

Local Students To Attend Harvard

Three Medford students, Dunbar Scott Carpenter, Jr., Garner Tripp Hauptert, Jr., and Michael James Whinihan, have been granted admission to Harvard college for the fall term of 1963.

The selections were announced today by the Harvard Club of Oregon. Bill Moffat of Medford, is a member of the schools and scholarship committee of the club.

Hauptert and Whinihan are seniors in Medford High school. Hauptert's parents are Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Hauptert, 222 Valley View dr., Medford; and Whinihan's are Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Whinihan, 1908 Westerlund dr., Medford.

Carpenter, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar Carpenter of Foothills rd., Medford, is a student at the Thatcher School, Ojai, Calif.

Hauptert also was granted a Harvard College Honorary freshmen scholarship, the only one given among 27 men admitted from Oregon. Whinihan received a Harvard freshman stipendiary scholarship.

There have been approximately 1,200 students admitted to Harvard's "Class of 1967" from over 5,000 applicants, Moffat said.

Five Groups Named For Jackson Grants

Portland - (UPI) - Five institutions have been named to receive grants totaling $52,000 from the Jackson Foundation.

The awards include: Reed College Advancement Program, $20,000; DeLunay Memorial Center, Inc., at the University of Portland, $20,000; Portland YMCA, $5,000; Christie School, $5,000; Frank R. Menne Research Fund of St. Vincent Hospital, $2,000.

The Jackson Foundation was created under terms of the will of the late Maria Jackson, widow of the founder of the Oregon Journal.

Donovan Loses Sleep, Money During Negotiations for Prisoners in Cuba

By HARRY FERGUSON
New York - (UPI) - James B. Donovan, the one-man freedom train for persons imprisoned in Cuba, has been losing two things recently - sleep and money.

The Brooklyn lawyer, who negotiated the release of the Bay of Pigs prisoners and more recently nine American skin divers, told in an interview today about the physical and mental strain of negotiating with Fidel Castro.

"They work at night down there," he said. "One night I got three hours sleep, another time two hours and a third night none at all. Once Castro phoned me at 2 o'clock in the morning and announced we were going fishing at 6 o'clock. We did, too."

Legal Fees Lost

So far as money is concerned, lawyers estimate Donovan has lost $100,000 in legal fees because of his work in rescuing prisoners in Cuba. He is counsel for the Cuban Families Committee and serves without pay. Not that he is about to become a pauper because he is a member of a well-known firm that has 18 lawyers on its staff. But he has made substantial financial sacrifices ever since he was named by the Brooklyn Bar Association to defend the Soviet spy, Col. Rudolf Abel. Subsequently Donovan negotiated the exchange of Abel, who was taken out of federal prison, and traded for U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers. That led to the dozen trips he has made to Cuba and his work is not finished yet. There are still 22 Americans held by Castro and Donovan hopes to negotiate for them in about a month.

How does he establish contact with Castro and go about getting into Cuba?

Uses Intermediary

"Well," he said, "I'll tell you about one week end. On Friday, March 15, I was in federal court here. When I went to go to Cuba, I make a phone call to Havana to a person who is a sort of intermediary down there. I had put in a call and Friday afternoon I got word that clearance had come through.

"I didn't make a reservation, but I went out to Idlewild Airport and got a seat on an Eastern Airlines jet for Miami. I always fly down there at night. At Miami I went to a hotel and registered under an assumed name. You have to be careful to choose a name that matches the initials on your luggage and I use Davis a lot of the time.

"I only carry one bag containing tropical clothing and a brief case. From the hotel I phoned a restricted area of the Miami Airport and got in touch with Pan American which provides a small plane for the flight to Havana. I asked them to get clearance for me to fly across the Cuban anti-aircraft batteries. It came through pretty fast this time and we took off for Havana.

"Seven men well-armed and wearing black silk suits met me at Havana. I didn't have to show a visa or a passport or anything. I guess my face is pretty well known by now. Three of the men got into a car with me and the other four into another car and we drove to one of the four houses maintained by the Cuban Ministry of External Affairs. Everything was ready for me there and I put in a call for Castro.

Some Long Delays

"Sometimes I get to see Castro right away and sometimes there is a delay of hours. I started talking with him on Saturday and continued through on Sunday, March 17.

"Saturday he took me for an automobile ride and we kept negotiating. He is always very courteous and correct and he gave me a good lunch of fruit cup, chicken soup, red snapper, salad and coffee. Also an excellent cigar.

"By Sunday I could sense that the negotiations weren't getting very far, so I decided to try the luck of the Irish. I said to Castro: 'Look, do you know what day this is? This is Saint Patrick's Day and Saint Patrick is my patron saint. They are painting a green line down Fifth ave. in New York and getting ready to have a parade.'

"Do you know who one of the big heroes of South America is? Bernard O'Higgins is his name. It's bad luck to deny anything to an Irishman on Saint Patrick's Day, and what's more you have two American women in prison and one of them is named O'Neal."

Appealed To Castro

Somewhat to Donovan's surprise this Celtic appeal impressed Castro. He went away for a while and then returned and said he was releasing the two women, Germaine Schamma and Martha O'Neal.

They came out of jail wearing their denim prison clothes and Donovan flew back to Miami with them on Sunday.

"Monday morning," Donovan said, "I was back in federal court and the judge looked at me sort of surprised and asked: 'Well, where have you been and what's new?'"

