510 North Riverside

Musicians and other music lovers of the city are working this week in the annual membership enrollment of Jackson County Civic Music association. Among those attending a kick-off luncheon last Saturday were (left to right) Mrs. Leslie Boardman, Dr. Justin L. Dyrud, Gary Lovre and Mrs. Pauline Bush. Headquarters are in operation at the Red Cross building, 68 Hawthorne avenue, and the telephone number is 778-1281. Any interested person may become a member of the association. The enrollment drive is usually conducted in the fall, but a spring week was chosen this year. The campaign will close Saturday, April 8, and only paying memberships will be able to attend concerts during the 1963-64 season.

Visit Relatives
Gold Hill—Miss Jennie Lou Thompson and Miss Marvella Lichtenstein recently spent a week with relatives in San Francisco. The young women are seniors at Crater high school.

Gem Club Plans Demonstration
Jewelry making will be demonstrated at a meeting of Roxy Ann Gem and Mineral club to be held Friday, April 5, at 8 p.m. at Girls Community club, 229 North Bartlett street.
Guests, especially young people, are invited to attend.

Visitor Returns To Bend Home
Gold Hill — Mrs. Lawson Slagle, former resident of Gold Hill and Talent who now resides in Bend, has returned to her home there after spending some time in Grants Pass at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rhyme.

Susana y Jose Company Presents Varied Program

RICHARD D. WERNER
Known as a pocket-size dance company, Susana y Jose with their piano accompanist Armin Janssen, Naranjito de Triana, flamenco singer and Pedro Sevilla, guitarist were the fourth presentation of the Civil Music association, last night at the high school auditorium.
Although Susana Audeoud and Jose Udaeta have top billing they are not the most in this company. Triana, the singer and Sevilla, the guitarist garner a goodly share of the applause. And as the evening moved to the close it became quite evident that the latter two had the most to offer.
This is not to say that the dancers were not good. They were very good in fact but a certain spark and spontaneity were lacking in their work which was very clear in the others.
The flamenco singer Triana performed with a clear abandon as if he were in an inn or tavern in Andalusia. And the guitarist Sevilla, with his head resting on the guitar was most certainly oblivious to the audience.
Departing from the printed program Susana and Jose did three Spanish dances, Capriccio Spanol by Rimsky-Korsakoff, Danza X by Granados and Baile de Luis Alonso by Jimenez, as the opening number. Armin Janssen did some very beautiful piano playing in this set of pieces. However he was hidden behind the tormentor and did not share in the applause.
It was clear in this group that the dancers were good but not of really great caliber. We would say that Jose was more graceful and lithe than Susana.
In his singing of some popular melodies Triana, accompanied by Sevilla we were introduced to the type of singing done in the inns and taverns and night spots in Spain.
It is a semi-florid style influenced by the Moors and has had a strange hold on Spanish music ever since. It is of the same nature that syncopation has on American music. Both countries will need a towering genius to break it.
The guitarist Sevilla, a very small man not over five feet tall, did some very excellent playing all during the evening. Although he did his share of flamenco strumming he also displayed a finger technique delightful to hear.
It was in the closing flamenco dances that this pocket size company came into its own. All four joined in with much verve and a very interesting mixture of hand clapping. There was no set pattern and each one seemed to make up his own rhythm as he went along. At times it seemed they were spelling out words. It was in many ways similar to the hand clapping of the tribes of central Africa in its complexity.
Janssen, who had performed variations on a theme from Mallorca by Robledo took a solo bow and rightly so. His playing was most excellent.

Unwed Parent Problems Reviewed by Magazine

Washington, D. C.—What is and is not being done about unmarried parents is described in the March-April issue of "Children," a magazine published by the U. S. Children's Bureau.
"We called upon some of the nation's outstanding specialists in the field to give us their views about this compelling problem; what is needed to meet it, including casework services for unmarried fathers as well as the social services, legal protections and schooling of the young unwed mother," Mrs. Katherine B. Oettinger, Chief of the Bureau, said.
In portraying the general framework of illegitimacy in the United States, Hannah M. Adams and Ursula M. Gallagher of the Children's Bureau comment: "A majority of all unmarried mothers keep their babies... Some of these children are brought up by grandparents or other relatives... some are passed along to strangers who do not want them... some are eventually brought by their mothers to agencies for placement in foster homes or institutions..."
"Community efforts toward prevention, to be effective, must be directed toward the broad social, economic, moral, and psychological problems of which illegitimacy may be a symptom," according to Patricia Garland of the executive committee of the National Association on Service to Unmarried Parents.

