Summer Institute Set at Willamette

Salem - Applications of Northwest area teachers wishing to attend the Summer Institute of American Studies must be submitted to Willamette university prior to March 1. Dr. Theodore Shay, director of the institute, has announced.

Under a grant from the Coe Foundation of New York, Willamette will offer fellowships to selected high school teachers to attend the institute which will run five weeks beginning June 17.

Applicants must be teaching American History, American Government, American Problems or other appropriate social studies courses in high school at the time of their application.
