Many Observations Included in Picking Camp for Children

By DAVID NYDICK
UPI Education Specialist

Many families are considering vacation plans for the approaching summer. Should children be sent to camp? If so, should it be a day camp or sleep away camp?

The decision is influenced by many circumstances. The neighborhood facilities may or may not be suitable for summer activities. Some areas become lonely during the summer months. These are important factors affecting a child's welfare, but there are also other considerations.

Families should spend time together relaxing and enjoying themselves. Part of the child's and parent's vacations might be arranged to coincide. In some cases, where both parents must work during the summer, camp may serve an important purpose.

Many children profit from some kind of camp experience. The preschool child is probably not ready for a sleep away camp. He still needs the security of being near his parents. He may not be ready for group care where he will not get the individual attention he can obtain from parents. Perhaps a day camp is advantageous for such a child.

Avoid Hasty Decision

There are many camps from which to choose. Don't make a hasty decision. The price range is a personal matter, but you will find many choices. You will hear of camps from friends and neighbors. Others can be located through advertisements, camp information centers, and camping associations.

The camp should have athletic fields, hiking areas, lake, and sufficient indoor space for evening and rainy day activities. There should be approximately one athletic facility for each 20 children. This should include a minimum of two baseball fields, a basketball court, a rifle range, waterfront including boats etc., tennis courts, volley ball courts, and a flat campus for various other activities.

The staff should consist of one counsellor for each five children. Perhaps in younger groups there should be one counsellor for three children. In addition specialists should include an American Red Cross water safety instructor, arts and crafts, riflery, tennis, dramatics, music, and others depending upon the emphasis you and your child desire.

Another overlooked but important requirement is to make sure that the camp will have approximately 18 to 20 children in your child's age group. Teen-age girls want social activities. Make sure that there is an equivalent age group of boys.

Camping is a rewarding experience for many children. The family situation, child's interests and abilities, and careful choice are the keys to help you make a proper decision.

Marijuana Found At Crescent City

Crescent City, Calif. – (UPI) – Four young men and a teenage San Francisco girl, arrested Wednesday night on charges of stealing $1 worth of gasoline, were carrying more than $1,000 worth of marijuana to Seattle, police said.

The five were picked up at a road block on the outskirts of Crescent City on a complaint from a roadside gas station attendant who said they drove off without paying.

During a routine search of the car, police found the marijuana, enough to roll 1,000 cigarettes, beneath the dash board.

The group admitted buying the narcotics in San Francisco and said they were en route to Seattle where they planned to sell it.

The men, all from Seattle, were Otis Ward, 23; Felton Fuller, 20; Richard Robertson, 24, and Dale Higman, 25. The girl gave her name as Joanne Harris.

Medication Given To Navy Recruits

San Diego – (UPI) – All 12,000 Naval Training Center recruits underwent enforced mass medication today to prevent another outbreak of meningitis.

Dosages of sulfadiazine tablets for every recruit for two days were prescribed after discovery of the 10th case within six weeks.

Two recruits died and seven were hospitalized during two previous outbreaks of the infectious disease since March 10.

Latest victim is Seaman Paul D. Langley, 18, Moore, Okla. He was reported in serious condition at the Navy hospital where three victims of the most recent outbreak this month were still recovering.

Medical officers said "there is a great deal of evidence that Langley failed to take sulfadiazine tablets earlier this month under a mass immunization program."

JETS TO FRANCE

Ex-Medford Man Returned To States

San Francisco – Donald K. Laird, the high-living government clerk, has returned to San Francisco from Hawaii, escorted by a U. S. marshal.

Laird, 32, is accused of making out a $51,369 check to himself before leaving his job here with the Army-Air Force Exchange Service on March 11.

When arrested by FBI agents in a Waikiki hotel 10 days later, he had spent about $13,500 on a fancy sports car and clothes.

He was taken before Federal Judge George B. Harris, who delayed processing of the case until next Tuesday, while Laird's father, R. John Laird, of 2812 Old Military rd., Medford, Ore., completed plans for a defense attorney.

RUSSIA BEHIND U.S.

Durham, N.C. – (UPI) – The commander of the U.S. Atlantic Fleet's antisubmarine warfare force said Wednesday that American missile firing subs are superior to their Soviet counterparts in firepower. "The capability of Russian missile firing submarines is at present limited," said Vice Adm. Edmund B. Taylor. "Their missiles are not nearly as good as our Polaris, nor can they carry as many."
