Practice Fire Planned Sunday

Jacksonville – The Jacksonville Volunteer Fire department will put on a demonstration of fighting gasoline and butane fires Sunday at 1 p.m. The demonstration will take place on the old Beekman lot behind the lumber yard on South Fifth st.

The public is invited to observe this spectacular demonstration, although onlookers are warned not to get too close.

The demonstration is part of a 30-hour fire fighting course being given here. Norman Nelson of the Medford Fire department will direct Sunday's demonstration.

C. C. Hoover's Tree Program Continues

By DOTTIE HARBISON
Mail Tribune Correspondent

Eagle Point – Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Hoover are now in the process of distributing thousands of Redwood trees to school children in southern Oregon. At the present time students in Grants Pass, Central Point school system, Phoenix, Talent, and Ashland have all received their trees.

Hoover recommends that all of these Redwood trees be planted in the shade and preferably on a back lot or yard with about three to four inches of mulch laid over the ground. Straw, leaves or lawn clippings make excellent mulch and help keep the ground moist around the little trees, he said. One tree to a lot is plenty for the Redwood trees and will add a contrasting beauty to the entire valley when they are older.

"All children who live on small lots may plant them and care for them for the next four years and then transplant them to either a larger lot, give it to someone who has room for it or just take it out and plant it in the forest to help add beauty and replenish our trees there," he added. The dirt should be balled when transplanting them later.

Hoover said he would like to have the parents encourage the youngsters to plant the trees immediately if possible or give it to someone who will care for them as they are difficult trees to obtain.

"The children are receiving these trees with great enthusiasm," Hoover noted. He added that the youngsters have accepted the program just like the "farmer has with his failures and successes in crops. The first year several of the youngsters lost their trees, with the second and third years having more success and their enthusiasm growing with the trees," he said.

"Yes, I am finding the youngsters more enthusiastic than ever for the project," was his comment. Part of this can also be attributed to the education the children have received with the tree program and the experience in showing them by themselves. As each tree starts to put out its new leaves this spring it brings much excitement and thrill to the small child who has patiently cared for it over the past one to three years.

Fertilization of their trees is recommended by Hoover who suggests that students contact their county agent or nursery man in their own community for the type of fertilizer best suited to their area. A brand of bounce fertilizer will probably be recommended.

An order for Redwood trees for 7,500 youngsters in Douglas County around the Roseburg area came as a very much of a surprise but happy one to Mr. and Mrs. Hoover. The Hoovers have purchased about 300,000 Redwood trees, all of which they expect to have distributed by the first of May. Hoover said his ambition now is to give away one million trees.

Four Counties

He is giving his trees to school children in Jackson, Klamath, Josephine, and Douglas counties. The children in the first two grades receive their trees potted.

In the past Hoover has distributed trees to youngsters in the church nurseries also but has asked that they contact him ahead of time so he can have their little trees potted for them and they can pick them up at his home on Gregory rd. Due to his tight schedule he will not be able to distribute to nurseries this year.

Over the past two weeks, Boy Scouts of Troop 49 have distribtued trees to over 400 people in White City and surrounding area. Boys of Troop 48 delivered trees to about 400 people in the Eagle Point area.

"We're going to do it any way," Hoover said as he remarked scientists had told him it was impossible to grow Redwood trees in Klamath county.

Speech Contest Winner Named

By HAZEL DAVIS
Mail Tribune Correspondent

Happy Camp–A speech contest sponsored by the Happy Camp Lions club March 1 was won by sophomore Charlotte Terry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Terry of Happy Camp. There were two other contestants competing for the chance to go on farther in more Lions club contests for the top prize of a $1,500 scholarship.

Each student competing spoke on the same theme, "Conformity, A Real Challenge To Me." Miss Terry's speech was well prepared and presented. Included in her speech were statements used explaining in what ways young people should and should not conform as applied to her own life.

Other students competing were: Bill Nowdesha, senior; and Ronald Chambers, sophomore, all from Happy Camp High school.

In winning the local contest, Miss Terry became eligible to compete in the Lions Club Zone contest to be held in Yreka March 15. The winner of that contest will go on to a regional contest, and that winner will go on to a district contest.

The local Lions Club will pay all travel expenses of Miss Terry in her higher competition.

