Corvallis - Floyd Donald Driskell, box 352, Jacksonville, was among 63 pharmacy seniors from Oregon State university who toured three midwest drug manufacturing plants this week.

The 10-day field trip to the midwest is arranged annually by the school of pharmacy to give students an insight into how medicines are developed, manufactured and marketed.

Visits were made this year to the Eli Lilly company, Indianapolis, Ind.; Upjohn company, Kalamazoo, Mich.; and Abbott Laboratories, Chicago.

RELATIONS ON THE ROCKS

Canadian Invasion of U.S. Whiskey Market Rouses Ire

By DICK WEST
United Press International

Washington - Relations between the United States and Canada, already strained by the nuclear weapons controversy, are now being threatened on another front.

In this case, the source of the friction is whiskey. As far as liquor is concerned, U.S.-Canadian relations are on the rocks.

The dispute isn't likely to topple any governments, but it could easily put a few diplomats under the table. Tensions are so high that nobody can be certain which side will pour the first shot. Fortunately, however, there is plenty of fuel oil to spread on the troubled waters, and that may preserve the peace.

The whisky crisis came to my attention this week at a hearing before the U.S. Tariff Commission.

Leo Vernon, counsel for Publicker Industries, Inc., a U.S. distiller, told the commission that Canadian whiskey makers are rapidly taking over the liquor market in this country.

Wants Duties Raised
He urged that import duties on the hard stuff from north of the border be raised from the present $1.25 to $5 a gallon.

What seemed to have Vernon particularly upset was the fact that the Canadians have started exporting their own bourbon, long considered the traditional American drink.

The U.S. liquor industry regards Canadian bourbon as an act of aggression as deplorable to it as Canada's refusal to accept H-bombs was to the State Department.

As might be expected, Congress is considering taking a hand in the matter. The House of Representatives now has pending a resolution that would designate bourbon as "a distinctive product of the United States."

Presumably, the resolution is compatible with the overall U.S. foreign policy based on deterrence, and if need be, retaliation.

Hope For Compromise
In the interest of hemispheric harmony and solidarity, it is to be hoped that some compromise can be reached, possibly through a system of on-site inspections.

I would commend to the attention of the negotiators an out-of-court settlement that recently ended a legal battle over the use of the word "gentleman."

It was agreed that both "Kentucky Gentleman" and "Virginia Gentleman" could use those trademarks for their bourbon provided:

(1) That Kentucky Gentleman did not picture a Virginia plantation or fox-hunting scene on its label and (2) that Virginia Gentleman did not picture a Kentucky colonel on its label. Perhaps Canada will agree to stop calling its whiskey "bourbon" if U.S. distillers will promise not to label any of their booze with a picture of a mounted policeman.

Police Put Down Subway Disturbance

New York - Police had to be called to assist transit authorities Wednesday in putting down a brief revolt on a subway train.

The train, with about 3,000 passengers aboard, developed mechanical trouble during the morning rush hour. Subway personnel tried to get the passengers to leave, but few were persuaded to step outside in the 11-degree weather. The train was not emptied until police were summoned to end the mutiny.

Measure Honoring Churchill Approved

Washington - A House subcommittee Wednesday approved a proposal which would authorize President Kennedy to declare Winston Churchill "an honorary citizen of the United States of America."

The judiciary subcommittee on immigration and nationality unanimously agreed that its chairman, Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.), should introduce "an appropriately worded bill" to carry out the move.
