

Details Announced for Annual Hillcrest Tea

Gay chapeaux will be worn by members of the Hillcrest tea committee at the annual cancer tea on Wednesday, April 17, at Hillcrest Orchards.

The frivolous hats are being designed and executed by several members of the group, and will be identical in style, but decorated imaginatively by the wearers. The tea is expected to be "conservation pieces" during the afternoon, and will be worn with summer cocktail dresses by committee members, who serve as hostesses.

The silver tea is a benefit for the American Cancer society, and it opens to the public. The theme this year is "World of Arts," and exhibits and floral arrangements are being requested for display.

Several cultural groups in the valley are arranging displays, and individual collections will be shown, also.

Brass, Wood Displays

Mrs. Nell Davidson is loaning a selection of brass works of art, and William Fontaine will display wood carvings. The Senior Citizens will show a variety of handcraft, including copper works and paintings. The Rogue Valley Art association and the Southern Oregon Society of Artists are exhibiting paintings, and the Shakespearean Festival association will display salon photographs. Several groups have not announced their exhibits as yet.

Tea will be served from 2 to 4:30 p.m., and valley women will be asked to pour. The tea will be covered by a cloth of natural linen and gold, which will be loaned by Mrs. Jerry Olson. A draped figurine in off-white and gold, holding a bowl of flowers, will center the table, and Mrs. Dorothy Ginn will arrange the centerpiece bouquet. Gold and crystal candelabra will be loaned by Mrs. Charles Lemery.

A floral arrangements contest will be held, as in previous years, and entries are being invited by the committee.

Where You Find the Clothes You Love to Live In Rome - I can well believe the prediction that a million Americans will visit Europe this summer. I think half of them must be in Rome at the moment. All over - in shops, at Doney's, on the streets, in buses, at the Vatican, there are American voices, and cameras clicking.

The American Express travel survey has made predictions. Here are a few of them, with significant trends.

Peak months are June, July and August. Twenty-five per cent more travelers are expected than last year.

Greater economy is indicated in requests for hotels, airlines and ships. The "rent a car" business continues to grow. About 300,000 Americans will tour Europe in automobiles this summer.

The traveler repeating a visit is increasing. Over a third of the European tourists will have been here before. Travel agents are catering to this class. They are more sophisticated, more selective and seek new places to see. They are more particular about hotels.

Student travel has doubled since 1957; there has been 100,000 requests for passports.

A sharp raise in business travel is shown, especially in the Common Market countries.

London will have the most Americans - 500,000 of them. Rome expects a 10 per cent increase - 396,000.

Madrid expects 321,000, a 7 per cent increase. For first-time visitors, the "grand tour circuit" is still the first choice.

Prices ranged from $900 to $2,500. In 1962, Americans spent $623,000,000, exclusive of trans-Atlantic transportation, in Europe.

Boosting travel this year are large groups of post-convention side trips - Baptist World Youth conference in Beirut; Junior Chamber of Commerce, Tel Aviv; Boy Scout convention in Athens; Seton Pilgrimage in Dublin (led by Cardinal Spellman).

One group from Portland is in Europe now. One hundred and fifty Portland skiers chartered a plane, skied and took side trips to Rome and other Italian, Austrian and Swiss cities. Many of them came to Rome to attend the beautification services at St.
