Mental Illness

The best guide I know for a family which has had the misfortune of having some member develop a mental difficulty is a small paper-bound book written by Mrs. Edith M. Stern...

that in many a case, if the disturbed person had only had a sensible and kindly family to help him and take care of him, he never would have had to go to the mental hospital.

What will happen to him during his first few days in the place? What sort of a world will he find within the hospital? What are the treatments that he is likely to receive? What can he do in the hospital? What should be the relation of the family to the hospital and to their loved one there? Should they visit him, and how should they behave when perhaps he is hostile to them?

How Family Shall Behave An important problem that Mrs. Stern discusses is that of how the family shall behave when the patient comes home. So often the hospital people find that because the untrained or perhaps outraged relatives fuss at him and complain to him about how much of a nuisance he has been, and how much he has cost them, he decides that he would rather go back to his buddies in the hospital. What then should the family do to help him, and how permanent is his recovery likely to be? An able psychiatrist says...

You can help your doctor decide whether mental illness is developing by understanding the symptoms better. You will find help in Dr. Alvarez's 25-cent booklet, "When Mental Illness Strikes a Family." Send 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request for it to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. MMT, Box 957, Des Moines 4, Iowa.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counselors and social workers.

Rollo D. - From social drinking, she has descended to secret drinking. Betty D. - It was he who got me started. I used to hate the stuff.

Rollo D. - Now I know what's wrong. Betty's excuse for not having meals ready used to be that she didn't feel well. But I came home unexpectedly early from a week's business trip and I thought a tornado had struck. Betty had forgotten where she left a bottle of whiskey and had turned the piece upside-down. Since then I find that labels on bottles don't mean a thing. She hides liquor in vinegar bottles, thermos jugs, even in a hot water bottle. Well, now what?

Betty D. - I was frantic that day because I'd been robbed of liquor by a handyman and a maid who came across some, and I was hoping they'd missed a bottle I'd counted on. Rollo shouldn't kick or be surprised. I'm 41, our children are grown and away. I'm lonely and get no sympathy from him. When I feel that, he called me a wet blanket. So now I'm a wet lush. He used to force me down an old-fashioned before dinner. Now I like them instead of dinner. And I usually hold them well.

The Council: Addiction to anything is a form of slow poison that can often be viewed as suicidal. The person who drinks too much, eats too much, takes drugs compulsively, even smokes too much—such a person is saying, in effect, "I don't care!" So the first line of reply, in order to reverse the destructive habit, is, "Why? What's wrong? Can't we find a healthy, constructive way to raise your spirits?" ... Betty

Assault Charged In Benton Incident

Corvallis -UPI- Gerald Conrad Swartz, 29, of Monroe has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon after a shooting incident at the home of his former wife in the Benton county community of Alpine.

Benton county sheriff's deputies said Swartz was waiting for his former wife, Betty Ann, 25, and her fiancée, Bob Lyons, at her home about 4 a.m. Deputies said the woman told them Swartz threatened her with a rifle, then fired three shots in the direction of a neighbor, shot out the lights, and hit her with the rifle barrel.

Remaining Whooping Cranes To Start Annual Canadian Trek

Washington -UPI- Any day now, all that is left of a once mighty flock of whooping cranes will start winging into the sky from Aransas Wildlife Refuge in Texas for their nesting area in Wood Buffalo Park near Great Slave Lake, Canada.

This time only 28 apparently will make the 2,500-mile journey, four less than returned to Aransas last fall and 10 less than flew northward last summer.

The Interior Department's Fish and Wildlife Service hopes that some of all of the 10 missing birds have survived and will rejoin the flock. In 1946, only 17 whoopers, including five young, were counted throughout the winter. Yet 22 adult birds came south that year. The speculation and hope this year is that the birds now missing escaped observation.

Murder Parole Bill Approved by Senate

Salem -UPI- A bill requiring a person convicted of first degree murder to be imprisoned for 15 years before becoming eligible for parole has been approved 24-6 by the Senate and sent to the House.

The bill, SB10, is a companion measure to SJR3 which was approved by the Senate last week. SJR3 calls for a vote by the people in 1964 on a proposal to change the state's constitution and eliminate the death penalty, and make the penalty for first degree murder life imprisonment.

Under present law, a person convicted of first degree murder could become eligible for parole in seven years.

population of 38 in the winter of 1961-62 was the greatest recorded since the counts started.

In addition to the wild flock, there are seven whoopers in captivity. Six, including the famous Old Crisp and Josephine, are in the Audubon Park Zoo, New Orleans, and one is at the San Antonio, Texas, Zoo.
