Pomona Grange The Jackson county Pomona Grange held its January meeting at Roxey Ann Grange hall, Master Melvin Lattie presided.

George Nichols, agricultural chairman, reported livestock prices holding well, lamb prices 50 cents and wool about as last year. The weather has been hard on young fruit trees but a good crop is expected this year. State Grange Master Alan P. Wheeler was a guest and spoke regarding the National Grange convention which will be in Portland this year, opening Nov. 11. He urged all Grangers to take an active part in their organization and express their ideas on Grange policy, especially during the legislative year. The legislative committee chairman, Ernest Radomski, reported that his committee will meet weekly and requested that it be increased to include all subordinate masters and the executive committee in order that decisions can be made regarding pertinent legislation between Grange meetings. Permission to enlarge the committee was granted. The Grange went on record, in a resolution, favoring an amendment to the school reorganization law, requiring a two-year period before a petition to change boundaries or consolidate could be repeated for the same area. The Grange also approved a resolution of Phoenix-Talent and Medford school districts since the Phoenix-Talent district is financially sound and able to provide an educational program equal to or beyond state requirements. The lecturers hour opened with songs led by the state master. A discussion of the proposed new state constitution was conducted by Victor Croxton, who urged members to study the document carefully. The Grange decided to have traveling Granges this year, with prizes awarded on a percentage basis. The next meeting of the Pomona Grange will be held April 7 at Shady Cove Grange starting at 10 a.m. The annual memorial service will be conducted by Chaplain Willie McLean.
