Improvement, Expansion of City Services Are Major Goals of Grants Pass in 1963

By PRISCILLA AVERILL
Mail Tribune Correspondent
Grants Pass - Major goals for the city of Grants Pass during 1963 will center around improvement and expansion of city services, according to City Manager Roy Eames.

One of the city's main projects for the coming year, said Eames, is completion of the current expansion of its sewer system, including modernization and expansion of the sewage disposal plant and construction of interceptor sewer trunk lines to new sections of the city.

Contracts for the work, totaling approximately $600,000, were let last October, he said. Of this amount, $400,000 is being financed by bonds; $157,000 by federal grant; and the remainder by funds on hand from accumulated reserves.

Another major goal will be to provide all city services to newly annexed areas south of the Rogue river and to consider proposals from additional areas south of the river to annex to the city of Grants Pass.

Growing Demand
The 80-acre West Park Addition in this locality was recently annexed to the city, Eames said, and there is a growing demand in surrounding areas for city services such as fire protection, sewer service, zoning regulations, adequate city water, etc. These services can be obtained only by annexation.

Two ten-year programs approved by the voters in the November election will also be implemented in 1963. These are: (1) improvement of park and recreational facilities, for which a $25,000 per year levy has been authorized; and (2) drainage improvements, financed by a $50,000 per year levy. Preliminary work on both these programs is already under way, Eames said.

Land for park development has been purchased around the West Home Park addition in the southwest section of the city. The city hopes eventually to have one or two community parks and playgrounds in every section of the city.

The long-range program will make it possible to improve existing parks, such as Lawndale park in the city's northwest section, and to create new ones in areas not now being served. All sections will benefit from the development of these parks and playgrounds, said Eames, and even the community building is in for its share of remodeling to make it more functional.

A comprehensive engineering study of the city's drainage problems has been arranged with a Corvallis consulting firm, Cornell, Howard, Hayes and Merrifield. This is the same firm which did studies of the city's water and sewer systems for recently completed improvements.

Complex System
Eames explained that the city has a complex drainage system related to the Grants Pass Irrigation district, which covers about half its area, mainly in the more recently annexed portions. In areas of the city which are damaged whenever storms hit, improvements will be constructed to eliminate this damage.

Among other goals for the coming year, some form of off-street parking regulations will be adopted. Major lighting improvements will be installed at the north and east approaches to Interstate Freeway 5.

The city's routine street construction program should find 80 per cent or more of the streets fully improved before the end of the year.

A newly authorized program for the complete modernization of street name signs will be initiated. This program will probably take four or five years to complete.

Gold Hill - Brochures which provide information on the Gold Hill area were a major project of the Gold Hill Chamber of Commerce during 1962. Efforts by the local Chamber to promote the vicinity of Sams Valley and Gold Hill has been rewarding, according to officials of the group.

Its participation in Vacation Land of Southern Oregon has been successful. As a result of advertisements in some of the leading national magazines, the local chamber mailed 1,444 brochures in reply to 710 requests during the period May 7, 1962 through Jan. 17, 1963. Some 50 letters were also written during this period in response to inquiries of the area, to which brochures were mailed.

Requests came to Gold Hill Chamber of Commerce from people in 41 of the 50 United States including Hawaii and Alaska, plus three A.P.O. New York.

Information
The majority of requests wanted information on scenic attractions; lodging, parks and camping; residential advantages, schools and churches; leisure time activities for visitors.

Many requests wanted information on employment conditions, business advantages, real estate, Mystery House, museums, history of area, rock collecting, weather, retirement advantages, fishing and hunting, ghost towns, places to honeymoon, gold-mining, maps, swimming, newspapers and airports.

Since January 17, 1963, the chamber has received 121 requests, some of these coming from Canada.

To put the brochure in motion several months of planning were involved. A committee gathered material of the area and assembled it with a great deal of study. The expense of printing and postage is supported through memberships in the Gold Hill Chamber of Commerce.

DONATES REGULARLY—Mrs. Pauline Crowder of Mt. Shasta donates a pint of blood on the average of every three months. She has donated at least 40 pints in her life that have been recorded, and more that haven't been recorded.

Mt. Shasta Housewife Is Champion Blood Donor

By J. O. MCKINNEY
Mail Tribune Correspondent
Mt. Shasta - Mrs. Pauline Crowder, Mt. Shasta housewife, is the champion blood donor of this region. She probably ranks high in the field against all comers.

To date this comely lady, who radiates excellent health, has contributed 40 pints that have been recorded. She says she donated blood as a girl in Canada, but does not know how many times.

Mrs. Crowder's blood is the popular type O that is so much in demand. She now regularly turns over a pint every three months to the Erwin Memorial Blood Bank. This is not a drain on her vitality, as she says she always feels even better after a donation than before.

A brunette, this 'blood factory' shows her French ancestry. She was born in Montreal, Canada. All her older brothers and sisters spoke French. She never learned that language, and now sees no need for taking it up. She says English is good enough for the family of three that makes up the Crowder household.

Both her husband, Randolph, and son, Randolph Jr., are born Americans. She came to the states during World War II, as a bride. Regular trips back to her native city are enjoyed, but she appears to be acclimated to Mt. Shasta now.

With a husband who is a sky diver, and a son who plays a star game of high school football, the entire family has plenty of activities to keep well occupied.

The Mt. Shasta community has grown to depend on this lady to keep enough blood surplus in the bank to allow others with type O blood to have a 'shot' when needed.

Evergreen PTA Reschedules Visit By Caves Ranger

Illinois Valley - At the last meeting of the Evergreen school PTA, a park ranger from the Oregon Caves National monument was to have been guest speaker. He was unable to attend, however, because a storm had knocked out electrical service at the caves.

Plans have been made for the ranger to speak at a meeting of the PTA later this month.
