They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

The Week in California

Trial, Politics, Water Plan Upheld by Court, Top Events

By United Press International

A group of young conservatives, who sought support of the John Birch society, took over firm control of the 13,000-member California Young Republican organization last week.

They smashed to victory by electing a full slate of state officers headed by Robert Gaston, a southern California lawyer, at the organization's 1963 convention in Fresno.

The GOP's regular party organization in California was shaken by the one sided victory. It represented a personal defeat for Caspar W. Weinberger, San Francisco, chairman of the State Central committee. Weinberger had frankly warned the young party leaders against swinging to the right, and cautioned that the election of Birch-backed candidates would have a "very unfortunate effect" on the GOP.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown, a Democrat, later urged the Republicans to "close ranks against the Birchers and their iron age thinking."

Meanwhile, moderate leaders of the California Republican assembly gathered forces for an expected battle with the Birchers for control of the large GOP volunteer organization. The CRA met in Anaheim over the week end.

Elsewhere, there were these developments:

De Kaplany: A superior court jury in San Jose found that former Hungarian freedom fighter Dr. Geze de Kaplany was sane when he killed his bride by bathing her nude body with acid. The jury of two women and ten men rejected the defense contention that de Kaplany, 37, was "a multiple personaltiy" and that his wife, Hajna, 25, was actually killed by "Pierre La Roche," his evil alter ego. The jury was to reconvene later to determine his punishment as either life imprisonment or death in the San Quentin gas chamber.

SP: The Brotherhood of Railway Clerks made preparations for its oft-postponed strike against the Southern Pacific Railroad in seven western states. More than three weeks of intensive negotiations between SP and the 11,000 - member union broke off in Chicago after three days of futile meetings there.

Water: The California Supreme Court upheld the California water plan by rejecting 21 arguments against the validity and constitutionality of its basic contract. The court action was taken in a unanimous 61-page opinion, which disposed in detail of the arguments against the contract and the bond act upon which it was based. The contract in question was with the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California and was the prototype of other water plan contracts.

Legislature: Gov. Edmund G. Brown called upon the Legislature to move toward rehabilitating the four million Californians who "live precariously on the margin of our economy." In a special message on social welfare, Brown told the lawmakers: "We must complete the change in the emphasis in our public assistance programs from the cash dole philosophy which has ruled them since their beginning in the 1930s."

Also during the week, a Senate committee reported that school teachers don't think very highly of the counselors and administrators hired to help them. And Brown, speaking on fiscal matters, said that if his tax reform program is adopted by the Legislature there is a "fair chance" new taxes will not be needed in 1965.

Mays: Willie Mays signed a contract with the San Francisco Giants for more than $100,000, thus joining a select circle of only three other players in history who have received that amount. The incomparable center fielder, already a legend at the age of 31, moved into the same salary bracket once dominated by Joe Dimaggio, Ted Williams and Stan Musial. Mays is heading into his 13th major league baseball season.

Communist: The Fountain Valley city council in Orange county went on record against labor unions and merchants who sell communist manufactured goods. Two city ordinances spelling out the council's views were given first reading. One ordinance provides automatic dismissal from city employment for any person who "initiates, attempts or advocates the introduction of a labor union" in city government. Under the second ordinance, merchants who sell products of any communist country would have to purchase a license costing $1,000.

Gas: Pacific Gas and Electric company, asked the state public utilities commission for permision to reduce electric service rates by about $2,383,000 per year. The company said the reduction was made possible from lower costs of natural gas used in its steam - electric generating plant. The reduction would be effective Feb. 26.

Garcia: A 17-year-old youth, flanked by his parents and in tears, surrendered to Venice police for the hit-run death of another teen - ager who shoved his girl friend to safety a split second before he was run down. Raymond Garcia said he had been hiding since the accident but was persuaded by his parents to give himself up. David Brimley, 17, was killed instantly. He and Paulette Lewis, 25, were walking hand - in - hand when the auto struck them.

Try and Stop Me

A WILY REALTOR in Manhattan spurs the rental of apartments in his new buildings by having two identical suites vary as much as ten percent in the asking price. One type of customer takes note of the difference, inspects the two suites, and quickly signs up for the cheaper of them before somebody else spots the apparent mistake. On the other hand, just as many customers willingly rent the more expensive apartment in order to have the highest priced suite in the building! On a South Pacific island during World War II an officer was staring moodily into the pitch black night. "You haven't slept in forty-eight hours, sir," an anxious aide reminded him. "You need rest desperately." "My work is never done," answered the officer grimly. "My autobiography is due next Tuesday and I'm only up to Chapter Twelve."

