Greyhound Breeders Call for Local Voting on Issue of Dog Race Tracks

Move Follows Track Rejection At Wilsonville

Salem — UPI — Oregon Greyhound breeders Monday switched signals and called for local-option voting on dog racing tracks.

The plea came on the heels of a racing commission decision to reject a proposed track at Wilsonville.

Last week's shouting, gavel-pounding hearing before the House Planning and Development committee — just a few hours before the racing commission acted — brought a plea that the future of such tracks be left with the commission, and not taken to the voters.

The House committee was considering a bill designed to outlaw the Wilsonville track. It would prohibit the granting of more than one racing meet for each 400,000 population, and require at least 100 miles between tracks.

At Monday's session, Rep. Richard Kennedy (D-Eugene) proposed amending the 100-mile limit to 150 miles "so Lane county would be included in any prohibition."

Jim Garber, president of the Oregon Greyhound Breeders' association, said he felt "this bill will hurt the Greyhound industry."

He charged the bill would limit competition among dog tracks.

"All we ask is that you let the people vote," he said. Also testifying against the bill were Don Watson and C. S. Auger.

Watson said "we are getting sick and tired of being called immoral" because of the gambling. "The majority of people bet on something, they are not immoral."

Members of the racing commission had been invited to attend the hearing, but declined. The commission said it had adopted a policy of "non-interference" regarding legislation.

Couple Hikes Out After Auto Stuck

Portland — UPI — A young man and his expectant wife walked about 17 miles after their car got stuck in the snow on the east side of Mt. Hood.

Howard Lackman, 25, and his wife, Sue, both of Portland, said they drove about 35 miles east of Government Camp Sunday on the Wapinitia cutoff and then took a side road. Their car became stuck when they tried to turn around.

Lackman said they spend the night in the car and began the hike out Monday morning. They reached Wamic about 2:30 p.m.

They were in good condition except for being footsore. Family members had alerted police when Lackman and his wife, both employees of the U. S. National bank, did not show up for work.

MEDFORD TRIBUNE

MEDFORD, OREGON, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1963

Words Exchanged Over New Plane For Gov. Brown

Sacramento — UPI — A Republican assemblyman and Gov. Edmund G. Brown's finance director exchanged words today over the need for a new gubernatorial airplane.

Assemblyman Don Mulford (R-Piedmont) lower chamber GOP caucus chairman, was the first to mention the matter. He brought it up in a letter to Finance Director Hale Champion.

The lawmaker pointed out that Brown invited the legislators to delete all expenditures in California's $3.2 billion budget that do not provide direct and necessary services to the people.

Then he mentioned the airplane item which says simply: "Provision is made for acquiring an executive airplane to be operated in conjunction with the automotive pool."

No Explanation
"Since this item is buried so obscurely in a subsection on state garages and since there is absolutely no explanation for the need or the reason for the inclusion of this item," said Mulford, "it is difficult to assist the governor with his invitation to look for economies in connection with this item."

Sen. Robert J. Lagomarsino (R-Ventura) introduced a bill to allow arrest at night on a warrant for misdemeanors when the person to be arrested is in a public place. He also introduced a measure to allow a person to be sentenced in the county of arrest or residence on warrants issued by other counties.

A bill allowing sale of liquor on the days of all but statewide, county or city elections was introduced by Sen. Hugh M. Burns (D-Fresno). It would allow the sale of liquor during school district and irrigation district elections.

Cuban Refugees Plucked From Sea

Miami — UPI — A tanker plucked 44 Cuban refugees from a small, open boat near the Florida Keys Monday night.

The group was believed the largest to flee Cuba since Cuban Premier Fidel Castro came into power.

The Coast Guard at Miami said the group included 14 men, 13 women and 17 children.

They were transferred from the tanker Hess Diesel to three Coast Guard patrol boats and brought to Miami for processing.

BACK TO GOLFING
Manchester, N.H. — UPI — Male golfers will have less distractions in trying to break par on New Hampshire courses this year. Mrs. Nora Grimes, president of the New Hampshire Women's Golf association, said Monday the organization was banning short shorts.

Slowaways Found Asleep in Boat
Portland — UPI — Three teenage boys from The Dalles were found asleep in a lifeboat aboard the SS Oregon Mail here early today.

Police said the boys, two age 15 and one 16, told officers they hiked the 82 miles to Portland and had planned to stay hidden aboard the ship to go to Japan and other ports in the Orient.

A special officer told police he had seen three boys loitering about the dock and believed they might have slipped aboard. Officers searched and found the boys curled up in a lifeboat, asleep.

They were turned over to juvenile authorities pending return to their homes.

Industrialist Tells Group of Machines
Eugene — Within the next decade only a minor portion of the working population will be required to produce all of the goods and services needed to maintain the American society, according to Edwin F. Shelley, vice president of U.S. Industries, Inc., a New York firm which manufactures automation equipment.

Shelley spoke last week during the Pacific Northwest Assembly at the Village Green in Cottage Grove, which is discussing the problems of the impact of automation and technological change. The Assembly is co-sponsored by the American Assembly and the University of Oregon.

