Thespian Troupe To Give Reading

The great Greek tragedy, "Antigone" will be presented at 8 o'clock tonight at Medford High school by the Thespian troupe as a reading group. It is scheduled in room 81 and tickets will be on sale at the door.

Tonight's presentation will be the only one. This will be the first time that the students have attempted a reading presentation, which depends entirely upon vocal interpretation and facial expression for dramatic impact. Few presentations of this sort are given in this country, but in recent years Paul Gregory has done so, using such stars as Charles Laughton, Tyrone Power and Agnes Moorehead, and the productions have been successful.

Reading tonight will be Tracy Blackstone as Antigone, Greg Keith as Creon, the tyrannical ruler of Thebes; Carolyn Bowser as Ismene, the young sister, and Haemon, the son of Creon, will be read by Bill Houston. Others in the cast are John Hettinga, Mike De Salvo, Jim Kerber and Judie Brookman.

Rhubarb Ways—Rosy rhubarb served alone or in combination with other fruits (notably strawberries at this season) gives a fresh tart taste and attractive color to any meal of the day. It adds flavor and piquant surprise to strudels and meringues. It makes memorable pies.

To Stew Rhubarb—Cut stalks in half-inch pieces; place in pan with water to barely cover bottom of the pan; cover and let rhubarb cook, over very low heat, until tender — a matter of minutes. Then add sugar to your taste. One cup of sugar to 1/4 cups of cut-up rhubarb is a balance favored by many.

Nutmeg, thin slices of lemon or orange are favorite additions before cooking. Serve warm or cold. For a superb dessert heralding Spring, pass dairy sour cream.

We Bake Rhubarb—Many rhubarb "sauces" ers favor it cooked topside of stove. We bake it. Just combine rhubarb and sugar (4 cups cut-up rhubarb and 1 cup sugar and be sure to try brown sugar sometimes); add a very few thin slices of unpeeled lemon. Place in covered baking dish and bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees, until tender and that means maybe 12 minutes or so. Each brightly colored, highly flavored bit holds its shape. A blob of dairy sour cream to top it.

Here's A Fine Kettle of Fish—There are many delicious ways to serve fish besides broiling, frying or baking them. Here we put fresh or fresh-frozen cod, haddock or any other large white fish into a flavorful chowder for six generous servings.

1 1/2 pounds any flavored white fish
2 large potatoes, diced
1 cup carrots, diced
4 cups water
1/4 pound salt pork, diced
1 onion, chopped
2 tablespoons enriched flour
2 cups milk
Salt and pepper
Cut fish into small pieces; remove bones and skin. Cook fish, potatoes and carrots in water for 15 minutes. Fry salt pork until crisp; remove from pan. Cook onion in pork fat until tender. Add flour and stir until well blended; add milk slowly. Pour mixture over fish and vegetables. Add salt and pepper. Simmer 10 minutes longer, stirring gently.

Asparagus Has Put In An Appearance—The bright green spears of asparagus on produce stands are one of the most welcome sights of Spring. A highly seasonal delicacy, first-of-the-season asparagus is treated tenderly, usually served on toast points dressed only with seasoned butter or with lemon butter. Later perhaps, after the first savouring, you may want to consider an accompaniment such as cheese sauce, hollandaise, vinaigrette sauce or chopped hard-cooked eggs.

For easy cooking, divide cleaned asparagus into serving size bunches and tie each with a string. Stand asparagus upright in a small amount of boiling salted water in a high pan such as bottom of double boiler or coffee pot. Cover and cook 15 to 20 minutes or until just tender. Lift out by catching tines of fork in string. Arrange on platter or toast points; remove string. Pour sauce over or pass it from sauceboat.

Lenten Season Highlight on Fish, Eggs, Macaroni—Whether your family planning calls for all or only occasional meatless meals from now until Easter, you'll find stores featuring a wealth of good inexpensive foods of high protein quality.

