

Railroad Dispute Settlement Seen By SOCTFA Group

Russell Hogue, of Medford Corporation and chairman of Southern Oregon Conservation and Tree Farm associations' traffic committee, told the group Friday night he expected a settlement to prevent a Southern Pacific railroad clerk's strike some time Saturday night.

Hogue learned this when talking to Southern Pacific officials at San Francisco Friday, he said. He predicted lumber and plywood plants could operate only two weeks if the Brotherhood of Railroad Clerks went out on strike.

"I have been asked what the industry should do in case of a strike. Every plywood, lumber and other plant served by Southern Pacific should close down immediately for the duration of a strike. This economic pressure would force an end," Hogue said.

Dependent on Railroad

The lumber company official said the lumber industry here had not always "seen eye to eye" with the railroad, but it is dependent on its transportation facilities.

"Nationally, railroads have a problem economically. In the east and midwest they are almost broke. Passenger travel is low and is financed by out of pocket costs," Hogue explained. "Trucks are taking the more profitable short hauls and LPL freight."

To improve their cost position, the railroads have tried various automation. Unfortunately, when the railroads were flush financially they bargained away many of their rights with the unions.

Due to installation of such automation equipment as electronic computers the railroad clerks have been directly affected. Since Southern Pacific is financially better off than many railroads, the union is making the present argument a test case, he explained.

Offset Curtailment

The railroad has offered not to lay off personnel, but should an employee leave for any reason, not to rehire. In many cases of distressed areas, the railroad offered to offset curtailment of employment by augmenting employment insurance benefits and monthly compensation up to five years.

"But the unions said no," Hogue noted. "They are more interested in position protection than people protection."

Hogue added that the railroad car supply is still "not too good." The strike threat caused rerouting of all westward shipments to other lines. Westward movement of freight cars is below 50 per cent of normal movement, he said. However, SP is making an increased effort to get 3,000 cars into Oregon over this week end, Hogue pointed out.

Southern Pacific is doing a good job in building new double-door cars needed by plywood and veneer manufacturers and is converting a number of cars to the double-door type, he added. Eastern lines are rebuilding a number of their cars, too, he said, but the car shortage is still serious, and was not felt as much during the normally slow period of January and February as it will be during the busy shipping season, he predicted.

Greyhound Driver Will Receive Safety Award

Savings Bond Sales Lower in February

February sales of U.S. savings bonds in Jackson county were lower this year than during the same month a year ago and considerably under accumulative sales through Feb. 28 compared with the previous year.

Sales last month totaled $77,738, compared to $82,972 in 1962. Accumulative sales through Feb. 28, totalled $199,172 bonds, compared to $219,132 through Feb. 28, 1962.

State bond sales totals show a slight drop in February sales, $2,591,881 last month compared to $2,794,300 in February, 1962. Accumulative sales in 1963 were slightly higher for the state, $6,834,239 compared to $6,448,944.

Woman Quits Home To Begin Dieting

Long Beach, Calif. — (UPI) — Mrs. Mary Ferguson, 36, is leaving her husband, not because she doesn't love him, but because she wants to get her weight down to 200 pounds.

The 244-pound woman said she will move into a hotel room to begin a two-week "medically approved" fast so she can fit into new clothes she wants for Easter.

"I just can't maintain a girlish figure at home," Mrs. Ferguson said. "My husband likes rich food. He's a slim man and a big eater and he never puts on weight. I can't stand not to eat when he does."

During the two weeks she will have no solid food, only coffee, tea, bouillon and vitamin pills. Her doctor, who asked not to be named, approved of the crash program. He said she would be under medical supervision all the time.

Mrs. Ferguson's husband, Arthur 46, an advertising salesman, will remain at home. They have no children. They were married 13 years ago when she weighed only 115 pounds.

A seasonal burning permit can be issued by the department where an enclosed burner or incinerator is properly maintained, Nesheim said. The incinerators must be covered by a screen constructed of not less than 14 gauge wire with mesh not larger than 1/4 inch, he added.

All inflammable material which could cause the escape or spread of fire must be cleared from around the incinerator for a safe distance. This cleared area, he added, must be properly maintained to keep it safe throughout the season.
