Three sessions will be held to accommodate the entire department since only small groups may participate at a time for safety reasons, it was explained. Officers Will Shoot Six officers will shoot at a time with two instructors in the line, it was noted. Firing will be from the seven, 15 and 25 yard lines, part in total darkness and part with flashlight. Loading will be in total darkness, it was stated. Also scheduled this week is a postal shoot, sponsored by the Oregon Association of City Police Officers. This shoot, completely voluntary, will be held Wednesday and Thursday mornings and 15 local officers will participate. It was explained that all police departments in the state are invited to participate. The association sends targets to the individual departments which must be used in the shoot. Then they are returned to the association's headquarters in Eugene for scoring. High scorers receive trophies which are awarded at the OACPO's annual convention. McGee is a member of the association's firearms committee and will assist in the scoring. Several hundred city police officers throughout the state will participate.
