Valley May Have Labor Shortage In Late Summer

"If the demand for help of all kinds continues to increase in proportion to activity, we will probably experience a severe labor shortage in this county during the later summer months," John J. Patton, manager of the Medford office of the Oregon state employment service, noted Friday.

Patton referred to the construction start of a shopping center at White City, award of the Mt. Ashland ski area development contract and present demand for job applicants with specialized knowledge such as bookkeepers and stenographers.

Work held up in March to a greater extent than expected, he noted. Bad weather was responsible for most of the layoffs during March, he explained. Construction projects made steady progress.

Some loggers returned to work after being laid off in February. The lumber industry has been able to operate at a higher employment level due to lack of snow and the over - all mild winter. Shutdowns were of short duration, Patton said.

Aptitude testing and employment counseling for high school seniors is almost completed.

"These young people will be looking for permanent work after high school graduation rather than for summer employment," Patton said. "Inquiries are invited from employers interested in this valuable source of new employees."

Rate of insured unemployment at the end of March was the same as at the end of February due to some stormy weather near the end of the month.

March was well below February in amount of unemployment. Present outlook for jobs indicates a slow but steady increase throughout the spring, Patton concluded.

New Regional Center Highlights Year for Bloodmobile Plan

Ground-breaking for the 56th regional center in its nationwide network of blood-collection facilities, a new peacetime record for collections, and commencement of operations in a 41st state highlighted activities of the Red Cross Blood Program in the last year, Mrs. J. W. Burba, chairman of the Jackson County Red Cross chapter, has reported.

The new blood center of the Red Cross will be opened in Little Rock, Ark., to extend Red Cross blood service to the entire state. Currently, the only Arkansas county benefiting is Washington (Fayetteville), whose chapter is a participant in the regional blood program with its center in Springfield, Mo.

Operating In 40 States

Nationally, the Red Cross collected 2,562,000 pints of blood in the 1961-62 fiscal year, an increase of about 53,000 pints over 1960-61, and largest number to be collected in any year since the Korean conflict.

Operating in 1961-62 in 40 states, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and the District of Columbia, the Red Cross Blood Program began the 1962-63 fiscal year auspiciously with its first bloodmobile visit to a 41st state. In September an Alaska Air National Guard plane flew bloodmobile equipment to Anchorage for five days of blood drawings, preceded by a training course for Blood Program volunteers.

Alaska civilians and personnel at military installations gave 980 pints.

In the Blood Program's laboratory in Washington and its branches in New York and Los Angeles, research continued on the long-term preservation of blood, on the new fraction fibrinolysin, and on the components of blood to learn more about rare variations from the four principal blood groups, Mrs. Burka noted.

In Washington, research was begun, in cooperation with Swedish scientists in Stockholm, on methods for the production of anti-hemophilic globulin, to be used in the treatment of hemophilia victims.

Local Donation Down

Mrs. Burba indicated that local donations of blood have been down during the past three visits of the bloodmobile, but attributes this to extensive flu and winter colds and the December flood.

Valley residents will have an opportunity to meet the local quota of 450 pints this week while the Bloodmobile is at the Chapter house in Medford on Monday from 2 to 6 p.m. and on Tuesday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

It will move to the VFW hall in Shady Cove Wednesday and will be open there from 3 until 7 p.m. The unit will visit Grants Pass on Thursday.

Persons wishing to make appointments in advance for the drawings may do so by telephoning the Red Cross office, 773-3813. Volunteers will be available during the visit to provide transportation and serve as baby sitters.

AWARDED PRIZE – Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, whose security clearance was suspended by the Atomic Energy commission in 1953, will receive the agency's coveted $50,000 Enrico Fermi award. The prize, given annually in memory of an Italian-born nuclear pioneer, was awarded to Oppenheimer for his outstanding contribution to theoretical physics and scientific and administrative leadership in development of the atomic bomb.
