An Easter Appeal

We undersigned American citizens support President Kennedy's call for a nuclear test-ban agreement as being in the national interest of the United States as well as to the benefit of all humanity.

We deplore the missed opportunities which have prevented an earlier agreement. We recognize that no agreement is risk proof. However, on weighing the risks, continued unlimited testing and an unrestricted arms race are greater risks than a treaty with assurances of the kind being sought by our negotiators.

- A test-ban treaty would appreciably lessen the dangers of the arms race in that it would slow the development of nuclear weapons.
- A test-ban treaty would slow the diffusion of nuclear weapons to countries which do not now possess them.
- A test-ban treaty would be a harbinger for greater steps in disarmament because it would give the nuclear nations increased confidence in each other, and experience with inspection measures.
- A test-ban treaty would eliminate the danger of new radioactive fallouts from atmospheric weapons tests.

We call upon President Kennedy and his administration to persist in their efforts to negotiate an effective test-ban treaty with the Soviet Union. We pledge our efforts to unite our friends, neighbors, and elected representatives in support of the signing and ratification of a treaty ending all nuclear weapons tests.
