

Oregon State Cools Off, Loses To Duke, Cincinnati In NCAA Basketball Finals

Bearcat Defense Keeps Terry Baker Scoreless

Louisville, Ky. — (UPI) — Duke's Blue Devils, with all-American Art Heyman spearheading a second-half drive, rolled over Oregon State 85-63 Saturday night to capture third place in the NCAA basketball finals.

Heyman hooked up in a second-half scoring duel with Oregon State's seven-foot center, Mel Counts, who outscored him 25 to 22 in the game. Heyman, however, got 16 in the second half and had considerable help from Fred Schmidt and Jeff Mullins, while Counts wasn't getting much assistance from any of his Beaver mates.

The victory, scored in a preliminary to the national championship battle between Cincinnati and Loyola of Chicago, carried a little more significance than the usual meaningless consolation game.

Had Duke lost, the Atlantic Coast conference to which it belongs would have surrendered its automatic first round bye in the NCAA Eastern regionals next year to the Middle Atlantic conference. The byes are awarded to the conferences with the best NCAA tournament won-lost records.

Duke moved easily to a 34-23 halftime lead over the cold-shooting Beavers who, except for Counts, seemed outclassed in these NCAA championships. The Blue Devils actually wrapped it up by outscoring the West Coast club 16-6 during a three minute span in the second half to seize a 59-37 lead.

Duke hit a hot 49.2 per cent from the floor to Oregon State's 28.8 and would have wrapped it up even earlier if it had been able to do a little better than its 21 of 35 from the free throw line.

Schmidt was Duke's second leading scorer with 20 points, many of them on feeds and handoffs from Heyman under the basket. Steve Pauly had 12 for Oregon State while football star Terry Baker who was held scoreless by Cincinnati Friday night, netted only seven last night.

Oregon State Coach Slat Gilt commented "We put so much into getting here that we didn't have anything left." He added his team's shooting in the tournament except for Counts was the worst in some time.

LOSE TO BEARCATS

Louisville, Ky. — (UPI) — Cincinnati advanced to within one victory of an unprecedented third straight N. C. A. A. basketball championship when it routed Oregon State, 80-46, Friday night while Loyola Ill. downed Duke, 94-75, to reach last night's title round.

The hard-working Beavers never got in front of Cincinnati, but for one brief moment as the second half opened they moved within a single point and gave the tournament crowd of 19,153 at Freedom Hall short-lived reason to think an upset was in the making.

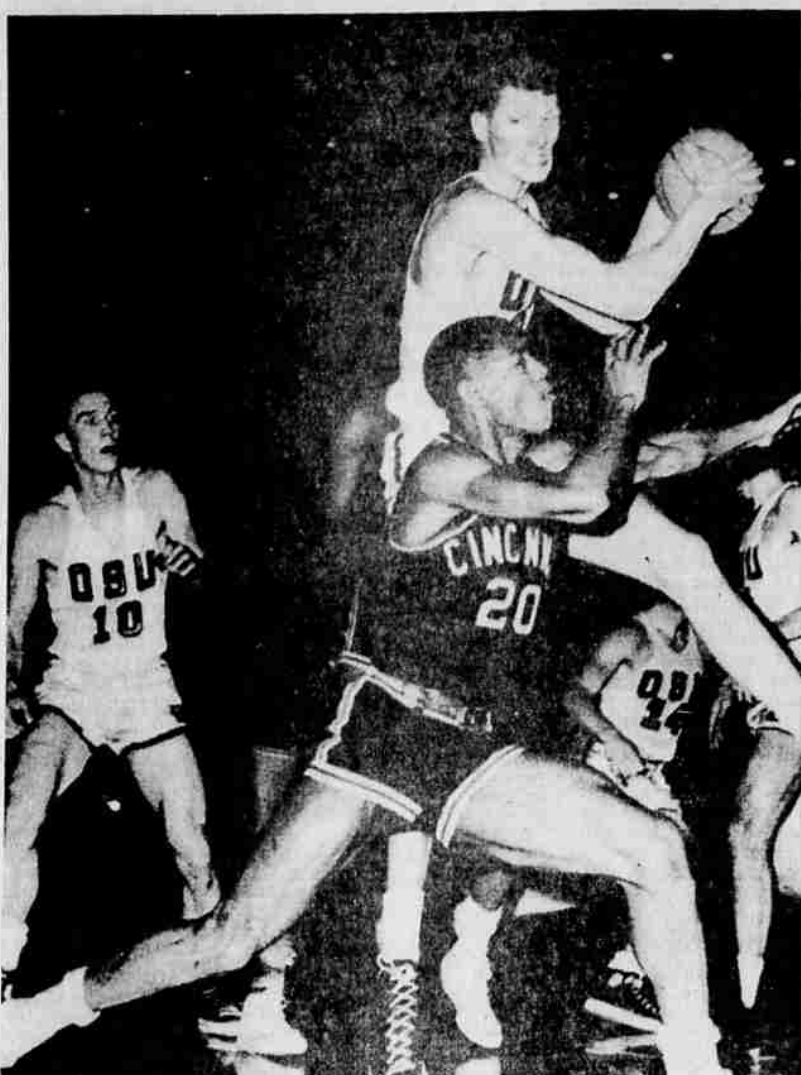

Leading only, 30-27 at intermission nationally - first-ranked Cincinnati threw the ball away as the second half opened and Frank Peters scored on a layup for Oregon State.

