Olympic Committee To Reconsider Five Bids of Five Cities

By MILTON RICHMAN
New York - (UPI) - Los Angeles bolted to the forefront today in a behind-the-scenes struggle for the 1968 Olympic Games despite anguished protests by Detroit, which had been assured it was "in" but may wind up being eased out.

Los Angeles' chances were appreciably strengthened Tuesday and Detroit's proportionately weakened when the United States Olympic committee was urged by its executive committee to reconsider the five cities bidding for the 1968 Olympics.

Theoretically, San Francisco, Philadelphia and Portland, Ore., also have been invited to present their cases before the committee on March 18 and 19 but officials from those three cities may not even show up because the competition actually has narrowed to Los Angeles and Detroit.

"We are anxious to put our best foot forward," said Arthur Lentz, assistant executive director of the U.S. Olympic committee.

"Our decision to reconsider the cities involved was made because we feel a moral responsibility to make the best presentations possible to the International Olympic Committee (IOC)."

Detroit already had been designated as the city whose bid for the games would be supported by the U.S. Olympic committee, and the sudden turn-around came because of "agitation by minority groups."

Douglas F. Roby of Detroit, who is vice president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, was present at Tuesday's session.

"We're going to have to play the whole game over again," he said, referring to Detroit.

"We thought we had it won. Now we're not so sure."

2nd Place Team Gains On Leaders

Second place Bob Phillips and Russ Acheson lost two points to leaders Carl Schmidt and Ernie Pearson last week in the holiday golf handicap tourney at Rogue Valley Country club but still managed to gain three points on the No. 1 runner.

While Schmidt and Pearson lost three to Justin Smith Jr. and Dick Brown, Acheson and Phillips won four from Jerry Cottingham and Jack Creager. Schmidt and Pearson now have 48 points for 20 matches and Acheson and Phillips 36 for 13.

Biggest gain in the past week's play was by third place Herb Leoning and Don Hale. They picked up nine points in two matches, three from Dave Bodtker and Ken Peterson and six from Jim McCoy and Jack Brown, and have a total of 32 for 10 matches.

Smith and Dick Brown added the three points taken from Schmidt and Pearson to five grabbed from Mahr Reymers and John Moffat for eight total for two tussles and 30 aggregate for 14 engagements. Smith and Dick Brown are in fourth place.

Another team which picked up eight points in the past week is that of Jim Rowan and Dr. Ralph Thompson with seven from Bud Parsons and Clyde Knight and one from Bob Anderson and Paul Mitchell. They are tied for fifth with Leo Valarino and Dick Knoll.

Still another team with an eight point victory was that of Max Larson and Dick Finnell who set a new low net best ball record for the tourney of 57. They defeated Dick Courtwright and Ren Taylor.

In week end ball sweepstakes gross prizes went to Ray Lindquist for a 73 and to Alan Holmes and Justin Smith for 75s. Larson was low net with a 63. Warren Bayliss, Wayne Chitwood and Phillips tied for second low with 70s.

MAN OF YEAR - Bill Bowerman, above, ex-Medford High athlete and coach, was named Man of the Year in Oregon sports at the annual Bill Hayward Banquet of Champions at Portland on Monday night. Big Organization Necessary To Keep Globetrotters Going

A full-sized squad of outstanding basketball players will be sporting the snappy togs of the Harlem Globetrotters when they play the American League All-Stars at Crater High school gym Thursday night. Game time is 8 o'clock and doors will open two hours earlier.

Backing the merry imps of the hardwood court is a vast organization of workers in other skills equally important in the success of the team. The players are accompanied by a highly-paid coach, a trainer, a traveling business manager, unit company manager, and a driver for their privately owned bus.

And waiting to entertain at halftime will be a man-wife trampoline team, Mike and Carol Pickering, and a balancing act by Dick Lemay.

Working in heavily-manned offices in Chicago and New York are crews keeping books, scheduling games, handling promotion and many other specialties.

Two advance representatives move ahead of the team, working with promotion, and a corps of experienced scouts tour the country in search of future Globetrotter talent.

Paid representatives of the organization, headed by Abe Saperstein, work in Paris, London, Africa, Australia, the Orient, Hawaii and key cities of the United States arranging for visits of the team.

For Cry From Start
The Globetrotter organization of today is a far cry from the team's start 36 years ago. On Jan. 7, 1927, they went into Hinckley, Ill., to play their first game against a local team. There were five Negro players, with Saperstein driving a battered old car and serving as the only substitute. Their terms were $25 or a 50-50 split of the gate but now the Globetrotter's share of the gate receipts often runs into the thousands of dollars for a single night stand.

Phoenix, Ariz. - (UPI) - Arnold Palmer headed for a little vacation today with the idea that a bee can be a man's best friend.

Emperor Arnie won the $35,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament Tuesday after sweating out a decision by the USGA that a bee that landed on his golf ball and moved it a fraction of an inch toward the hole was not illegal help.

If it had been, Palmer could have been penalized at least a stroke and the tournament could have wound up in a dead-lock with Gary Player.

As it was, Arnie won the event for the third consecutive time, a feat comparable to a no-hitter in baseball, and picked up a check for $5,300.

To get the victory, Arnie shot a twounderpar 70, the same as Player, and wound up with a 273 total. Player, winning $3,400, finished second shooting a 70 also, for 274.

In third place stands Jack Nicklaus, the National Open champion, who finished third here Tuesday, only two shots out of first place. He had a final round of 71 for 275. He collected $2,200 for that and has won $13,865 this year.
