

Portland Pilots Spill OSU Quint

Portland - OREGON - Big Cincy Powell scored 24 points — 16 in the first half — to spark underdog Portland to a 67-55 basketball victory over powerful Oregon State Friday night.

Powell, a husky 6-6 sophomore forward playing in only his third varsity game, collected 12 rebounds as the Pilots scored their major upset over the Beavers, ranked 10th in the nation by United Press International.

It was only the sixth win of the season in 19 starts for Portland. The loss left Oregon State with a 12-5 record.

Nine Straight
The Pilots, who led 36-28 at half-time, reeled off nine straight points in the final minutes of the game. The rally carried them from a 58-55 edge with three minutes remaining to a 67-55 lead with a minute and a half left.

The Beavers played without the services of "quarterback" Terry Baker, who was out with a toe infection.

Rheumatic Fever Forces Linfield Athlete To Drop Out

McMinnville - OREGON - An attack of rheumatic fever has forced Linfield football and baseball player Carl Heisler to drop out of school.

Director Paul Durham announced Friday.

Heisler, a Forest Grove sophomore, was a starting defensive halfback on Linfield's unbeaten football team last fall and played second base on the junior varsity baseball squad as a freshman last spring.

Durham said Heisler had been stricken with rheumatic fever once before, in junior high school.

New York - OREGON - Blonde W. a. y. n. WHEELING

For years inventors have been working hard on the development of a flying automobile. The idea is to have a dual purpose vehicle containing all the advantages of both the air and land conveyance, but there are also disadvantages. The big obstacle, for instance, is the wings, which keep the airplane in the air. If you could make the wings disappear, press a switch transferring the power from propeller shaft to axle, you'd have transformed your flying machine into an automobile, but here a factor comes into play which makes the transition difficult. The wings just won't disappear. Some designers have them put into a trailer to be towed by the car. This is the only answer to the problem, so far. But just wait for further developments...

The group, which calls itself the "Shivering Six" said Saturday it was attempting to obtain a Professional Bowlers Association commitment to have the tour make an annual stop in Portland during Rose Festival week. PBA officials earlier gave a tentative nod to a 1964 Portland engagement.

Final word was expected on the PBA engagement in March.

Dallas Texans Will Move To Kansas City--If

By JACK BRANNAN
Kansas City, Mo. - (UPI) - Kansas City will be the new home of the American Football league champion Dallas Texans in 1963 if the Chamber of Commerce can sell 25,000 advance tickets. If not, millionaire owner Lamar Hunt says his team will stay in Dallas.

The proposed move got the unanimous blessing of the city council Friday with approval of Mayor H. Roe Bartle's resolution of intent. It promises to increase the size of Municipal Stadium to 45,000 seats for football.

The resolution also would give the AFL team a seven-year lease on the stadium for $1 per year for the first two years. The city would receive 5 per cent of the net gate receipts the remaining five years, if the net gate exceeded $1.1 million. If not, the $1 per year would be in effect.

The stadium, home of the second division Kansas City Athletics baseball team, costs the A's between $140,000 and $150,000 annually, Mayor Bartle said.

Nancy Roth Is Golf Winner At Palm Beach

Palm Beach, Fla. - (UPI) - Young Nancy Roth of Hollywood, Fla., turned long-ball hitter Saturday to beat hard-driving JoAnne Gunderson 2 and 1 for the Palm Beach Women's amateur golf title.

Miss Roth, 23, turned the tables on the Providence, R.I. school teacher known as one of the longest hitters in women's amateur golf in a tight match decided by the trees dotting the Breakers golf course here.

Each golfer found herself in trouble because of the trees several times, but on one occasion, a coconut palm helped Miss Roth.

On the 18th, Miss Roth slapped her second shot into the palm, but the ball bounced back to the middle of the fairway, setting up a neat shot to the green. Although Miss Gunderson won the hole, Miss Roth said "I would have been in big trouble if it hadn't been for that tree."

NBA Game Winds Up With 162 to 135 Score

United Press International
Remember when scoring 100 points in a basketball game made spectators gasp and coaches cry.

Well, shed a tear for the proponents of defense, because the Syracuse Nationals whipped the Detroit Pistons 162-135 Friday night to tie their own National Basketball Association single game record.

Ten - count 'em - ten men scored 10 or more points for the Nats, who sort of ruined things for the Pistons with a 50-point third quarter. Some college teams still don't score 50 points in a game.

And the combined score of 297 points set a season high for the NBA. Why, two decades ago some teams didn't score that much in a season.

Record Crowd at Roadster Show

A record number of avid auto fans turned out yesterday afternoon and evening for the first day showing of the 1963 Medford Roadster show playing at the Medford Armory this week end.

Officials estimated that 2,000 people had toured the exhibition of style and speed during the opening day. The show concludes today with trophy and award presentation, scheduled for 6 p.m. Doors open to the public at noon.

More than 30 custom-built entries are entered in the affair. Considerable variety is being presented in what many show people say is the finest show of this kind ever held in southern Oregon.

Included are several competition entries, numerous street-type coupes and rods, several dragsters, a Bonneville style Streamliner that has raced to more than 300 miles per hour, all chrome Go Karts, and motorcycles.

