Executive Privilege Attacked by Speaker

Eugene—The doctrine of "executive privilege" used to invoke secrecy in government affairs was attacked recently by Clark R. Mollenhoff, chief of the Washingon, D.C., bureau of Cowles Publications.

He made the attack when delivering the annual Eric W. Allen Memorial Lecture during the 44th annual Oregon Press conference at the University of Oregon. The conference was co-sponsored by the Oregon Newspaper Publishers association and the University's School of Journalism.

The Allen Lecture is in memory of the late Eric W. Allen, the first dean of the School of Journalism, which is now celebrating its 50th anniversary.

"The 'executive privilege' doctrine is a naked claim to unlimited secrecy on the whim of the executive branch," Mollenhoff said.

"It has been used to bar the press, the public, the Congress, and the General Accounting office from examining government business. It has been used to hide scandals and mismangement in our regulatory agencies, in the foreign aid program, and in the defense department."

He said it was not enough for newspapers to shout for "freedom of the press. There is one thing that every citizen can do, and that every newspaper should do, in opposing the Washington cover-up: Give full support to Congress in asserting its right to investigate government activities and government spending."

The Eisenhower administration barred Congress from records or testimony concerning advice of high level officials, and the Kennedy administration has extended this policy so that it is not possible to question subordinate officials of the career service on their official acts, Mollenhoff said.

This led to the directive of Arthur Sylvester, assistant secretary of defense, requiring officials to report all conversations with the press, he continued.

Asks Sharp Criticism

"If there is sharp and continued criticism, I have no doubt the Sylvester order will eventually be modified or withdrawn," he said.

"However, if the nation's newspapers follow a characteristic pattern, the fury will soon give way to a few mild protests, and these will in turn give way to a whimpering acceptance of the chains. The short attention span of many newspapers will mean that the Sylvester directive will be forgotten."

He said the Congress represents the only effective check on the executive branch.

"I am not advocating that you should agree with the conclusions that any or all committees of Congress may reach in an investigation. I do suggest that you support the full right of Congress to call for documents and testimony in porperly authorized investigations of government activities.

"The executive branch of the government has grown more powerful year after year, and it seems unlikely that this power will be cut. If that power is unchecked then we will have lost one of the most important aspects of our form of government—the checks and balances."

No Revolt Seen in Communist Lands

Washington (UPI)— Allen W. Dulles, former Central Intelligence Agency director, predicts that no country under Communism will successfully revolt against the rule.

Dulles, in an article made public Sunday, said the CIA never expected a popular uprising in Cuba in 1961 when the Bay of Pigs invasion was planned. History argued against such help there as it does for revolt in the Iron Curtain countries, he said.

Those familiar with French and Italian underground movements in World War II, or any observer of the 1956 Hungarian revolution, would realize, Dulles said, that "spontaneous revolutions by unarmed people in this modern age are ineffective and often disastrous."

The former CIA chief, who retired last year, is the author of a book-length article entitled "The Craft of Intelligence" in the 1963 edition of the Britannica Book of the Year, published by Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc. Part of the article will appear in the April issue of Harper's magazine.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

OVERHEARD: On a Fifth Avenue bus: "Grandma can never find her glasses any more—so now she drinks from the can."

At an embassy party in Washington, as a large lady wearing an oversized, floppy, bedecked-with-flowers hat wobbled along in the receiving line. "She looks exactly like a well-tended grave!"

In an Eskimo igloo: "My wife is driving me nuts. She keeps asking me to buy her a CLOTH coat!"

James Gordon Bennett, Jr., publisher of the New York Herald in its palmiest days, (and son of the founder) was a reckless gadabout in his youth. His wild driving of a four-horse coach once caused a crash in which one of his loveliest companions, Miss Jennie Jerome, was injured. Fortunately, she recovered—and went on to marry Lord Randolph Churchill. One of her sons was Winston Churchill.

David Ewen tells about the composer who signed to do the complete score for a proposed new Broadway musical in two weeks. "That will take a lot out of you," commented a well-wisher. "Not out of me," countered the composer, "but out of Debussy, Brahms, and Bach."
