Additional Sulphide Meetings Planned

Cave Junction—Bruce Manley, attorney for the Cal-Ore Chrome Producers association, acted as chairman of the sulphides meeting held at the city hall here Sunday. Twenty-five persons attended the meeting to hear reports from the local committee.

The committees was set up by the association recently to compile data on sulphides and minerals in the area.

If sufficient resources can be found in the area, a federal government survey may be made, which could lead to establishment of a $3.5 million sulphide refinery and smelter in the Illinois Valley area.

Mrs. Lester Davenport reported eight applications had been received meeting the standard requirements. Application requirements are that reports be submitted on standard forms available at the Illinois Valley Chamber of Commerce or from the local committee, Ed Hare, Mrs. Murphy Hicks and Elwood Hussey.

Murphy Hicks reported seven applications submitted meeting standard requirements which include assayed sulphite samples.

Several mine owners were present and Wilmer Wheeler of Selma and Ed Hare reported on possible ore deposits. During floor discussion, a discussion, a point brought out was that a fair estimation of mass deposits would constitute concrete evidence as to deposits of sulphide in enough quantity to facilitate a plant.

Only when sufficient information is submitted on proper forms with assayed ore deposits samples will this be possible, it was noted. A subcommittee has been appointed to formulate organizational plans for a body of mine owners, primarily to gather with any one wishing to participate. It is intended to be an organization on the open stock basis with certain limitations and to be open to the power of voting.

The sub-committee will hold a meeting Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Cave Junction city hall. Plans at this time will be presented at an open meeting to be held on February 10 at 2 p.m. in the Cave Junction city hall.

Tablets

By R. E. NEALON
Mail Tribune Table Rock Correspondent

Part of today's column was crowded out of last week's Tablets by commercials:

The cold weather causing heavy feeding of cattle to keep them going reminds us of a hay story. This is not dated, but must have come out more than 40 years ago.

"National prominence has been gained by farmers of the Beagle and Sams Valley districts as the result of a story published a short time ago in the Mail Tribune. The item, submitted by R. E. Nealon, regular correspondent, told of the plan adopted by the farmers where hay hands were paid for their labor in hay. The story was sent out over the Associated Press wires, appeared on the front page of the Portland Oregonian, and in numerous newspapers of the nation, and today has made its way into the editorial columns of Collier's magazine, national weekly, published at Springfield, Ohio. The magazine report reads: 'Up in Sams Valley and Beagle, farming districts of Oregon, they're having a lot of experience with this back to fundamentals business the politicians are talking so much about. Field hands whose normal pay should be two dollars a day, while haying, are taking their wages in hay at six dollars a ton. All they have to do then is find out what to do with the hay.'"

This hay story is similar to one concerning the Willamette valley when Grover Cleveland was president. Farm hands were needed to harvest the crop of wheat, but farmers were short of money, so agreed to pay wages in wheat, at so much per bushel. G.P.H., a man who worked there for wheat and later resided here, told us that he got a bushel of wheat for a day's work, but had no transportation, so started out carrying his wheat to market, but found owing to the wheat surplus there was no market for it, so dumped half of it, and later all of it. For those who claim that supports cause the wheat surplus, we will note here that at that time supports weren't heard of.

Double Stork Shower

A double stork shower was given Tuesday, Jan. 22 at the home of Mrs. Ernest Smith, for Mrs. Elmer Maloney, and Mrs. Norman Mattson, with 20 ladies attending.

Several from here attended the funeral of Roy Carley in Medford, Saturday. Mr. Carley lived for many years in Sams Valley, where he operated a farm, and was prominent in grange and community affairs.

Bill Duggan, builder of smog-proof homes in the land of many oaks, is coming this way with his construction and has two modern homes under construction near the Wheeler farm, a two and a three-bedroom home.

There has been a noticeable shortage of jack rabbits locally for some time, but Charley Hoover says there are a good many in some parts of the valley. He says they come out to feed at night.

We wonder what has happened to the screech owls who used to do their screeching at night. We remember one time grandmother, who came from Georgia and was a bit suspicious, thought a screeching owl near the house would cause bad luck. But grandmother had a remedy for it. She would put the fire shovel in the fire place and as soon as it got red hot, the screech owl would move to a cooler spot. Mr. Clifford says the shortage of jack rabbits is not caused by their getting crossed with other breeds as they don't go in for integration.

Farmers Don't Want Loans

As far as we know, farmers in this area do not care to borrow money to repair damage done by the recent flood waters. Personally, we feel that these lands that are subject to flood damage every few years should not be appraised for as much as similar land not in flooding area. So much of the land in the flooded area was severely damaged in the recent flood, with fences taken out and twisted up into balls of wire. Holes, some 4 feet deep, were dug out and sand was carried away and debris piled over cultivated land. These floods happen every few years and will continue until we get flood control through the completion of the plan A dam.

Thought for the day—The man that struts on his job will have no following.

According to Cubmaster Robert Moore, invitations are being sent to the more than 50 boys and their parents who have expressed an interest in the cub scout program to attend this meeting. He emphasized that a personal invitation is not needed for a boy to become a cub scout and that all interested boys and parents are not only invited but are urged to attend.

Help Organize

Until now a few of the previously organized cub scout dens have been holding meetings with their former den mothers. Neighborhood Commissioner Orville Stone and Big Pines District Scout Executive George Brennen will attend the meeting and help organize the pack program for this year and set up new dens for boys interested in becoming cub scouts.

Central Point Lions Hear Program By Survival Expert

Central Point – The Central Point Lions club this week heard Odd Bjorke, survival expert, report on the way nature has seen fit to provide a means for any man to exist in the woods without food in the terms as human beings know it.

Bjorke said, "it is ridiculous for a person to even think of starving to death, for in the woods can be found ample food for human consumption, and any man can be taught to take care of himself."

Many readers will recall the trip last summer when Bjorke and companions spent a week living on the food supplied by the woods.

E. J. Christie, president, conducted the business meeting and the program. A report was heard from the recent board meeting. The board made plans for the next fund raising project, which will be a breakfast to be held sometime in February.

A committee was selected for the zone social, an affair that will be held in Central Point March 30, at which time all six neighboring zones clubs will be participating.

Committeemen are: Dale Bartley, chairman, Ben Mushaney, Herb Edwards, Dr. L. L. Rowe, Dale Miller, Jerry Wickes and Chet Ayres.
