Japanese Girl Enrolls At Medford High School

A 17-year-old Japanese girl has enrolled in Medford High school to extend the education which she received in a girls' school in Tokyo. Miko Hayashi was brought to this country by Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Bray, Lozier lane; she will be a guest in their home and the Brays will pay her school expenses as a gesture of international goodwill.

Miss Hayashi, who speaks excellent English, is enrolled in seven courses — homemaker, typing, United States history, biology, English, home nursing and geometry. The new student said last week that although she has little trouble in reading the work assigned, she is experiencing difficulty in understanding her teachers because of the various "accents" and manners of speaking. She is even having trouble understanding her host — Dr. Bray was born and reared in the southern part of the United States and although he has lived in the West for a long period, still talks with a southern accent.

Miss Hayashi learned much of her English from her mother, Mrs. Aiko Hayashi, a widow, who gives English lessons in her home. Miko has a younger brother. The father died two years ago.

Dr. Bray has long been interested in the Japanese and their culture. His son, William D. Bray, teaches Greek, Hebrew and theology in Kwansai Gakuin university in Japan, and Dr. Bray has spent some time in Japan with his son. Dr. Bray supplied funds for a Japanese student to attend Kwansai university, and is extremely pleased at the young man's record. He has also attended the University of Geneva on scholarship, and has been awarded a scholarship to continue his education at Oxford university in England.

Yreka Auxiliary To Sponsor Troop

Yreka — Ross Nelson unit, American Legion auxiliary, voted to sponsor a Brownie Girl Scout troop at a recent meeting in the Veterans hall.

It was also voted to donate $5 to the March of Dimes and $10 to the educational and scholarship fund.

During the meeting there was a charter draping ceremony in memory of Mrs. Freida Silverhart, conducted by the President, Mrs. Clyde June.

It was reported that clothing donations amounted to $48 and that three families were given baskets at Christmas containing food, toys and clothing amounting to $105. Food and toys were donated by local merchants.

It was announced that past presidents met at the home of Mrs. Geneva Thomas last Wednesday evening to start making scuffies for the VA hospitals.

Did you know that the span between holes of a button is always the same regardless of the button's size? Working on this principle, one firm has come out with a new button-sew-on aid that fits practically all domestic and imported straight stitch sewing machines. There is no adjusting to do and the stitching automatically stops when the button is firmly attached.

The serious vein of the evening was broken when Mrs. Irene Willenbrink and Kenneth Bley presented a little skit for the Johnsons entitled "Marie's Basement."

Central Point Woman's Recipe In Magazine

Central Point — A recipe for Red Cherry Pudding Cake by Mrs. Lee Orr, 445 Orr drive, Central Point, is featured in the food section of the forthcoming February issue of the Sunset magazine, it has been announced by the publication's editorial staff.

The pudding cake which can be mixed and baked in the same dish requires about 35 minutes to bake.

RED CHERRY PUDDING CAKE

Two tablespoons butter or margarine, at room temperature; one cup sugar; one egg; one cup unsifted flour; one and one-half teaspoons baking powder; one-half teaspoon salt; one-half cup milk; one can (about one pound) pitted sour red cherries; water; one-eighth teaspoon almond extract; red food coloring, optional; ice cream or whipped cream, optional.

In a two-quart shallow baking pan combine butter, one-half cup sugar and egg; beat until blended.

Combine the flour, baking powder, and salt and add alternately with the milk. Stir to make a smooth batter. Drain the cherries, saving the liquid. Sprinkle cherries over the cake batter. Measure the cherry liquid, adding water to make one and one-half cups; add remaining one-half cup sugar and bring to boil. Stir in almond extract and food coloring, if used. Pour the boiling syrup over the cake.

Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees) about 35 minutes, or until the cake, which will be on top, tests

Conventional Suits Said 'Buried'

By ALINE MOSBY United Press International Paris — (UPI) — That conventional spring suit and separate blouse was quietly buried today at the opening show of the Paris spring women's fashion collections.

Jean Desses instead concentrated on a style that is becoming more and more popular in Paris: A suit with a bright blouse exactly matching the lining of the jacket.

This means that owner has a one-blouse suit that can't be varied with other accessories. But it gives the "costume" effect that in the Desses collection, and reportedly others in Paris this spring, banishes that conventional spring suit of yesteryear.

One black and white tweed suit, for example, had a Kelly green blouse and jacket lining. A pink shantung suit had a pink-and-coffee wildly printed blouse and matching jacket lining.

Desses showed only a few conventional suit jackets, that buttoned up the front and had small lapels and narrow collars. More of these suit jackets casually buttoned right on to the blouse and did without lapels and collars.

The only obviously new point in the Desses collection was his shoulders, slightly widened on many outfits. The ladies of the press and international buyers looked for evidence of a return to the Joan Crawford shoulders of the 1930s. But so far, at least, Desses only barely emphasized the shoulder, not through padding but through cut and design.

One example was a black-and-white print silk dress with a tuck on the shoulder that gave a slight jutting wing effect.

The silhouette for women's clothes for spring reportedly will be based on a rectangle, instead of the triangle shape that was more or less the tune called by the powerful fashion designers for last autumn.

Forty four designers are presenting collections over the next 10 days, plus the great Gabrielle "C"anel, 79, the oldest designer in Paris, and Yves St. Laurent, 26, the youngest, neither of whom are members.