Fish and Shellfish—Fine variety in fresh, frozen and canned seafoods at reasonable cost because of nearby waterways. Pan-ready for quick cooking include mackerel, kingfish, eastern whiting, smelts, flounder. Brook trout is readily available. Steak and baking varieties easy on the budget include ling cod, swordfish, Chinook salmon and northern halibut. Now is time to find greatest eating

Rhubarb Heralds Spring
When good supplies of ruby rhubarb with its vibrant beauty and unique flavor show up in local markets, spring cannot be very far behind. Fresh rhubarb adds invigorating flavor to menus; satisfies March's yen for something refreshing.

Rhubarb in markets now is mostly from hothouses of our state of Washington. Pierce and King counties are largest producing area in the country with car loads and truck loads leaving daily for every part of the United States.

Select rhubarb that is well colored, firm, crisp and has fairly thick stalks and you'll have tender rhubarb that is free from strings. Do not peel young crisp rhubarb. Wash and slice at cooking time.

Macaroni Products—The macaroni family is a big one; offers fine nutrition. Make macaroni dishes, spaghetti specialties. Egg noodles in a custard sauce are superb.

Dairy Products—There's seasonal abundance of satisfying nutritious cottage cheese which might well be on the table at any meal, "as is" for seasoning in any preferred way. A dab of honey, molasses, syrup or jam will encourage the children to "eat lots of good cottage cheese." During Lent and throughout the year, few main dishes are more satisfying than macaroni with cheese, potatoes with cheese, cheese rarebits, cheese souffles, cheese omelets; all using economical cheddar cheese.

Bishop Named Head Of Area Young GOP

Lloyd Bishop of Delah Timber was recently elected president of the Jackson County Young Republicans.

In the Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS

The news as this is written? It's a mishmash.

FOR example:
In Washington the other day, Sen. Thomas McIntyre of New Hampshire got a letter from a constituent, 20-year-old Shirley LeMieux, who is a Peace Corps worker in far-off Bolivia. She has a problem. The problem is this: At the Bolivian nursery where her unit of the Peace Corps works, 50 babies have no diapers. Fifty diaperless babies constitute a problem that clearly falls within the purview of the Peace Corps. But her outfit has no money with which to buy diapers—besides the number of diapers required by 50 Bolivian babies is a detail that wasn't covered in her Peace Corps indoctrination.

So she wrote to her senator-Senator McIntyre.

HE TOO was stumped. So he put the problem up to the Assistant Secretary of State, a Mr. Frederick G. Dutton. It was over his head also. So, in the accepted Washington manner, he passed it on to his assistant, a Mr. Tom Mathews—who passed the buck to the infant wear department of a big Washington department store, which passed it on to a wholesaler in Baltimore, who recommended a manufacturer in New York—who agreed to provide the diapers.

BUT—The problem STILL wasn't solved. The manufacturer asked HOW MANY DIAPERS? That put the problem right back in Washington's lap.

IN WASHINGTON, Assistant Secretary of State Dutton passed the buck back to his assistant, Tom Mathews. Assistant to the Assistant Secretary of State Mathews thereupon went to headquarters. He phoned his wife.

His wife replied that she felt reasonably competent to prescribe for one American baby, but she just had NO IDEA how many diapers might be required by 50 Bolivian babies.

SO—The assistant to the assistant to the Assistant Secretary of State of the United States of America—being down at the bottom of the heap where he had no assistant to pass the buck to—phoned the maternity ward of a big Washington hospital.

THE superintendent of the maternity ward came up with an estimate of 10 diapers per baby per day. When this estimate was given to the proper vice-president of the manufacturer's staff, he decided to be on the safe side and agreed to ship 1,000 diapers to Miss LeMieux in Bolivia.

He made only one stipulation: DON'T MENTION MY NAME.

Anyway, the Bolivian babies will get their diapers.

IN CONCLUSION:
It was Thomas Jefferson who said THAT GOVERNMENT IS BEST THAT GOVERNS LEAST. One can't help wondering what Thomas Jefferson would think of this Bolivian diaper incident.

About half the nation's home economists get their education from land grant schools.