Donovan's successes in Cuba have caused rumors that he is in the pay of the Central Intelligence Agency and actually is working in behalf of the U.S. State Department in an attempt to negotiate some sort of diplomatic accommodation between Washington and Havana. Donovan says that if something plus in a diplomatic sense comes out of his work he will be glad, but he stoutly denied he was working for the CIA or the State Department.

"I have never even met Secretary of State Dean Rusk," he said. "The only contact I ever have with the State Department is that I contact them before I go to Cuba. I explain what my mission is and ask them if my activities would be in any way inconsistent with our national policy. If they ever said no, I wouldn't make the trip, but so far they haven't."

Doesn't Know Policy

"I honestly couldn't tell you right now what our official national policy is toward Cuba. When I first went down there Castro would ask me about Washington's intentions toward Cuba and I always told him I wasn't there to represent the United States. I was there on a private humanitarian mission."

What is it that keeps driving him on missions that in-

Now! a better way to grow weeds

NO LONGER NEED YOU GROW LAWN WEEDS THE OLD-FASHIONED WAY... WAITING WEEKS FOR THEM TO DEVELOP FROM SEEDLINGS TO FULL-BLOWN WEEDS BEFORE THEY WITHER AWAY. ORTHO HAS FOUND A WAY TO MAKE WEEDS GROW UP, GROW OLD AND DIE... IN JUST FORTY-EIGHT HOURS!

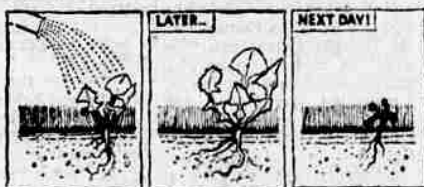

Just imagine!—the weed that flourishes in your lawn on Saturday morning will be shriveled and dead by Sunday night. And you don't bend over once; all you do is spray WEED-B-GON.

AN EARLY GRAVE

WEED-B-GON is the ingenious ORTHO compound of hormone ingredients—2,4,5-trichlorophenoxy and 2,4-dichlorophenoxy. Hormones make things grow and the hormones in WEED-B-GON make weeds grow themselves into an early grave. And not just the tops, either. WEED-B-GON kills weeds from the roots up. Which means, of course, they don't grow back.

WHO'S WHO OF THE WEED WORLD

The list of weeds reads like the Who's Who of the Weed World. Besides the common "lawn variety" dandelion and chickweed, WEED-B-GON kills plantain, dock, oxalis, Japanese clover, thistles, morning glory and wild onion. Even woody plants like poison oak, poison ivy, sumac and brambles can't resist WEED-B-GON. In fact, you can turn WEED-B-GON loose on a tree stump (soak the stump with a pint in diesel oil or kerosene) and the stump you couldn't hack out will wither and die. Now you may well wonder if something this efficient won't kill lawn grass as well as weeds. The answer is no. ORTHO formulated WEED-B-GON so that it can actually tell weeds from grass. It wipes out weeds, leaves grass free to flourish.

MEDICINE MEN, NOT MIRACLE MEN

Do bear this in mind, however: the ORTHO fellows are medicine men, not miracle men. Some weeds may take two applications. But you never bend: you simply spray. Just pour WEED-B-GON into the ORTHO Lawn Sprayer (the jar is calibrated so you put in just the right amount) and attach it to your garden hose. The sprayer automatically dilutes the liquid with hose water as it sprays. It makes weeding easy as watering. And almost as inexpensive. A pint of WEED-B-GON that costs just $1.69, diluted, covers up to 5000 square feet of lawn. What's more, you can "spot treat" weeds with this liquid spray instead of spreading your weed control all over the lawn in places where you don't need it.

NO WORK: ALL SPRAY

The ORTHO Lawn Sprayer that costs $3.95 and is guaranteed for 4 years, is invaluable for applying many other ingenious ORTHO lawn products. A lawn insect spray, for example, that works so fast that insects actually boil up out of the soil and die... before your very eyes. DIBROM Lawn Spray. Or a crabgrass killer that kills the roots as well as the ugly grass itself:

ORTHO Liquid Crabgrass Killer. Look for them in the rows of red-and-yellow bottles, boxes and cans at an authorized ORTHO dealer. To make a lawn story short: ORTHO has all sorts of ways to take the work out of lawn care.

Hearing Set on FS Development Roads

Portland - Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has announced an informal public hearing will be held in Portland April 29 on proposed changes in regulations governing the management of national forest development roads.

The hearing is in addition to one announced earlier which will be held in the conference room of the Secretary of Agriculture, room 218, Agriculture building, Washington, D.C., April 23.

The Portland hearing will be at 10 a.m. April 29 in the federal building, 1002 NE Holiday st. It was requested by forest user groups in the Pacific Northwest.

Presiding officer for the Department of Agriculture will be Lyl. Carlson, regional attorney. Persons unable to attend the hearing may file written statements from now until May 9.

Secretary Freeman will consider statements from both hearing in making a decision on the changes proposed by the forest service.

STUDENT PRESIDENT

Eugene - (UPI) - Phil Scherburne, Rainier, has been elected president of the Associated Students of the University of Oregon.

involve danger to his health and a financial sacrifice? He thought about that for a while and then said:

"Well, you're at the Havana airport standing beside the steps as the prisoners get on the plane. There is fear on their faces and they are white with prison pallor. "After the plane takes off, they begin to relax. Sometimes when they see the coast of Florida they smile. These smiles are reward enough for me."