The Medical Roundup

Frost Bite

"This is the time of year for frost-bites, and they can be very painful," the American Medical Association warned. "They can leave a patch of a person's skin hypersensitive to cold for the rest of his life. A frost-bite is something like a burn, and, as with burns, there are different degrees. Just as with a burn, a frost-bite injury may be on the surface of the skin or it may go deep down. Frost-bite often attacks the ears, toes, fingers, cheeks, or nose. With a second-degree frost-bite, there are blisters, while in the third degree frost-bite, much of the frozen part may have to be cut off because it is dead."

Alvarez

Persons who must be out in zero weather for some time should, of course, be dressed in warm clothing; they should have water-proof shoes and heavy socks, and they should have a good covering over their head, especially over their ears.

Motorists who are traveling across the country in sub-zero weather would do well to have in their car some very heavy clothing and heavy shoes, so that if they have a breakdown, and have to walk some distance to a farmhouse, they won't freeze to death on the way, as some people have done. Sometimes, when a car is stalled some distance from help, it is safer to stay in the car than to start walking a long distance against a bitter wind.

The first signs of frost-bite are feelings of "pins and needles," then a prickly feeling and then numbness. The affected part will turn first white or gray, and later red.

The important thing is to thaw out the tissues as soon as possible, and this can best be accomplished by getting into a warm room. One should not rub or massage the affected tissue. Today, experts advise against rubbing the frost-bitten area with snow. That does more harm than good, and delays the thawing-out process. The pain of thawing can be extremely severe.

Parent Cruel to Child

One of the saddest things I know is the habit some parents have of discussing before a child some physical defect or mental shortcoming for which he is not responsible, and for which he must not be blamed. For instance, here on my desk is a letter from a mother who is heart-broken because her son has upper eyelids which fall down so low that they give his face a peculiar, rather stupid and unpleasant expression.

The father is so angry about this that he keeps constantly sneering at the boy. He does this until the lad and sometimes his mother feel almost suicidal. The mother now dreads meal-times because so often the father then keeps jeering at the poor boy.

I have here another letter from a grandmother who tells me of her great distress over what goes on constantly in the home of one of her daughters. This daughter had two girls; the elder one was beautiful, charming and lovely, and everyone liked her. She was doing wonderfully well at college and the parents adored her.

The younger child was so mentally retarded that she was no joy to herself or anyone else. Then came an epidemic of influenza. Both girls caught it; the lovely one died, and the retarded one recovered.

Ever since, a common topic of conversation between the two parents—often at the dinner table—is the sad fact that the wonderful daughter had to go while the retarded one had to live. Obviously, the terribly unhappy retarded girl can't be blamed for this, and it is most unkind of the parents to be constantly talking about it.

Still another letter is from a mother who is broken-hearted because one of her sons is very brilliant and handsome, and gets all A's at college while the other son is not good looking and is so lacking in ability that it looks now as if he is going to flunk out of college. Again, the mother's heart is constantly being torn by the fact that the father keeps showing his anger because his younger boy is not as bright as the elder one is.

Perhaps thousands of parents who may happen to read this column will come to see that, without thinking, they are being terribly cruel to a child who is in no way responsible for his unfortunate handicap. He may perhaps deserve much praise for what, with great effort, he is accomplishing.

Decree Expected In Suit Concerning Lumber Firms

Circuit Judge Edward C. Kelly is expected to enter a decree soon in the suit of Magnolia Lumber Corporation, Inc., against Lithia Lumber Company, Inc., both of Ashland.

Earlier Judge Kelly decided in favor of Magnolia Lumber in a complicated case involving approximately two years' litigation. In his 14-page opinion, the circuit judge stated that Magnolia Lumber is entitled to collect the following sums plus interest: $133,111.16 from Sept. 1, 1956; $134,511.16, from Sept. 1, 1957; a like amount from Sept. 1, 1958; another like amount from Sept. 1, 1959; plus taxes of $26,133.45 and taxes of $490.36 which Magnolia paid to protect the property from foreclosure by the county for property taxes due; plus $4,500 cost of disbursement.

The lumber company case involves foreclosure of a mortgage on the Ashland lumber mill.

Objections Filed

Attorney Sidney Ainsworth, representing Magnolia, said Friday both principals in the suit had filed objections to the findings. A Portland law firm represents Lithia Lumber.

Ainsworth said Judge Kelly had summarily disposed of Lithia's second defense referring to a lawsuit which seeks $5 million judgment against Magnolia. Since Magnolia raised the issue of the other law suit in the current pleadings, but did not introduce supporting evidence, Ainsworth is claiming that the judge should have found against Magnolia on this particular point in the proceedings. Ainsworth emphasized that the $4 million law suit is a separate case and has not been heard yet in court.

Ainsworth said after the court makes its final decree in the matter, the mill located on East Main st. in Ashland would be sold.
