"The snow began in the gloaming and busily all through the night, heaping field and highways with a mantle pure and white."

The local snow storm began here Monday afternoon and deposited some 3 inches on the ground, some of which is still with us. All the snow storms here we have known of, where snow stayed on the ground for any length of time, came in early January.

The weather later turned cold, froze the snow, which piled up to about 3 feet on the level and stayed on until March, when it went off with a warm rain that caused a flood, the likes of which many of our present population have never seen.

Those who have been indulging in the sending of chain letters had better find some other way of passing the time. Tuesday's Mail Tribune had a warning issued on chain letters by the acting postmaster in Medford.

Charley Hoover, the giver of many trees and spark-plug of the Eagle Point Grange, has given us an invitation to the ground hog dinner next Sunday, Feb. 3, at the Eagle Point grange. Charley said the hogs didn't cost them anything, and since Charley knows where the jack rabbits hang out, we wondered. Thanks, Charley, we will try to be there.

As this is written, Thursday a.m., the ground is partially covered with snow and very sloppy, with rain falling, creating a threat of another flooding of the low lands.

An epidemic of flu, or some type of virus, is going the rounds of the community, causing several children to miss school.

We have just finished reading "The Final Verdict," written by Adela Rogers St. Johns, who must be a remarkable woman. The books dates back to when Mrs. St. Johns was a young girl, and is a history of the life of her father, Earl Rogers, the noted trial lawyer and defender of the underdog.

Maybe we are partial to court proceedings. We wouldn't walk across the street to see two men beat each other into a pulp for a championship belt, but get a thrill out of attending a court trial where two good lawyers carry on a legal battle and settle things the correct way.

Thought for the day—He who buys what he does not need, will often need what he cannot buy.

Francis operates a tool manufacturing shop in the garage of his home on Wagner Creek rd.

He manufactures chambering reamers, which are used in the making of guns to shape the chamber occupied by the cartridge.

The title of his article in "The American Rifleman" is simply "Making Chambering Reamers." It is accompanied by seven photographs taken by Whitland Locke, Ashland photographer, which show the various steps involved in making chambering reamers.

In actuality, Francis wrote an article based on his daily work. The magazine editors asked him to write the article, he explained, after he had manufactured a number of tools for the National Rifle Association to be used in experimentation.

Francis conducts his business by mail, with some 300 customers all over the world.

He and his family have lived here for four years, having moved up from southern California.

Rogue River City Council Changes Date of Meetings

Rogue River — At a special city council meeting this week, councilmen decided to change the date of their regular monthly meeting from the second Tuesday to the second Thursday of the month.

The next regular council meeting will be on Thursday, February 14.

To make room for other equipment and to help finance a new program for the city fire department, the city's old 1930 Marquette fire truck will be offered for sale.

Orvis Reeter, chairman of the fire committee, was appointed to work out a program to help create interest and to get new members in this fire department, and a full report on the cost of financing this program will be given at the next regular council meeting.

Reappointed to their offices at this meeting were Dan Perkey, maintenance department superintendent, Le Roi (Bud) Webb, chief of police, and Robert D. Dames, city attorney.

Dance Classes Being Held In Music Room Of Tiller School

Tiller — Tap and acrobatic classes are now being held in the music room of the Tiller elementary school.

Mrs. John Wright, instructor, studied dancing eight years at New Bedford, Mass., her home town.

Thirty-four pupils enrolled in classes which began Jan. 14. Classes are held after school for an hour and are divided into various age groups which meet on different afternoons.

WHAT IS IT?—Katherine Chapman, the Mail Tribune's Hornbrook correspondent, came upon this sight about a week ago while driving down towards Ashland from the Siskiyou summit. The object appears to be a large propeller, perhaps on its way to power a ship to some destination.

BLOCKADE?—The sign at the left says the Diamond Lake highway is "closed by snow beyond this point," but up until the precipitation of this past week, there wasn't much of a snow blockade to be seen. Only a little roadside snow was evident in this photograph. During the freezing temperatures that accompanied the dry spell through most of January, it is reported that Diamond Lake was completely frozen over. Some Prospect residents said they walked out 300 yards on the ice, then cut a hole through it, finding the ice thickness to be around one foot.

Happy Camp Lions Plan Project To Name All Streets In Town

By HAZEL DAVIS Mail Tribune Correspondent

Happy Camp — The project for the year set by the Happy Camp Lions club is to name all streets in Happy Camp, and in time to number all houses, according to club president Milton Kevershan Sr.

This project was named during their last regular meeting, and already the work project is underway.

The signs will be made and erected on two corners of each street, with all work being done by members. According to President Kevershan, the streets will be named for original families who were the pioneers of Happy Camp.

