

Bishop Elected To State Post at GOP Federation Event

Lloyd Bishop, president of the Jackson County Young Republicans, was elected to the state board of the state organization of the Young Republican Federation convention in Portland recently. He will serve as director from the Fourth Congressional district.

Fred Heard of the Ashland club was elected vice chairman at large.

The Jackson county club, which was represented at the convention by Dr. Douglas Phillips and Mrs. Lloyd Bishop, as delegates, has announced plans to send delegates to the National Convention which is to be held in San Francisco in June.

Passes Resolutions
The state convention passed resolutions supporting Senate Bill 1763 and House Bill 1765 which provide for representatives from Multnomah county to be elected from their individual districts instead of running at large.

The two Jackson county delegates attended two workshops, one of which was conducted by Dr. Rolando Estrugo, a Cuban refugee, who is now an instructor at Lewis and Clark and Portland State colleges. Dr. Estrugo discussed Cuba, past, present and future. The second session was conducted by George Brown, director of the AFL-CIO committee on political education.

The Jackson county delegates ordered tape recordings of the featured speeches by Ed Foreman and Frank Christiansen, and these will be presented to all members at the meeting of Jackson County Young Republicans April 19. Terry Green is program chairman.

Dunes Area Listed in Brochure

Washington, D. C. — The proposed Oregon Dunes National Seashore is cited in a new National Park Service brochure as one of 34 areas of national significance that might be acquired for use as Federal, State or local park and recreation sites.

The brochure, "Future Parks for the Nation," points out that the 34 sites listed are irreplaceable, unique scenic areas that must be preserved, for "once they are lost, they are lost forever."

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall is quoted in the brochure as saying, "The least we can do, before our land patterns become irrevocably fixed, is to preserve the few remaining extensive areas of natural open space... now, while there's still time."

Describes Proposal
The brochure also briefly describes President Kennedy's proposal for a Land and Water Conservation Fund to provide means of acquiring various areas for outdoor recreation purposes as well as giving grants in aid to states on a matching fund basis for recreation planning, land acquisition and the development of park and recreation areas.

The brochure, according to Conrad L. Wirth, Director of the National Park Service, provides "a valuable guide for those who want to keep informed on this vital conservation matter—especially as it affects the National Park System. If we act quickly, while there's still time, we can save the rapidly vanishing seashores, lakeshores, free-flowing streams, historic areas and unique scenic areas."

Copies of "Future Parks for the Nation" are free upon request from the National Park Service, Department of the Interior, Washington 25, D.C.

Youth Tells of Queen's Arrival

(Editor's note: Charles (Chuck) Moore, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Moore, 1239 Wainson dr., Grants Pass, is in London, England, as part of Lewis and Clark college's "Experiment in International Living." While in England, Moore has agreed to write to the Mail Tribune. In the following dispatch, he describes Queen Elizabeth's return to London.)

By CHUCK MOORE

London — The pavement at Temple Bar in front of the Law Courts at noon on April 3 was packed with people standing four to five deep, waiting for a glimpse of the Queen.

Within 40 minutes, the Royal procession will pass here on its way to the official "welcome home luncheon" at Guildhall.

I asked on which side of the Griffith Monument the ceremony would take place. "Across the way. From this doorway the Lord Mayor and his attendants cross the street and take their places on the red carpet. The Queen's car will probably stop just in front of them. Your best bet is to stand just beyond this bit of pavement that is kept open for the Lord Mayor." I was told.

It started to rain. London policemen, Bobbies, kept the people back. For a moment the din of passing vehicles ceases and there is silence.

From the doorway, the Lord Mayor, debeked in crimson and ermine robes and a plumed hat with his colorful attendant dignitaries, appears and crosses the road. All take their places side by side on the red carpet. Before them are held the gigantic gold mace and jeweled sword, the ancient symbols of London.

Traffic Disappears

The traffic continues, only to be stopped once more. For the first time apparent emotion surges through the crowd. The only visible vehicles are cabs and lorries, but these are sent on, and the traffic disappears completely.

As tension mounts, the cars of state appear at the scarlet rope that signifies the old city wall. After a small applause, silence again reigns.

The scarlet rope gives way to Queen Elizabeth's limousine, and she is brought to the Lord Mayor. She leans across Prince Philip and touching the sword of London, she thereby accepts its allegiance, hospitality, and protection.

Dressed in a simple, turquoise suit with matching turban, she was a beautiful contrast to the prince's "admiral of the fleet" uniform, with its gaudy braids and mass of pendant medals.

Small Isolated Groups
Only now does enthusiasm attempt, rather feebly, to unleash itself. Three short cheers are heard rising from the audience, and they come from small isolated groups.

But much warmer than the mere enthusiasm a cheer imparts were the looks of esteem and devotion she received from her spectators. Turning to face her subjects with a benevolent smile, she was greeted by curious little waves which seemed to express a sincere intimacy between subject and regent.

With a Royal wave she disappeared from view. And to the accompaniment of the resumed din of traffic, the Queen's subjects once again went about their affairs.

Gamma Crabfeed Is Scheduled April 20

Ashland — Dale Truax, alumni secretary at Southern Oregon college, will lead a delegation of professors, students, and alumni to the annual Gamma Chapter Crabfeed at the Timber Inn in Coos Bay, April 20. The event will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Truax announced that the program for the evening would feature the SOC Letterman's Quartet composed of Kern Bennett, Central Point; Doyle Branson, Central Point; Bernie DeCosta, Hawaii; and Joe Funderburg, Eugene; and a humorous monologue by Jeff Lee.

In addition to the program there will be a business meeting to determine the date of the fall meeting and to elect new officers.

Current Gamma Chapter officers are Ralph E. Holbrook, Empire, president; Clarence Nelson, Langlois, vice president; and Wanda Cochran, Coquille, secretary.

New Economy Class On Ships Is Noted

George L. Lewis of the Rogue Travel Service here has announced new, low-priced, air conditioned economy class travel to the Orient aboard American President Lines SS President Cleveland and SS President Wilson.

The President Cleveland resumed trans-Pacific service to the Orient with the sailing from San Francisco March 19 and the President Wilson April 11.

Describing the new APL Economy class, Lewis said the most exciting phase of the improvement program for the two ships is the revamping of accommodations to eliminate all dormitory berthing areas except two, providing new, individual 2 and 4 berth staterooms and improving the existing 6 or 8 berth cabins. There will be a new outdoor swimming pool for the exclusive use of economy class passengers.
