PORTUGUESE DEFENSE BUDGET ANNOUNCED
Lisbon, Portugal—Portugal will spend $15.9 million on its armed forces in Angola this year, the Ministry of National Defense announced yesterday.

CHILDREN FOUND DEAD IN REFRIGERATOR
Raamsdonkveer, The Netherlands—Three children were found dead in a refrigerator yesterday 24 hours after police, military units and volunteers begin a search for them.

NAZI GUARD BEGINS PRISON TERM
Traunstein, Germany—Former Nazi elite guard officer Josef Cornel Bachot began serving a seven-year prison sentence today for the 1945 murder of a Roman Catholic priest. Bachot, 42, was convicted yesterday of killing Father Josef Grimm because Grimm had taken down a swastika from the steeple of the Goettingen Catholic church and replaced it with a Bavarian flag.

LONDON PHONERS CAN DIAL PARIS DIRECT
Paris—London telephone owners can now dial numbers in Paris directly. The automatic system went into service today. Phone company officials said it will be 15 months, however, before the system works from Paris to London. French engineers have predicted that by 1970 it will be possible to dial directly between all European capitals.

SUSPECTS ARRESTED IN STONING CASE
Johannesburg—Seven Africans were arrested here yesterday as suspects in the stoning death of a white government information officer in a native township. Police said a mob pulled Lucas Scott from a local native officers' car and killed him Wednesday. The native officers escaped, police said.

Stocks Continue to Firm; Chrysler Off A Point; Macy Up

New York — Stocks continued to firm today. Chrysler lost more than a point in an otherwise narrowly mixed motor section. Du Pont tacked on close to 1/4 in a mixed chemical group and steels were nearly unchanged.

Kern County added roughly a point in an irregularly higher oil group. Stores were well represented with Korvette and Macy up a point or more.

Electronics were erratic featuring Cenco off nearly 1 and Minneapolis-Honeywell up close to 1.

FRIENDLY EXPRESSION—Former Vice-President Richard Nixon shows a friendly expression to newsmen as he answers questions during news conference in Chicago Thursday. Nixon said he has no plans to be a candidate for public office, but offers to work hard for whoever gets the GOP presidential nomination in 1964. The former vice president is in Chicago to speak at the Commercial Club, where no newsmen will be permitted. (UPI)

Nixon Airs Views On Cuba Invasion; Urges Quarantine

New York — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon goes before the nation tonight to play the piano and air his views on political matters ranging from the Bay of Pigs invasion to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's "cold, calculating eyes."

Nixon's taped appearance on the Jack Paar show was broadcast over the Canadian Television Network Thursday night and will be beamed into American homes tonight by the National Broadcasting Co.

The former vice president, lingering in the shadows of public life since his defeat in California's gubernatorial election last fall, jumped back into the thickets of political warfare with a sharp attack on President Kennedy's handling of the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba.

Nixon charged that Kennedy blundered by failing to provide air cover for the invasion that could have toppled Fidel Castro's Communist regime. He said former President Dwight D. Eisenhower would never have made that mistake.

To solve the problems currently posed by Castro, Nixon called for a "complete quarantine" of Cuba and unilateral moves if necessary to see that all Soviet personnel leave the island. He also said on-site inspection is necessary to make certain that Russia has removed all its offensive missiles.

The conversation with Paar was Nixon's first plunge back into public affairs since his post mortem press conference in Los Angeles last Nov. 7, the day after his defeat to Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

At that time, he lashed out at the press for the way it covered his campaign, telling newsmen:

"Just think how much you're going to be missing. You won't have Nixon to kick around any more."

Nixon intended that press conference as his political swan song, but Thursday night he said he had changed his mind about withdrawing from public life.

"I intend to continue the practice of law, but I am going to turn down any suggestions that would make it necessary for me not to continue to speak out from time to time on public issues," he said.

"I speak only as an individual citizen, free to express my views on my party, on my country, as I see fit." Hammering away on the Cuban issue, Nixon said, "now as far as air cover is concerned I have noted the debate about it. Everybody is getting into the act, and I noticed suggestions to the effect that President Kennedy did or did not promise air cover.

"All that I can say on that is simply this, if... no air cover was provided it, the invasion should never have been planned in the first place.