Then the Beavers missed their big chance. In the next six minutes of play, Cincinnati packed up 16 consecutive points, nine of them on free throws, and the last two on a dunk shot by center George Wilson that made it 46-29.

Oregon State survived as long as it did only because seven foot center Mel Counts scored 20 points before he fouled out with 9:45 to play. Wilson's two free throws made the score 56-36 and the rest of the game was a shambles.

Wilson wound up with 24 points, and Ron Bonham and Tom Thacker had 14 each for Cincinnati as Ed Jucker emptied his bench with seven minutes remaining.

Cincinnati's defense plan-

AT LOUISVILLE—Looking for a teammate to pass the ball to is Oregon State's Mel Counts, guarding him is Cincinnati's Tony Yates (20). Action took place during Friday night's NCAA semi-final game at Louisville. The Bearcats defeated the Beavers 80-46. (UPI)

Red Sox Pin Hopes On Trades To Earn 4th Place Finish

Editor's note: This is the sixth of 20 dispatches on the 1963 prospects of the major league clubs.

By SCOTT BAILLIE
UPI Sports Writer

Scottsdale, Ariz. — (UPI) — Don't go away, folks. The Boston Red Sox, fighting to keep attendance from getting any worse, are rushing a new production tentatively named "new deals of 1963."

Last season, the turnouts at Fenway Park dipped to a post-war low while the Red Sox wound up in a seventh-place tie with Baltimore. A total of 733,080 paid to watch the Sox' home games, or 117,509 less than the 1961 season.

And as Ed Bailey, San Francisco Giants' catcher, says of the national pastime, "we're all in this thing to make money."

So Vice President and General Manager Mike Higgins of the Red Sox got busy this winter and brought in five new players while handing six former Soxers their transfers.

The swaps centered around building up a right-handed lineup with power. Key men who were acquired are first baseman Dick Stuart and left fielder Roman Mejias.

"We haven't had a person on this club in the past six or seven years who has hit more than 25 home runs," says Johnny Pesky, who took over the managerial reins from Higgins and is making his debut as a big league pilot. "We had to have some right-handed power."

Hopes On Stuart!

Stuart, who had an unhappy 1962 at Pittsburgh where his average slipped to .228 while he hit 16 homers, is rated as the best bet to restore the glory days of such other Boston crashers as Ted Williams, Vern Stephens and Jimmy Fox.

Williams has tabbed Stuart as a potential hitter of 40 home runs in Fenway Park where the fence running from left-centerfield is a good target for the right-handers.

And Mejias checks in from Houston where he won virtually all the team's batting honors. He paced the Colt hitters with a .286 average and led in home runs with 24 and RBI with 76.

But a lot of people had to go in order to bring in this pair along with pitcher Jack Lamabe from Pittsburgh, utility man Felix Mantilla from the New York Mets and Dick Williams, another good all-purpose man, from Houston.

Trades Costly

Stuart and Lamabe cost the Red Sox pitcher Don Schwall and catcher Jim Pagliarini. Pete Runnels, who won his second American league batting title for Boston last year, went to the Colts in exchange for Mejias. Pumpio Green, a vital utility man, was sent to the New York Mets along with

Providence Wins NIT

New York — (UPI) — Slim Jim Stone, known to his teammates as "the best one-legged basketball player in America," and Dead-eye Ray Flynn led Providence to its second national invitation tournament championship in three years Saturday with a 81-66 victory over Canisius.

A sellout crowd of 18,499 at Madison Square Garden and a national television audience watched Providence spur a late in the first half to take a 41-32 lead at the intermission and then pull steadily away during the second half with a brilliant 14 for 28 shooting performance.

We're a long way from the English Channel here in America, but something is happening over there that will interest motorists the world over. Plans are afoot again toward the realization of one of the great dreams of European unity. I'm speaking of the proposed tunnel under the Channel linking Dover, England, with Calais, France. In the last century dreamers undertook to build the cross-channel tube, but fears of an invasion of England by France stopped the project before it was more than three miles underway. The outlook for peace between Britain and the nations of Western Europe seems rosier now, and a survey is afoot to see how feasible the thirty-mile tunnel will be. Of course, at CARL'S EAST-SIDE SHELL, most of us think of a channel as a number on a TV dial — but, when it comes to CARL — we're right with you.
