Gardening Tips Given at Yreka Club Meeting

Yreka - The theme for the meeting of the Yreka Garden club evening section was "turning over a new leaf in gardening for the coming year." The meeting recently was held in the home of Mrs. Howard Mullica.

"Making a Resolution for a Better Garden in 1963" was the title of the article read by Mrs. Ray Penney, program chairman, which outlined ways to accomplish this purpose. The article suggested that the gardener take paper and pencil one day, during the winter months, and walk around the yard making notes of improvements that could be made next spring and summer.

Suggestions included that one might plant one whole area in the garden with a single color, such as a variety of flowers all in shades of pink or blue, planning at least one lighting effect in the garden and the use of mulch to prevent weed growth.

An article was read by Mrs. William Riddiman on propagating roses from cuttings and an account of how one city added beauty to the town with a tree planting project.

Plans were made during the business session for a joint meeting with the afternoon garden club group on the evening of February 11, when Mrs. Ernest Jounson will show color slides of famous gardens.

It was reported that the afternoon group had decided not to be in charge of the horticulture booth at the county fair this year. The evening section members were in general agreement with the club's decision.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Mullica.

Guests were Mrs. Frank Ohlund and Mrs. William Ward.

Clean dirty window shades with a rough flannel cloth dipped in flour.

American Actor Scorns British Theater Taste

Chicago - (UPI) - A veteran of a famed American acting group returned from a two-month run in London with some candid views on the British theater. Most of them unfavorable.

"From what I saw of them, Londoners love vulgarity," said Del Close of the Second City group in Chicago, considered the top improvisational theater in the United States.

"They oooh and aaah at the word 'bloody.' They're fonder of hearing and using four-letter words than American audiences and players."

Close was reminded that the British image is one of a tolerant, sophisticated nation which permits Nazis and Communists to speak their piece in any street park.

"That's a myth," said Close. "Press the British one centimeter past the point of their studied tolerance and liberalism and they get sullen and nasty."

The Second City actor thinks the English are, in the main, masochistic. He said the audiences his group played to when they swapped places with the Establishment Club group of London encouraged a "hit-me-harder-it-hurts-nice" approach. According to Close, one Englishman, apparently not hearing enough anti-British remarks from the American group, yelled: "Now let's go after good old Macmillan!"

Close thought the British theaters were "beautifully small" and ideal for establishing audience rapport. He also thought British theater benefited the looser union regulations, such as being permitted to play "canned" music.

But the American actor had nothing but scorn for London's taste in theater. According to him, there is little encouragement for or evidence of experimental theater. "Instead," said Close, "you find practically nothing but murder mysteries and cheap musicals. It's almost like American radio in the era of the soap operas."

Next chapter meeting will be February 12 in the home of Mrs. Charles Tucker, 1018 Reddy avenue.

Women Aiding Missionaries

Women of the Sams Valley Gospel church hold missionary meetings each Wednesday.

The mornings are spent in Bible readings and prayer and during the afternoon the group mends and packs clothing for a missionary couple in Mexico who are known in the valley. The missionaries are the Rev. and Mrs. Harold Burger.

During January the women sent nine boxes of clothing. Persons in the Sams Valley area who have clean clothing which they wish to donate to the project may contact Mrs. Floyd Sherman, 855-1073.
