Amnesty May Not Help Mindszenty

Vienna, Austria – (UPI) – Informed observers said today a sweeping amnesty in Communist Hungary is unlikely to result in immediate freedom for Joszef Cardinal Mindszenty.

Mindszenty, the Roman Catholic primate of Hungary, has been under asylum in the U. S. Legation in Budapest since Russian troops and tanks crushed the "freedom fighter" rebellion of 1956.

Hungarian Premier and Communist Party boss Janos Kadar proclaimed the amnesty Thursday, with the new parliament giving it unanimous approval.

The amnesty provisions exclude the cardinal. But Kadar said those not covered in the general proclamation might be given their freedom if they apply for "mercy" on an individual basis.

Mindszenty was sentenced in 1949 to life in prison on charges of treason, espionage and black marketing. He was freed briefly by the 1956 revolution but he sought refuge in the U.S. legation.

Observers here said it was unlikely the prelate, who will be 71 years old next Friday, would make an appeal to the Communist regime.

Blizzard Holds Up Search for Plane

Santanna Di Valdieri, Italy –(UPI)–A raging blizzard high in the French-Italian Alps blocked a search for the wreckage of Saudi Arabian King Saud's private jetliner again today.

The luxurious plane, carrying 18 persons but not the monarch on a flight from Geneva to Nice, disappeared in snow-swept mountains near here early Wednesday. All aboard were feared dead.

Officials at the rescue center here ordered 25 men to resume trying to find the plane this morning but called them back when the blizzard hit.

Swiss Urge Ban on Kissing, Dancing

Zermatt, Switzerland – (UPI) – Swiss authorities called for a ban on kissing and dancing today as the best way to combat a typhoid epidemic which already has struck 100 persons.

Some tourists showed little concern. They danced the twist into the early morning hours in the smoky nightclubs of this mile-high Alpine village famed for its skiing and its spectacular view of the lofty Matterhorn.

Forty persons are being treated in strict isolation at an emergency hospital set up in Zermatt's new schoolhouse, with armed police guarding the doors.

Another 35 cases have been reported in Britain among returning tourists. Several other countries have reported cases linked to Zermatt and doctors estimate the total at "about 100."

No fatalities have been reported so far.

The U.S. Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta said the United States is among countries reporting typhoid cases traced to exposure in Zermatt in the latter part of February.

Local Man Treated For Mishap Injuries

Donald Martin Fiedler Jr., 16, of 309 East Jackson st., Medford, was treated at Sacred Heart hospital Thursday night following a two-car collision at the intersection of North Riverside ave. and Maple st., according to Medford police.

Cited for violation of the basic rule and failure to maintain control of the vehicle, was Donald Edward Jenkins, 24, of 4642 Table Rock rd.

According to police, the Fiedler vehicle slowed to make a left turn onto Maple st. when it was hit from behind by the Jenkins car. Fiedler was thrown from his car in the impact, police said.

Mrs. Jean Stuart Dies at Home

Funeral arrangements will be announced by the Perl Funeral home.

Florists Give Tips On Growing Begonias

New York–(UPI)–If you want to grow begonias, you'll need a location that receives indirect sunlight, says the American Society of Florists.

This calls for a sunny spot with a light curtain to break the glare. Begonias also need warm temperatures—80 to 85 degrees during the day, the temperature often found near a sunny window, and no lower than 65 at night.

Two People Hurt In Area Accidents

Two people were injured in two of three accidents on Jackson county highways yesterday, state police reported.

Geoffrey Dale Hiatt, 18, of 1428 East Main st., Medford, was reported in fair condition at Sacred Heart hospital this morning while being treated for a head injury and bruises and lacerations.

Hiatt's motor scooter hit the side of a car as William Ellbert Smith, 52, of 1075½ McAndrews rd., made a left turn from Jacksonville highway onto Oak Grove rd. The motor scooter was eastbound on the Jacksonville highway, police said.

Carol Anne Law, 18, of Prineville, was reported in fair condition today in Ashland Community hospital after her car ran off the Suncrest rd. near Talent and hit a large pear tree yesterday, state police said.

She is being treated for a large cut on her forehead, a cut just below the left knee and possible internal injuries.

A third accident yesterday occurred on Highway 99 near Ashland when cars driven by Shirlee Mae Thorson, 24, Milton, Wash., and William Draper, 67, Yreka, Calif., collided.

No injuries were reported, state police said.

