

First President Doctor on Side

New York—UPI—Although he was not a licensed physician, there is evidence that George Washington practiced medicine.

According to the book, "Doctors Philatelic," by Oscar Gottfried, the first President performed many medical acts.

"As the master of a large plantation, somewhat isolated," Gottfried says, "he was like a captain on a ship who must administer to his people."

"Washington once administered an infusion of scarlet pimpernel to prevent hydrophobia," Gottfried said.

"Cary and Company of London, England, sent him regularly such drugs as ipecacuanha jalap, diacordium, rhubarb and Venice treacle. He had in his library a number of books on medicine and surgery."

Washington was a contemporary of Benjamin Rush, one of the nation's earliest and greatest physicians. The general is said to have been instrumental in encouraging authorities to inoculate the American Army against smallpox.

Grants Pass Man Heads Study Group

Portland—UPI—Jackson Beaman, president of Southern Oregon Plywood, Inc., Grants Pass, has been elected chairman of the Western Wood Products Study committee.

John Aram, vice president of Weyerhaeuser Co., was chosen vice chairman and Arthur Morgans of the Willamette Valley Lumber Co. was named secretary-treasurer.

The election came at the committee's first meeting. It was formed by representatives of the Western Pine Association, West Coast Lumbermen's Association and Douglas Fir Plywood Association to evaluate coordination or merging of activities financed by the lumber and plywood industries and carried out by the three forest products trade associations.

Johnson Said Not Seeking Nomination

New York—UPI—Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson says he does not plan to seek the Democratic presidential nomination in 1964.

Johnson also said he "doubted the advisability" of friends who put him in the race during the 1960 party convention.

"I didn't feel I was a candidate; I didn't get into any of the primaries; I didn't go out and ask any delegations to commit themselves to me in 1960," the vice president said.

Johnson said that as far as the 1964 convention is concerned, "I would certainly hope that the delegates who are selected would look with approval upon the work that the President has done, and that I have attempted to do."

Britons Plea for Jeannace Freeman

Salem—UPI—A plea for commutation of Jeannace June Freeman's death sentence has been received from three British authors, the governor's office announced.

The telegram, signed by Lord Altrincham, Arthur Koestler and Dame Rebecca West, states "in the name of humanity, we implore you to spare the life of Jeannace June Freeman."

The governor's legal advisor, Loren Hicks, said 693 letters and telegrams have been received on the Freeman case. He said 359 favor her execution and 434 ask clemency.

Miss Freeman's case is now being appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

She was convicted of throwing a child to his death in the Crooked River Gorge in 1961.

Former Justice at Springfield Sentenced

Eugene—UPI—Carl M. Lewis, former justice of the peace at Springfield, has been sentenced to three years in the State Penitentiary for conversion of public funds.

Circuit Judge Edward Howell pronounced the sentence. Lewis, 56, was dismissed as justice of the peace after being convicted by a Circuit Court jury earlier this month.