High School Principal James Foote was master of ceremonies, and at the end of the contest preceding the awarding of trophies, he introduced the speakers and the judges.

Milton Kevershan, president of the Lions club here, presented the trophies to the students.

This is the eighth year the contest has been held here, all sponsored by the Lions club.

Eugene Highlanders To Play At Phoenix Firemen's Ball

Phoenix—Phil White and the Eugene Highlanders of the Oregon Governor's guard of Eugene will perform at intermission Saturday night at the volunteer firemen's ball, being held at the Phoenix Community hall on First st. The ball will start at 9 p.m.

The Highlanders consists of 20 musicians and four dancers. The group has performed at the Oregon Centennial and Seattle World's Fair. Also they hve performed for President Kennedy, Adlai Stevenson, and the Queen of England.

The Phoenix Volunteer Fire the department for needed equipment. The admission to the dance is $1.00 a couple, Department was first organized in 1910. Some of its first equipment consisted of 48 one gallon iron buckets, 100 feet of one inch rope, two roof ladders, three shorter ladders, three pole axes and a six-foot chain with prongs and hooks.

The department has come a long way since those early years.

The proceeds from the firemen's ball will go back into and 50c for students. The Ladies Auxiliary will serve coffee, cake, sandwiches, and pie.

TO VISIT PHOENIX—The Eugene Highlanders, three members of whom are seen above, will be in Phoenix Saturday night to play during the intermission of the fireman's ball.

Gold Hill Council Okays Fire Course

Gold Hill–Action to offer men here an opportunity to take a 20 hour course on fire fighting training was approved by the Gold Hill city council during a regular council session last week.

Council members voted to have the city pay expense which will be matched by the state for the course which is sponsored by the department of vocational education, Salem.

C. Clyde Kell, fire chief of the Gold Hill Volunteer fire department, was authorized by the council to make arrangements which have been made. The first class will be given tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the fire hall. Instruction will be given by Bob Swindler, fireman from the Medford Fire department.

Since all fire fighting in the city of Gold Hill is done strictly on a volunteer basis council members were of the opinion that it is vital that as many men as possible be correctly trained in all phases of fire fighting on the local level. This is important as a means of self-protection as well as for the welfare of other persons and property involved when there is a fire.

The instructor and Vernon Ritchie, captain from the Medford Fire department who is coordinator for department of vocational education in fire fighting training programs in Jackson and Josephine counties, will be at the fire hall at 7 p.m. to answer questions. All men who are interested in fighting fire on a volunteer basis are urged to attend. Other interested persons are also invited.

At the present time fire fighting training schools are under way in six other places: Jacksonville, Phoenix, Talent, city of Central Point, Eagle Point and Shady Cove under the same program.

Illinois Valley – The American Legion Glenn Morrison Post No. 70 has donated a 50 star United States flag to the Kerby Grade school. Dave Wilson presented the flag to the students at their last assembly recently.

The fifth grade students gave a program for the assembly with teachers Mrs. Art Staton and Mrs. Edna Thruch directing. Theme of the program was the Patriotic Importance of the Month of February.

Jacksonville Plans Spring Cleanup

Jacksonville – Jacksonville city officials announced this week that a general spring cleanup campaign will get under way Saturday. It will run through March 30.

All residents will be urged to clean up their property and remove all cans, trash and other rubbish. Residents also will be urged to do burning before summer fire restrictions become effective, April 1.

Rogue River City Council Renames Judge Greenhill

Rogue River – A special council meeting was called by Roy Strickland, chairman of the police committee, last Saturday, March 9.

Judge Raymond Greenhill was reappointed police justice for the city of Rogue River.

The council agreed to furnish uniforms for the chief of police, LeRoi Webb. The two sets will cost approximately $70.

It was decided that Wayne Johnson, assistant relief man for Webb, should continue his duties for the remainder of this month, and starting April 1st Donald Campagna, newly appointed fire chief, will act as relief man for the city police.

Headquarters for the city police have been moved from the city hall to the adjoining room of the city jail which has been partially remodeled and a phone extension from the city hall added.

At this meeting, the city council authorized the city recorder-treasurer, Orva Jean Cruise, to purchase a new desk and filing cabinet of her choice. The desk now used in the city hall office will then be moved to the new office of the police department.