Theme of this year's show is "The Beach" and many entries are displayed among palm trees, beach scenes, and white sand. Special awards are being presented for the display that best depicts the show theme.

Marty Wyatt, "Miss Oregon," will make the award presentations this evening at the conclusion of the show. Miss Wyatt has been official queen of the show and is featured on the events official program.

Vesper Sparrow Sings in Hush of Early Evening
Songs at evenings are called vespers and what more appropriate name than "vesper sparrow" could possibly have been selected for the small, brown bird whose clear, ascending series of whistles sound from the barren field or beside a dusty, country road just as the sun is going to rest.

Perhaps the song is more beautiful because it most often occurs in the hush of early evening, when other bird voices are silent, and the world itself has hushed its daytime clamor. The beauty of the evening song of the vesper sparrow adds its cheerfulness to the end of day. The joyful song is an especially fitting close to a summer day when it comes, clear and sweet, from a barren field or even from aloft. The little singer, out of pure joy and happiness, flies high into the air and pours out its wild music.

Atop Fence Post
Coming back to earth, the bird perches on a fence post and utters its clear, whistling notes. When the music comes from aloft, the listener, if he's at all familiar with some of the common traits of the vesper sparrow, will know that somewhere not too far away in a slight depression in the ground and partly hidden by a clod of sod, Mrs. Vesper Sparrow will be incubating her eggs.

As the childhood song proclaimed "I know there are many sparrows; all over this earth we are found." There are over 100 varieties of sparrows on the North American continent. All are predominantly brown or grayish birds, most speckled with white dots and dashes.

Sparrows are the plainest of all the true song birds. Actually, the sparrow clan has accomplished a biological success of life, for just about every region has one or more varieties.

Identification Not Usual
Unfortunately, most folks, even those who enjoy the song of the sparrow family, cannot identify over one or two species. Most people think of only the so-called English

Mr. G. J. - I realize my mistake. I want her back.
Fern J. - He can't expect me to talk my mother into returning.

M. G. J. - Five years ago, after 18 years of marriage, my wife and I were divorced. It was all a terrible mistake from a pile-up of just little quarrels. Now I don't want to leave a stone unturned if there's a chance for us to get together again.

Last year she married again. The man is so unsuited to her that I'm convinced she did it more out of spite than love. He's loud and uncouth. They have nothing in common. All her deepest bonds are with me, for we grew up together. We have a lovely daughter who is very dear to both of us.

I wouldn't dare approach my ex-wife with the suggestion that she divorce this man. But I want our daughter to plant the idea.

Fern J. - I agree that my mother's new husband is no hot-shot as a provider or conversationalist. He's uneducated and a bit on the vulgar side. But so far I've heard no complaints from my mother and she seems happy again. At least outwardly all appears calm and peaceful with her.

Why should I put a crimp in things? My Dad had his chance with her. They're wonderful people, but probably not good for each other. I remember how driven and harassed whenever they were together. Of course, it may have been her fault too. I guess she never learned to handle a tense, brilliant man like my father. But she seems to have made a new life. I won't but in.

The Council: Whatever these parents' faults as individuals, they managed to rear a level-headed daughter. Fern is right. Mr. J. is turning all the wrong stones. He's up the wrong alley and Fern can't change the face of the map for him.

Phoenix, Ariz. - (UPI) - Arnold Palmer blasted a powerful 243-yard three-wood seven feet from the pin on the final hole Saturday then calmly sank the eagle putt to grab a one-stroke lead over arch-rivals Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus in the third round of the $35,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament.

Palmer, seeking his third consecutive championship in this event, posted nines of 33-35-68 to go with his previous rounds of 68-67 for a 203 total - 13 under par for the 54 holes played.

Nicklaus and Player each birdied the last hole to post 204 totals.

Gardner Dickinson and Don January came next at 205, followed by second round leader Jay Hebert and Johnny Pott at 206.

playing with his former wife, from childhood all the way through marriage and divorce and her re-marriage, surely he's had plenty of chances at but, it looks as though the innings are played out and Mr. J. is asking for overtime. But you don't get overtime to drag out the analogy—unless there's a tie. And this is no tie. The former Mrs. J. has taken a step that decides the outcome—at least for the foreseeable future.

Who's to judge who's suited for whom? It's only the second who and whom. The first he is an outsider. He sees "vulgarity" and impossible incompatibility. The other two see softness, kindness and tenderness in their union, and are blind to the faults which the outsider finds glaring.

Mr. J. faces a fait accompli. What he asks Fern to do now might have been in order before the re-marriage. And his present regrets may be a fair warning to others to go slow, very slow, with divorce and re-marriage. Looking back he finds that his marriage fell victim to a pile-up of "little quarrels." Maybe that's how they look now. But at the time, despite their child, the cleavage was sharp enough to make husband and wife want out forever. Now, on what grounds would Mr. J. ask his former wife to break with her present husband? On Mr. J.'s own say-so? No. Divorce-by-Edict is no go in the U.S.A.

This is a case where time, not Fern, will tell Mr. J. how the winds blow in his ex-wife's life. Meanwhile he'd better not count on their blowing in his direction. He should try to enjoy other breezes.
