

Goldwater Believes Kennedy Can Be Ousted from White House in '64

(Editor's note: Republican leaders put Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona high on their list of potential rivals to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination. As a result, UPI asked the senator about a wide range of current issues, including the political outlook, Cuba, Red China and the nuclear threat. The interview follows.)

Washington - (UPI) - Sen. Barry Goldwater believes President Kennedy is a victim of "indecision" and that the Republicans can oust the New Frontier from the White House in 1964.

Seven Youths Are Returned to Custody

Woodburn, UPI—Seven youths who escaped from the MacLaren School for Boys Saturday were back in custody today.

The boys, all 15, fled from the school after attacking LeRoy Mooers, an attendant at Greer Cottage. Mooers was taken to a Salem hospital with head injuries.

Three of the youths were taken into custody at Cottage Grove Sunday in a car stolen at Salem. The other four were caught Saturday night.

The escapees were identified as Johnnie Irvin, Mullomah County; Roger Brooks, Portland; Leonard Bouge, Salem; Dewayne Peacock, Albany; Ernest Jester, Gresham; Raymond Leed, Empire, and Ronald Griggs, Roseburg.

Fresh Potatoes Are Better for Mashed

Madison, Wis. (UPI)—If you have wondered why mashed potatoes prepared for a group don't taste as good as those fixed for a few persons, University of Wisconsin home economists offer this explanation.

Peeling potatoes and keeping them in water for about 24 hours—as is done for larger quantities— affects both color and flavor.

The home economists, basing their findings on 15 experienced tasters, also reported dehydrated potatoes have poorer texture and consistency than fresh or frozen spuds.

soaring among GOP conservatives, also says his party's 1964 presidential nomination still is "up for grabs."

Goldwater gave this assessment of the current political scene in an exclusive interview with United Press International. Touching a wide variety of subjects, both domestic and foreign, the senator:

—Said Communist China may explode a nuclear bomb any day now. But he said Peking's "rickshaw" economy could take 25 years to build a delivery system and fashion a nuclear strike force.

—Ruled himself out as a vice presidential candidate. Goldwater said it would be "ruinous" to have a presidential candidate pushing liberal causes while he was attacking them.

—Said $7 to $10 billion could be cut from President Kennedy's proposed budget without touching space or defense efforts. But realistically, he said, the economies will not be made because the Senate will restore House cuts.

—Complained that administration defense planners are trying to substitute the President's civilian authority for necessary tactical and strategic judgments of experienced military leaders.

"That is the big mistake Hitler got into — the Kaiser got into," the senator said.

Reserve Air General

Goldwater, a reserve Air Force major general, was almost engulfed in plane models — he tries to get a model of each plane he flies — as he sat at his desk and attacked the methods and goals of Kennedy administration defense planning.

The administration is considering defense strategy, he said, "talks about freedom for the President to select the weapons — that can't be done."

Goldwater said Pentagon planners are operating on the assumption that U.S. forces, in any brush-fire war, would have to abandon conventional arms in favor of a full nuclear exchange as soon as either side used nuclear arms.

"I don't believe either side wants to go into nuclear war ... but we don't leave ourselves any room for negotiation or pause," Goldwater said.

Some small nuclear weapons are better for a given job than TNT weapons, he said, and it isn't necessarily true that their use would result automatically in all-out nuclear conflict.

"At any time you could pause and say: 'The next step may be an attack on one of your airfields with this kind of a weapon,'" he said.

"I think we are engaged in unilateral disarmament," Goldwater said. "If Russia has been kept at bay it has been because of the men of the Strategic Air Command." As their role is diminished by the substitution of missiles for planes he said, U.S. strength is downgraded as against Russia's.

Ahead in Some Fields

In some technical fields the Russians "are probably ahead of us," the senator said. One of these, he said, may be sophisticated radar for judging height and distinguishing between true and decoy warheads. If this is the case, he said, the Russians might be closer to having an anti-ICBM missile than has been disclosed.

"This alone might be cause for our seeming willingness to give away everything in order to reach a nuclear test ban agreement with Russia," he said.

Q — What about the risk that Red China and other countries will develop nuclear bombs compared with the risks inherent in a test agreement?

A — "I think Red China can set off a bomb anytime. Maybe she has already done it, but she has to be able to deliver it. If she is still running around in rickshaws, I don't think she can develop delivery vehicles for perhaps 25 years without Russia's help and I don't think she's going to get it. Even France would be hard pressed to develop delivery vehicles in 5 to 10 years."

Q — You have complained about a lack of policy enunciation by the administration, what about Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's statement that the U. S. will not accept combat operations in the Western Hemisphere by Russian troops?

A — "We could have justified anything we had to do in Cuba or in Laos if such a policy had been in effect. If there is one glaring weakness with this administration it is the inability ... or refusal to reach decisions ... indecision is our greatest problem. Look at Congress. Isn't it swamped down in committees and committees and committees?"

Proposes Cuba Blockade

Q — Against all this, what policy would you propose for Cuba?

A — "I still think a blockade. We know enough about the shortages ... food ... oil ... that if we put up a blockade and enforced it, I think we could do it without the danger of war, giving the Cuban people help in sabotage, weapons ... If need be actual military help, but I don't think we'd have to go that far. I asked Lemnitzer (Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff) and Taylor (Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, the present chairman) if Russia would defend Cuba. The answer was 'No, she wouldn't ... she couldn't ...'"

Q — How do you feel about the 1964 election?

A — "If the country doesn't start moving economically, it will become obvious the people don't want Kennedy. I thought a few months ago that Kennedy would be impossible to defeat. I don't think so now."

Q — What about the Republican nomination?

A — "It's up for grabs and I don't think the country is confined to one or two or three possibilities. I think the House of Representatives offers a good collection of candidates Republicans could unite behind."

Q — How about your willingness to be on the ticket with someone else?

A — "I don't want to be vice president. It would be ruinous to have the presidential candidate speaking for aid to education ... medicare ... in one city and me speaking against it in another ... I don't think it would attract votes."

ILLEGITIMACY RATE INCREASES

London—UPI—The illegitimacy rate in some areas of England and Wales has almost reached the wartime record, according to a statistical review to be published this week by the government.

The review, informed sources said yesterday, says most of the unmarried mothers were between 20 and 24 years old and that 9 per cent of the live births in the industrial town of Bristol last month alone were illegitimate.

Moscow—UPI—The Russian magazine Science and Religion said yesterday that an isolated colony of male and female celibates who never heard of Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev had been discovered in Siberian swamps.

It said members of the Christian "Black Magic River" community spurned meat because they believed it increased sexual desires. The men and women lived apart and never washed or shaved, the magazine said.

The magazine claimed the colony survived from the days of the Czar by recruiting children from "the outside world."

Employees Stay on Job Without Pay

Olean, N.Y. (UPI)—There is one company where union members are willing to work for their employer without compensation.

About 115 employees at the Fibre Forming Corp. in this community today started their third week without pay.

They hope to help the company ride out a period of economic trouble.

Robert W. Easley, president of the Local 22, American Federation of Grain Millers, said the workers made their decision because "Olean can't afford to lose another indus-