"And when the suggestion is made that President Eisenhower may or may not have planned air cover I would only suggest this, I cannot imagine the general who planned the greatest invasion of Normandy allowing those 1500 brave Cubans to go in the Bay of Pigs there without having first destroyed the enemy air power or providing air cover."

Matching Monies Urged by Corbett

Salem — State matching funds for political campaigns were proposed Thursday by Sen. Alfred Corbett (D-Portland).

They would apply to candidates for state-wide office running in a general election.

Corbett and Rep. Beulah Hand (D-Milwaukie) also called for an income tax reduction for campaign contributions up to $100.

Corbett and Mrs. Hand introduced two bills. A candidate accepting matching funds would have to agree to limit expenditures. A fair elections commission would supervise the granting of state aid.

Corbett said such a system would help candidates avoid entangling alliances with large contributors.

The matching fund proposal is similar to a bill introduced in Congress by Sen. Maurine Neuberger.

Clown Plans Visit To City Tomorrow

Bobby Kay, internationally known clown personality, will be in Medford Saturday to start planning for the Elks circus in the Medford armory.

The circus will be here March 25. The clown, formerly with Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circuses, will be here tomorrow and Monday, March 11.

Numerous appearances are being planned for Bobby Kay by the Medford Elks club. He will be seen on the Medford streets in his favorite clown make-up and wardrobe.

When the circus comes to Medford, it will give two performances on two days. There will be a matinee at 4 p.m. and an evening show at 8 p.m. Monday, March 25 and Tuesday, March 26.

Man May Be Held On Murder Charge

Lakeview, Ore. — A motorist arrested near Bend Thursday was to be charged here today on a charge of first degree murder in the death of Mrs. Theresa Arzner, 60, of Lakeview.

Police said the condition of Mrs. Arzner's body, found near the Lakeview-Klamath Falls highway early Thursday, indicated it had been run over repeatedly by an automobile.

Robert Lee O'Conner, 26, whose last address was listed as 2501 Prater Wa. Sparks, Nev., was arrested apparently on a tip and taken to Bend where the charge was filed.

Lake County District Attorney Chick Chaloupka and Sheriff Donald Woodward brought O'Conner to Lakeview today.

Police said blood was found in O'Conner's car.

Labor, Management Urge State To Study Impact of Automation

Salem — In a rare joint appeal, labor and management urged the state of Oregon Thursday to prepare to meet the growing impact of automation.

They called for approval of a resolution to create an interim committee to map out ways of meeting the problems of technological unemployment.

Ivan Conleton of Associated Oregon Industries and George Brown of the AFL-CIO both told the Senate committee on state and federal affairs it is time to start now.

"We must face the fact that automation is becoming serious," Conleton said. "Let's get a head start on a problem we know we are going to have to face."

Brown agreed. "The longer we wait," he said, "the more difficult it will be."

He said the unions were not against automation and technological advances.

"What we are saying is that if that necessary... we'll have to find an answer to the displacement of these people."

Sen. Ted Hallock (D-Portland) sponsor of the measure, said the problem is here now. He said farm and lumber employment, for example, have declined severely.

"You cannot turn back the clock," Hallock said.

Overall Study Asked
The resolution would create a committee of legislators and representatives of labor and industry to make an overall study of employment problems and potential. The committee would be charged with suggesting programs and recommending ways of financing them.

Hallock stirred particular committee interest when he described a recent program in the Portland area for training waiters under the Federal Manpower Retraining act.

He called selection of the waiter category a "farce," and said it indicated how disorganized Oregon's present efforts were.

Hallock noted, however, the several thousand dollars spent retraining one man under the federal program was a drop in the bucket compared to the sum the state would have to pay in unemployment and welfare money if he were left untrained.

Hallock said alternatives of voluntary cooperation between state agencies or between labor and management would never work.

"Do you think you would live long enough... Do you think I would live long enough...?" he asked drily.

The State Labor Department said its own programs now amount to "little beginnings on a small scale... piecemeal attempts to hit a particular area."

It said a study could "point the way to public and private programs that can ease the transition." The department added the 1963 Oregon Legislature probably will face the decision of whether to match federal retraining funds.

Hallock noted wide support for the measure from labor, management, groups and news editors around the state.

Referring to Conleton and Brown, he added, "You have heard today something very unusual and very wonderful—unanimity between the AOI and the AFL-CIO."
