

Subcommittee Moves To Curb Number of College Dormitories

Salem—The Ways and Means Education subcommittee took a formal step Tuesday toward reducing the number of new college dormitories proposed by the governor while increasing the instructional building program.

The subcommittee voted to shift libraries and athletic buildings into the self-liquidating program, financed with bonds, where dormitories and student centers are now. It voted to put a $30 million ceiling on the whole 1963-65 self-liquidating program.

In addition, the subcommittee has been talking in terms of a general fund appropriation of some $14 million for classrooms and specialized facilities such as laboratories and science buildings.

The $30 million ceilings of the self-liquidating part of the program indicates the committee's final building program will total about $44 million, some $8 million less than the governor suggested.

The big reduction, however, the committee indicated, will come in dormitories and student centers—about $11 million. It would be partially offset by increases in bond money and general fund money for instructional buildings.

To pay for adding libraries and physical education buildings to the self-liquidating program, the subcommittee adopted the "Mosser Plan" to earmark an additional portion of student fees into the self-liquidating fund.

Rep. John Mosser (R-Beaverton) said the theory is that libraries and athletic buildings benefit all students. He said the bonding approach would spread the cost of buildings needed to meet a "short term enrollment budget" at a time when the general fund is pinched.

The effect of the plan would be to reduce the amount of student fees going into the general fund by some $1.5 million per biennium.

Gov. Mark Hatfield's overall college building program called for a $29 million self-liquidating dormitory-student center program, and $21.3 million for instructional buildings, $20 million of it in a special bond issue.

The subcommittee is nearing a final decision on building priorities for both its selfliquidating and general fund programs. It indicated it may depart from the Board of Higher Education's priorities for both its self-liquidating and general fund programs. It indicated it may depart from the Board of Higher Education's priority list.

Chancellor R. E. Luevallen submitted a plea for the science building requested at the University of Oregon.

The subcommittee voted in favor of phasing out special treatment for students from Alaska and Hawaii by September, 1965.

It also voted to give the board discretion during the next two years at least in taking 10 per cent of the increased fees for out-of-state students and returning it to needy students as scholarship aid.

Stocks Top 1963 Highs in Advance

New York—(UPI)—Stocks topped their previous 1963 highs today on another widespread advance paced by drugs, metals and chemicals.

Dow Jones industrials closed less than 17 points from their all-time record of 734.91. While optimistic that the list will make its climb through this historic high, some brokers feel there might still be intermittent periods of consolidation.

Four Articles of Constitution OK'd

Salem—(UPI)—Four articles of a proposed constitution, including a strong executive branch—were approved Tuesday by the House and Senate Committees on Constitutional Revision.

The committees defeated a last-minute effort to allow government aid to parochial schools on an indirect basis.

The major action came when the committees approved an executive branch that would make the governor, and a watch dog controller, the state's two elective officers.

The committees also gave final approval to the Bill of Rights, and articles on suffrage and electors, and initiative and referendum.

The proposal to permit aid to parochial schools, led by Sen. Walter Pearson (D-Portland), centered on a section of the Bill of Rights. Pearson wanted to prohibit only "direct benefits" to religious institutions, allowing indirect benefits.

The issue grew out of a case in Oregon last year on providing state textbooks to parochial schools. The State Supreme Court said such aid was unconstitutional. The U. S. Supreme court declined to take up the appeal.

Pearson said his proposal would allow the legislature to give indirect aid to private schools.

"I would vote for giving textbooks to private schools

50 Per Cent Tax Forgiveness Seen as California Compromise

Sacramento—(UPI)—A senate leader today said Gov. Edmund G. Brown might possibly get his withholding tax plan through the senate if Californians are forgiven 50 per cent of their 1964 income tax instead of 25 per cent.

Senate President pro tem Hugo Burns (D-Fresno) made the observation after Brown told newsmen he was "exploring" the 50 per cent figure as a possible compromise.

"Without the compromise the program has no chance," Burns said. "But with it the program has a chance."

Under Brown's current withholding tax plan, Californians would pay 75 per cent of their 1964 income tax and be forgiven the other 25. Under the compromise, taxpayers would pay 50 per cent.

And while the compromise would cost the state treasury $85 million, it would mean money in the bank for taxpayers. A family of four with a $7,500 income, for instance, would pocket $6.69.

Asked if he thought the legislature would pass his withholding program with the added "forgiveness," Brown replied:

"I think it would be awfully close."

Burns later said the increased "forgiveness" would "considerably enhance" chances of upper house passage. "One of the stumbling blocks is the double tax in one year," he said.

Trail Riders Plan Sunday Play Day

The Medford Trail Riders will sponsor a Play Day Sunday, April 28, at the Veterans Administration building, White City starting at 1 p.m.

All members of any of the Jackson county horse groups as well as other interested persons are invited to attend. Refreshments will be on sale on the grounds.

Sunday, May 5, the Trail Riders will be guests of George McUne, owner of the Jacksonville Pioneer village, in Jacksonville. The occasion will be a breakfast ride and breakfast will be served at 9 a.m. All facilities for the event will be provided by the concession.

At the recent meeting held in Eagle Point, the Trail Riders approved the membership applications for three new members. They are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shannon, formerly of Ohio, and William Kemp, Michigan. All three have recently purchased property in Sams Valley.