Measle Vaccine To Be Available

Washington – (UPI) – Supplies of a new measles vaccine are expected to be available this week to help doctors fight a disease encountered by 90 per cent of the world's children.

The government Thursday licensed Merck Sharp & Dohme and Charles Pfizer & company to distribute different types of the vaccine.

Merck Sharp & Dohme immediately announced that it would make a live-virus variety available to physicians throughout the country within 48 hours.

Merck officials said they have not decided on a price for the vaccine. "We are still in the process of informing physicians and the drug trade about this product, its form, quantities, shipping and storage requirements."

Pfizer said it would supply physicians with a killed-virus vaccine within four to five weeks.

In announcing the licensing of the two firms Thursday, U.S. Surgeon General Luther L. Terry said the vaccine would be made available to the public through private physicians, rather than in a mass innoculation program.

Group Psychotherapy

Quite obviously, with a few million Americans needing psychiatric help, and only a few thousand doctors sufficiently trained to help them, many people who are mentally disturbed must go largely untreated. Also, with well-trained specialists having to charge at least 20 dollars an hour for their time, hundreds of thousands of poor people just cannot afford to get expert help.

Alvarez

Because of all this, of late more and more psychiatrists have been treating groups of disturbed people; and now I read that an American Group Psychotherapy association has been formed with some 750 members. The patients are helped in many ways by being brought together. They cheer and encourage and teach each other. One will pass on to another the benefit of what he or she has learned, perhaps in a mental hospital.

There are organizations such as Recovery, Inc. in Chicago and in other cities, in which persons who have been in a mental hospital and have largely recovered, meet every week to help each other or to help newcomers into the group.

I remember well one of my patients with a very distressing fear of heart disease – which he didn't have. At intervals through many years, I straightened him out and sent him back to work, but finally a day came when he was so paralyzed with fear that no matter what I said I couldn't cheer him up; I could not convince him that his heart was all right. Then I sent him to Recovery, Inc., where a woman who had been cured of exactly the same fear took him in charge, and soon she had him back on his job.

Many patients can be so greatly helped by someone who has had their disease and has been cured of it, that they would much rather talk to him than to a doctor. This probably explains why in Ancient Sumeria, some 3,000 years before Christ, sick people would gather at a certain point in the city where passers-by would say, "I had your trouble and took (something-or-other) and got well. And that remedy was what the patient then took!

One great advantage of group therapy for nervous and troubled people is that it cuts the cost down to perhaps 50 cents for the person who has little money, and 4 or 5 dollars for someone who is fairly well off. This technic is being used now in mental hospitals.

One important way to help persons with mental problems is to learn to recognize and understand the problem. Dr. Alvarez' booklet, "When Mental Illness Strikes a Family," may be obtained by sending irritable and "ornery," or he ed, stamped envelope with your request for it to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. Glucagon For Diabetics

I have been asked by my good friend Harold Rivkin, chairman of the Lay Society of the Twin Cities' Diabetes association, to tell here about the great value that the new chemical glucagon can have in the treatment of many young diabetics who have a severe form of the disease. Glucagon, like insulin, is made in certain of the "islet cells" of the pancreas (the big digestive gland back of the stomach).

The great value of the new drug lies in the fact that it is an antagonist to insulin, and hence when needed, it can almost immediately stop a severe insulin reaction. To illustrate: one night the Rivkins, whose son David has a severe and dangerous type of diabetes, woke to find the boy suffering with the type of "intestinal flu" which produces violent vomiting and diarrhea. When, with this, the lad went into an alarming insulin reaction, the parents found it impossible to give him the syrup which, in a few minutes, would have brought him out into safety – the syrup came up as soon as it went down. As a result, my friends had to rush the boy several miles to a hospital where some sugar solution was quickly injected into a vein.

Today, when a diabetic child is in a dangerous insulin reaction, and perhaps starts to vomit, or perhaps goes into convulsions so violent that he cannot be induced to swallow given a hypodermic injection of glucagon.

As a child goes into an insulin reaction, he may become irritable and "ornery," or he may become woozy and uncommunicative; he may break out into a sweat, or he may tremble, or become restless or nauseated.

Glucagon comes in a packet –with instructions as to its use–and now every family of a young diabetic who is taking large doses of insulin should have one or two such packets in the house. Every member of the family should know, first, how to recognize the needed syrup, he can be an insulin reaction quickly and second, how to give glucagon. Fortunately, glucagon does not go stale; it is a powder which does not even have to be kept in the refrigerator. It can be bought in drugstores.