Shelley urged that when people are relieved of routine, machine-like jobs, they be given the opportunity to participate in scientific investigations, exploration of space, and study of society.

"The urgent prerequisite for this intelligent use of human beings is education on a scale not now approached," he said. "To accomplish the educational task it is important to apply the new technologies themselves to the education of our people and to the organization of our productive society."

He described several new automated devices which are causing the technological change.

Administration Seeks To Calm Taxpayer Fears

Washington — UPI — The administration sought today to calm the anxiety of home owners who would lose a portion of their favorite income tax deductions under President Kennedy's tax plan.

Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon stressed again Monday night that virtually every taxpayer would pay less to the government if the President's proposals are approved by Congress.

Under the program, he said, the home owner would end up with more money in his pocket from cuts in tax rate, even if some of his deductions were taken away.

The President has proposed a $10 billion net reduction in rates over a three-year period, tied in with tax reforms removing some present tax privileges.

Limits Deductions
One of the proposed changes would permit the taxpayer to deduct only those itemized expenses which exceed 5 per cent of his income. This would include interest on home mortgages, local taxes and contributions.

The Treasury told Congress Monday that individual income tax rates would have to be set higher than Kennedy proposed if the lawmakers spurn his plea for restrictions on deductions.

It said the alternative to curbing tax deductions was a tax rate schedule ranging from 14.3 per cent to 75 per cent. This compares with a 14-65 per cent range in Kennedy's plan and the present 20-91 per cent.

Higher Rates Necessary
The Treasury said the higher rates would be necessary to offset the loss of $2.3 billion in new revenue that the limit on tax deductions was designed to produce.

Administration strategists were convinced that the phase of the tax program pertaining to deductions was meeting the most resistance from the general public.

Some homebuilders claimed the deduction change would discourage home buying because it would reduce the tax advantage that now goes with owning a home.

Legislator Asks House Committee To Table Bill
Corvallis — UPI — Oregon State officials denied today there was any "systematic exclusion" of Negroes from the varsity basketball team as charged by a state legislator.

State Rep. Berkeley Lent (D-Portland) said in Salem Monday he did not know of a Negro making the squad in the 35 years that Amory T. (Slats) Gill has been head coach at Oregon State.

OSU Sports Publicity Director Johnny Eggers said that Norm Monroe, a Negro, played in six varsity basketball games during the 1960-61 season. He said that Monroe also a trackman, quit because he felt "he was not good enough to help the team."

Tried To Get Moore
Gill said "find me a good boy, a good student who can get into school and a good basketball player and see whether I'll take him."

Eggers added that "we tried real hard to get Glenn Moore (a Negro and starting center on the University of Oregon basketball team) to come to our school."

Lent made his remarks to the House Education Committee in asking the committee to table a bill he had introduced because "there are a couple of situations in our own back yard which can stand cleaning up."

The bill would have prevented OSU or Oregon from entering into athletic arrangements with the University of Mississippi or any other school which holds athletic contests with Mississippi.

3,000-Mile Censure
Lent said the idea of his bill was a "3,000-mile censure of 'Ole Miss'" because of continuing anti-Negro behavior by its students.

Lent said another situation which needed attention in Oregon was the continuation of two fraternities whose national charters contain discriminatory clauses.

The fraternities, Sigma Nu and Alpha Tau Omega, said they are released from the clauses in their Oregon operations.

"Before we go after another state... we should clean up our own mess," Lent said.

Hatfield Plugs GOP
Long Beach, Calif. — UPI — Oregon Gov. Mark Hatfield called on the Republican party to restate the Lincolnian principles of compassion and humility in order to recapture its former strength.

The 40-year-old chief executive often mentioned as a possible running mate to Nelson Rockefeller in the presidential election in 1964, delivered a 30-minute off-the-cuff speech Monday night to more than 600 persons at a Lincoln Day audience here.

He said compassion and humility were the genesis of the GOP strength, "but the party has not always held this."

Principles Diluted
The party has allowed the Lincolnian principles "to be diluted and diminished in the eyes of the American people by a very capable opposition party—and compassion was taken from our mantle," he said. "We often stood by and permitted it to happen."

He said the Republican party is the party of civil rights, but that the Democrats have capitalized on this theme in recent elections.

Hatfield was critical of a segment of the GOP attempting to win over Southern segregationists. He asked:

"Should we go into the South and sacrifice our position on civil rights by out-segregating the segregationists of the opposition? It's too high a price to pay for a few paltry votes in the South."

Majorities Lost
He said he would rather "go down to defeat than turn his back" on the party's traditional championship of civil rights.

The governor said Oregon's overwhelming Republican legislative majorities were completely lost within four years because the party "failed to stay true to the party tradition of local government. We were so concerned with the defeat of Wayne Morse that we lost the whole state of Oregon."

Earlier, at a news conference, Hatfield said Rockefeller "would offer the strongest choice for Republican victory in 1964," if the GOP primaries were held at this time.
