

Fasching Season Now Is in Sway In West Germany

By KARL H. MACK

Frankfurt - (UPI) - West Germans are going all-out this pre-Lenten Fasching (carnival) season in their traditional annual campaign against seriousness.

The "Fasching Fools," as they are called, have scheduled more the 1,000 festive events poking fun at just about everything.

The Fasching season officially started Nov. 11 at the 11th hour and 11th minute. It ends Ash Wednesday, Feb. 27, the beginning of Lent. But the real impetus came with the "Opposition to Beastly Seriousness" ceremony Jan. 26, when the new head of the "Order" was selected in Aachen.

The Order was founded in 1951 to honor a British military legal official who asked that the jail sentence of a German civilian be lifted during the last three days of the festival.

Since then it has been awarded to such dignitaries as Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, former U.S. Military Judge Leo M. Goldmann and Dutch Baron Michiels Van Kesenich, Mayor of Utrecht.

An unprecedented number of parties, sessions and costume balls are crammed into the Fasching schedule. The sessions are presided over by a "Foolish Cabinet" dressed in white ties and wearing three and four cornered hats with silver bells on the corners.

The rostrums for the sessions are shaped like wine barrels and "guest" speakers poke fun at anything at hand, including the government, local events and women.

Starting on Sunday before Ash Wednesday, the Fasching Fools hurl themselves into the "Three Mad Days" with dancing and parading through the streets. In some areas, one day is set aside for the "Women's Carnival" when any woman is allowed to chase any male in sight and demand either a kiss or a drink.
