that the General Services administration had sent a prospectus to the Senate and House public works committees for approval of 145 small public buildings, the Cave Junction post office among them.

The idea was initiated by the post office department, Berg said, after enactment of the Public Works Acceleration Act of 1962 and because the Cave Junction area is considered eligible for funds under the Area redevelopment program.

Jacksonville Bicycle Licenses Available Jacksonville — The city recorder, Mrs. Jean Hewlett, reminds Jacksonville youngsters that 1963 bicycle licenses will be available starting Tuesday at the recorder's office at Third and C sts. Fee for the licenses is 25 cents.

Clubs To Welcome Foreign Students

Montague — Some 40 students from many foreign countries attending the University of California in Berkeley are expected this week as guests of the Montague-Yreka Rotary clubs, according to the presidents, Tom Dickinson and Dr. Tom Preece.

The visitors, mostly doing graduate work in the American university in their chosen fields, feel it a privilege to be invited into the homes of the Rotary and a few non-Rotary families, which helps them get a truer picture of the way of life in the United States.

This is the tenth year for the combined enterprise of the sister city clubs. Chairmen for the program this year are S. A. (Pen) Messner and Jim McAdams of the Montague club and Paul Weimer and Hugh Welch of the Yreka club.

Anyone wishing to offer entertainment of any kind may get in touch with a Rotarian.

Other entertainment for the students will be offered by tours to the Siskiyou County Jail, Iron Gate dam, the museum in Yreka, the Ski Bowl on Mt. Shasta, the gold exhibit in the lobby of the courthouse, the various schools, mills and other businesses in the county.
