

Arctic Tours

Now Available From Norway

Bored with bird-watching, boating, badminton? Sated with swimming, sailing, skating? Tired of tennis, tea parties, the twist?

You can get away from it all — for two weeks anyway — in the Land of the Midnight Sun. You can explore the tundra and icy wastes of the Arctic or, if that sounds too tame, go hunting for polar bears.

Seven polar bear safaris are planned for 1963, the Norwegian National Travel office reports. Each hunter is licensed for two kills and, it says, "no hunter has failed to bag at least one" during the 14-day big game hunts around the islands of Spitzbergen in the Arctic Ocean.

If you are lucky and fill your bag of the huge, white bears early, you can try fishing for salmon or white away the time by going sight-seeing through the rugged land of rocky fjords, mountain peaks and glaciers.

Jumping-off point for the safaris is Tromsø in northern Norway.

Hunting parties are transported to the islands about 400 miles north, aboard the MS Fortuna, a rugged diesel-powered vessel. The all-inclusive rate includes the services of seasoned guides. Hunters provide their own gun and ammunition.

Tromsø also is the starting point for something new and different in cruises: "Arctic Discovery" tours.

Only three such tours have been scheduled for 1963 and each expedition will be restricted to 18 explorers. In command of the exploration parties will be Capt. Finn Ronne, formerly of the U. S. Navy, a veteran explorer of the Arctic and the Antarctic.

Polar Pioneers

The itinerary follows the routes of such polar pioneers as Byrd, Ellsworth and Amundsen from Tromsø to Spitzbergen. There will be shore excursions to arctic settlements and glaciers, then north across the 81st parallel into the drifting pack ice only a few hundred miles from the North pole.

The return journey includes a call at the North Cape and Hammerfest, which claims to be the northernmost town in the world.

But unlike the polar pioneers, you make the trek not by sled or snowshoe but aboard the sturdy MS Norsel, veteran of 10 south polar expeditions.

The rate for the 15-day expedition includes everything — even cocktail parties aboard ship for the intrepid adventurers.

These can be started either from Oslo, Norway, or Stockholm, Sweden. If you leave from Oslo you fly aboard SAS airliner to Bodø in Norway inside the Arctic circle, then go by car to Narvik. From Narvik you travel by train across the Norwegian Mu. to Kiruna, in the heart of Sweden's Lapland, and then by plane to Stockholm.

Noises Increase Work Grievances

Rutherford, N.J. — Clanging machines, ringing telephones and the squeaks and screeches of a noisy work area make employees mad at each other, but don't decrease work output.

A graduate student at Fairleigh Dickinson university came to that conclusion after studying employee reaction in three annual work areas of a large electrical manufacturing company.

The noise levels in the three areas ranged from a deafening 103 decibels through 80 decibels and down to 86 decibels.

Artichoke Flavor Improved by Frost

New York — (AP) — Frost-bite darkens the leaves but improves the flavor of artichokes, says the Artichoke Advisory board. The darkened tips may be cut off easily with kitchen shears.

The flavor is enhanced further by the addition of a tablespoon of salad oil or a package of dry salad mix to the water in which artichokes are cooked.

GIMMICKS — Los Angeles — (AP) — A savings and loan association here is resorting to some carnival hoopla to drum up business. The firm offers free demonstrations on hypnotism, magic, scope reading and gourmet cooking.