On the sign committee are Fred Fairbairn, Ralph Ramsey, Frank Lootens, Joe Harnden, Ruben Sullivan, and John Suggden, along with other members who will be working during special work meetings.

Bob Wright was named donkey basketball chairman with five committeemen: Frank Lootens, Ruben Sullivan, Joe Ragsdale, Ralph Ramsey, and George White.

It was voted to send two representatives of the Lions club to the boat show in San Francisco the first part of February to contact the various boat manufacturers that will be represented there in preparation of the "bigger and better" Annual Klamath River Boat race that is planned for this summer, according to Kevershan.

This year's boat race may be scheduled to have different classifications. Along with the manual race from Highway 99 to Happy Camp, additional short races may be added, including women's races, speed races by motor boats, and various attractions to entertain visitors while the manual race comes down the river.

The annual fund raising drive by the Lions club is also going on now, with their sale of light bulbs. The club will retain a percentage of the gross receipts taken in on this sale which will go into the general fund — use in the various community projects which includes the Boy Scout program here.

Health Food Store Opens East of Cave Junction

Cave Junction — Mr. and Mrs. Herb Falkenhayen held an open house recently to introduce their Vital Health Foods store here.

During the two-day event, Mrs. Falkenhayen, Mrs. William Smith and Mrs. Josephine Elmore served refreshments of cheese and crackers, home made cookies, candy with different flavors of natural food ingredients, and tea and grape juice.

A natural foods store was attempted in Cave Junction three years ago by Harry Ross of Portland, but lack of business forced him to return to Portland.

In the meantime, Falkenhayen made a door-to-door survey of area residents and found enough response to make him feel he could build a successful health food business here.

He carried the foods in his home until such time as he could erect a business building, which he did this past summer. The construction job included his falling off the roof at one point, suffering no serious injuries but drawing many laughs.

The building is located on the same property as his home, across from the fire hall, half a mile east of Cave Junction.

At the present time in the art class, Vern is working on original drawings, fashioned around human, and its struggle in the world of today.

Don Titus, of the Center Confectionery, has his favorite pieces of driftwood on exhibition at the library for this week also.

Space is made available to all community, club and individual hobby projects. For arrangements call the Central Point library, or Mrs. Mabel VanHorn, librarian.

Mrs. Dickey, her daughter and Mrs. Aubrey Teltier will work behind the counter.

Stamp and Coin Club

Cave Junction — The Illinois Valley Stamp and Coin club has become affiliated with the American Numismatic association, it was announced here recently.

President Bob Lanfranco presided at the most recent business meeting, at which time it was decided to have club members give the program each month. Mark Eilertsen spoke on stamps and Lanfranco on coins.

For the Feb. 13 meeting, Mrs. Harold Hart will talk on stamps and Greg Fluieger on coins.

The club invites junior members as well as adults to meetings, held in the Evergreen school at Cave Junction.

Science Fair Planned

Kerby — Students of the Kerby school are planning a science fair to be held March 28 in the school gym. It will be open to the public during the day and at the regularly scheduled evening parent teacher association meeting.

Awards will be given to the best entries selected by the judges and these will be eligible for the Grants Pass County fair in April. The Kerby school has not held a fair for the past couple of years, and is reactivating it to give the students first hand experience.

Each may select his own project which can include research and experimentation, constructing a project or a demonstration of a scientific principle.

Heim To Head Talent Fire Board

Talent — Eddie M. Heim was named chairman of the board of directors of the recently formed Talent Rural Fire Protection district at a meeting Thursday night.

The directors named Esper C. Silvester secretary-treasurer and Dean A. Blackburn vice president.

Heim will serve a five-year term, Silvester for four years, and Blackburn for three. Howard DeYoung will serve a two-year term, and Lee Floyd Quinn for one year.

It was announced that Robert D. Heffernan Jr. has been retained as attorney for the new district.

Official swearing in of the directors will be held in the near future, with the exact date to be announced shortly.

Members of the board have been visiting other fire departments in the Rogue valley area to get an idea of what type of equipment their district will need.

Death of Pioneer Area Resident Noted

Prospect—Word of the death of an old pioneer has recently been received in Prospect.

Miss Kittie May Ellis, 91, of Clear View, Wash., died in a nursing home in Everett, Wash., Jan. 25. Her funeral services were held in Snohomish, Wash., Jan. 29. She was buried in the G.A.R. cemetery.

Miss Ellis, with her parents and brother Perry, came to Ashland in 1888. In 1889 they moved to Prospect, then known as Deskins, and homesteaded the ranch now owned by Charles and Silvia Manning. In 1898 they sold all of their belongings and started for the Klondike.

They reached Seattle, where illness prevented their proceeding to the gold fields. In 1903 Miss Ellis cleared a small tract of logged off land at Clear View, Wash., and with the help of neighbors built a small cottage, where she lived until a few months before her death.
