Central Point — The comeback-in-the-pack surge of the Medford Black Tornado in Southern Oregon conference basketball was continued here Friday night in a down to the buzzer struggle.

Medford's forward edging craters squeezed by Crater 61 to 59 to pull even with the Fireballs in the District 6 A-2 standings. It was the fourth straight win—the second in a row by a whisker—for the Hurricanes.

The two clubs, wrapping up the third of four rounds in the circuit, shared second place with 7-5 records behind the 8-4 of the Cavendish of Grants Pass.

Jack Forde of Medford flipped a jumper from the circle with 2:57 on the clock for a bucket which broke the last of the game's nine deadlocks.

And, the Tornado then, in intense rugged final moments playing control ball when it had possession fought hard and weathered the rally efforts of the Comets.

Shots Missed
With 2:33 left Medford's Dan Miles missed a free toss chance. Crater rebounded and Mike Glines' driver failed to go in for the Central Pointers. A rebound try also missed. With 1:23 to go, Paul Bransom missed a free shot for the Comets and Forde retrieved the falling ball for Medford.

Crater got back even on Tomlinson's two free tosses and Alvarez's long push for 58-all with 3:07 yet to play. Seconds later Forde got Medford's final goal.

First half was real nip and tuck. Score was knotted three times in the first quarter. Crater moved to a 13 to 8 spread then the margin was two and four points until Forde hit a turning jumper for 18-all. The Comets went top again on Pepper's free shot. Five quick lead switches followed as a Hill bucket

Crater hit a jump shot for Medford and Lou Alvarez for Mike Neathamer sank a jump from the circle side for a knot of 53 each. Two Neathamer free shots put Medford in front again. Vowell roped a wriggling layup for 57 to 55. Alvarez goaled for Crater and Benner for Medford for 59 to 55.

Arroyo Appears Ready for Post

The old baseball belief of "never bet against the Yankees" already looks like the best advice of 1963 for American league fans—and spring training is only a few days old.

Not that they needed any extra help, but it appears now that the world champions can count on Luis Arroyo to take his accustomed spot in the bullpen this season.

Arroyo, the portly Puerto Rican who helped the Yankees win the AL pennant in 1961, hardly pitched at all last year after developing calcium deposits in his left elbow. In fact, he pitched a total of only 34 innings, which included only a couple of short stints after the All-Star games.

Thursdays the like a ble "quiet man" of the Yankee relief corps threw hard during a workout for batteryman at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and predicted his arm miseries are a thing of the past.

"If it stays like this, I've got nothing to worry about," Arroyo said jubilantly. "I am confident I'll be able to help the club this year."

RELUCTANT RINGMAN

New York — UP — Elmer Griffith, who twice won the world welterweight championship, didn't want to learn to box but was shamed into it in 1956 by his boss, Howard Albert, a manufacturing milliner and frustrated amateur boxer.

SOME ALIAS

New York — UP — The old-time middleweight champion, "Jack Dempsey — the Nonpareil" had been baptized John Kelly. And the later heavyweight champion "Jack Dempsey" was baptized William Harrison Dempsey.

Belko Drops Anderson From Club

Eugene — UP — Oregon basketball forward Jerry Anderson was dropped from the Ducks' hoop squad before Friday night's game with Washington State.

Coach Steve Belko said Anderson had not "been willing to accept squad practice and game rules."

The full statement from Coach Steve Belko on dropping of Jerry Anderson from the University of Oregon cage squad was:

"Jerry is a fine boy and he has good basketball potential, but he has never been willing to accept squad practice and game rules and procedure during the year and a half he has been a member of the varsity squad."

"Wednesday of this week he again refused to accept the practice procedure and I asked him to leave the floor until he was ready to join the other members of the squad in the practice play we had outlined."

"He has not returned to practice or attended squad meetings since that time, and I feel in the best interest of the squad he should be dropped from further competition."

TO CAUTION PLAYERS

St. Petersburg, Fla. — UP — Major league baseball hopes to profit from a lesson learned the hard way by the National Football league. Friday, it was learned that Judge Robert Cannon, the players' counsel shortly will begin touring spring training camps to caution players about frequenting bars and restaurants undesirable to be the hangouts of undesirable.

MCREEERY DIES

Sonoma, Calif. — UP — Hal McCreery, who played football on two Stanford Rose Bowl teams under the late Coach Pop Warner, died on Thursday of a heart attack. McCreery, 62, was a businessman in Palo Alto and resided in Los Altos. He was here for a brief vacation when he was stricken.