Published six times annually, the periodical is available on a yearly subscription basis for $1.25 or at 25 cents a copy through the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.

Problems Listed
"The more flagrant practices (by some adoptive couples) of exchanging medical care for babies... underscore to a substantial proportion of the unmarried mother population... a chronic shortage of Negro adoptive homes... (and) maternity homes... frankly discriminatory in their admission policies" are discussed by Rose Bernstein, Consultant on Social Services for the Massachusetts Committee on Children and Youth.
Sanford M. Katz, on both the law and social work faculties of Catholic university, surveys the legal rights of the unwed mother and her child: "There are indirect as well as direct means of requiring a father to support his illegitimate child. Some states do this through their poor laws... Other states... through criminal laws... Still others through the bastardy laws which prescribe legal procedures for the determination of paternity."
"Work with unmarried fathers has revealed that they have considerably more feelings about their illegitimate offspring and the mothers of these children than has heretofore been recognized," writes Reuben Panner of the Vista Del Mar Child-Care Service in Los Angeles.
Practice Criticized
Jerry L. Kelly, Assistant Dean at the University of Washington's school of social work, criticizes the practice of withholding education from unmarried mothers: "Since the boys involved are rarely, if ever, excluded from school, the protection afforded others by putting the luckless girls 'out of sight and out of mind' seems somewhat illusory."
"Children" is an interdisciplinary journal for all the professions serving children. "We hope that this symposium on unmarried parents will be of value to those most capable of initiating further study of the problems," Mrs. Oettinger said.

Carnival Slated In Jacksonville

Jacksonville—A school carnival, sponsored by the Jacksonville Parent-Teacher association, will be held Friday, April 5, in the school gymnasium from 6 to 9 p.m.
There will be games, prizes and fun for the whole family to participate in, the committee states.
Hot dogs, hamburgers, pie, cake and coffee will be served at the food booth throughout the evening.
This is the main fund-raising project of the PTA for the school year. Proceeds will be used to again sponsor transportation to swimming lessons for Jacksonville area children. All parents are especially invited to attend with their families.
Wipe off anything spilled on marble at once—just as you would from a wood furnishing. Occasionally, wash marble surfaces with lukewarm water and a clean cloth. Dry with a chamois or soft dry cloth to prevent spots or streaks.

Nominations Set For Jayceettes

Officers will be nominated at a meeting of Medford Jayceettes to be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Everett Payton, 1101 Loal avenue. Mrs. James Rouhier will be co-hostess.
A committee will present a slate of names, and nominations may also be added from the floor.
The current project for Jayceettes is completion of uniforms in time for the Jaycee state convention to be held in May.
Committees planning the annual merit award luncheon will report. The luncheon is set for May 11 at North's Chuck Wagon. The award is presented annually to a young Medford woman for outstanding service to the community.
Information concerning the luncheon may be obtained by contacting Mrs. William South, 772-8310.

Court To Hold Rites Saturday

New officers of Roxy Ann court, Order of the Amaranth, will be installed at an open ceremony Saturday, April 6, at 8 p.m. in the Medford Masonic temple.
Heading the court through the ensuing term will be Mrs. Hal Bishop, royal matron, and Mr. Bishop, royal patron.
Many grand officers and other Amaranth members from other areas will be attending as well as a delegation from Siskiyou court, Yreka, Calif. Representatives from various Masonic organizations are also to attend.
A reception will follow the installation ceremony, of which Mrs. Ira Canfield and Mrs. H. C. Goldsmith are chairman and co-chairman.
Forty per cent of the nation's families have more than one income, the Institute of Life Insurance reports.
